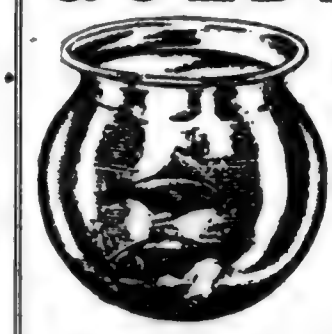
WASHINGTON, D. C.



The Market.

The kaleidoscopic changes of weather in the last week to ten days have worked havoc with the market and have materially shortened the supply of stock of all varieties. Roses and carnations are so small and of such an appearance as to make their display in the iceboxes undesirable. These flowers are in little demand. American Beauty roses have also taken a big slump in quantity and quality and, naturally, in price. The best of these bring $3 per dozen, but they are in limited supply.

The cold wave cut into the outdoor crop of sweet peas, and the supply of all outdoor flowers was brought down to a minimum. There were enough indoor-grown sweet peas of good quality to meet all demands. Valley has had a good call and there is enough on hand to fill all orders. Easter lilies from the north are good, with a steady price of $10 per hundred. Gladioli have dropped from previous quotations; the price now varies from $1.50 to $2. There is practically no call at all for snapdragon, and there is but little demand for iris. Water lilies are in little favor and cut but a small figure in the business. Gardenias are selling fairly well at $1.50 per dozen.

Last week saw the finish of the graduation and commencement business, which this year was quite satisfactory. Wedding work continues fairly plentiful, but is on the wane, and the florists are now facing the heaviest part of the annual summer slump. The social season has been something of a disappointment this year, although not more so than was predicted by several of the florists prior to the last presidential inauguration. The business of this year has not been of the best and there certainly is much room for improvement in this city.

Various Notes.

F. S. Good, formerly in the employ of J. S. Nicholas, New York, and at one time employed by Boston florists, is now with F. H. Kramer, at the store at 916 F street.

William F. Gude and his brother, Adolphus Gude, spent last week in Connecticut and New York, having gone to the former state to act as judges at the Hartford show and to visit a number of growers in that vicinity. On the return trip they will be the guests of a number of growers in New York and on the Jersey shore.

William Plumb, superintendent of floriculture of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, was a visitor here last week. While in town Mr. Plumb visited a number of stores and told of what was to be done in the way of displays of flowers in San Francisco.

The burning of a pile of rubbish and brush on the premises of J. H. Small, at Fourteenth street and Rhode Island avenue, northeast, necessitated the calling out of the fire engines, although the blaze was extinguished before it could do much damage.

Although it was Fathers' day in Washington, June 21, it was hardly noticeable and no flowers were worn in honor of the provider of the home, living or dead, and it was not found necessary to increase the price of flowers under the law of supply and demand.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,
J J Beneke

The Market.

After the middle of June, business usually slackens a little, but so far we are kept quite busy. Weddings are still numerous, with a good many orders ahead, while the commencement and graduation exercises are still in order. There has also been a good deal of funeral work, which has used a lot of outdoor roses, etc. There has been a long spell of dry weather; plants are drying up fast and much damage is being done. There is an abundance of outdoor flowers, but they are small and short-stemmed. The indoor stock is much more satisfactory. There has been a deluge of roses, chiefly pinks and reds. Street venders have been offering them at give-away prices. Carnations are soft and sleepy and are losing color; these, too, have been sold at 10 cents per dozen on the streets. Roses of the better grade are arriving in fine condition, but, owing to the weather, they open too readily. American Beauties are of good color and sell fairly well. Other red roses also have sold well. Sunbursts seem to be gaining ground and always sell satisfactorily. Taft roses are small, but usually clear well.

Sweet peas are the popular flowers for corsage work at this season and large quantities are disposed of daily. They are of good quality, but are inclined to be shorter in stem. Home-grown valley is of fine quality, but shipments from outside are the main dependence. Easter lilies are not over-plentiful, but there is little demand for them. Larkspurs, irises, Canterbury bells, snapdragons and bachelor's buttons all add to the display. The supply of green goods is normal. Large quantities of dagger ferns are brought in by local men. Bedding stock is still receiving good calls, but some growers are just about cleared.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sambrook, of Sambrook Bros., Troy, N. Y., were among the Knights Templar who were in convention here last week. Mr. Sambrook visited the trade and expressed himself much pleased with business conditions here and with our beautiful city.

H. B. Stringer spent the week end at White City, Summerville, being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. W. Judson.

George T. Boucher has added to his equipment a large auto truck, made in Buffalo, which will undoubtedly be of great service to him. He has handled several good sized decorations recently and store work has also been good. His business is steadily increasing.

The florists opposite Mount Hope cemetery have been doing large business in the last few weeks. Their cut flower trade for Saturday and Sunday is enormous. They have also been kept busy with their bedding stock, which has been excellent this season.

The second and third floors of the building in which J. B. Keller Sons are located have been rebuilt and a most artistic frontage has been added, which greatly improves the appearance of the store.

Harry Merritt's cut of Delight and White Wonder carnations has been highly satisfactory this season. The Delights are now much smaller and of a pale pink, but he says that after looking over the old roots he sees promise of at least eight or nine more blossoms. These "old roots" are already 2 years old.

Wm. H. Dildine and Charles H. Vick left here June 22 to attend the convention of the American Seed Trade Association, at Washington, D. C.

Harry E. Bates is enjoying a four days' cruise on Lake Ontario. The members of the Chamber of Commerce, among whom he is included, are visiting several Canadian cities, having the steamer Geronia at their service.

The Vick & Hill Co., at Barnard, N. Y., report having had the largest sale of plants in the history of the company, having almost cleared everything in the bedding line.

The Lord & Burnham Co. is doing good business. Local orders are steadily arriving. Out-of-town orders booked recently include four iron-frame houses, 30x174, for P. S. Randolph, Vernon, Pa.; one house, 40x183, for T. C. Hewlett, Irondequoit, N. Y., and two iron-frame houses, 22x100, for Schwerdt & Berner, Forks, N. Y. The boiler business also is exceptionally good.

Crosman Bros. had a unique window decoration last week in honor of the Knights Templar. It comprised a flag and emblem made entirely of seeds of various colors. It was certainly a work of art and well worthy of special mention.

Charles H. Vick was one of the participants in the wholesale trade excursion which toured east and west of Rochester, going as far west as Niagara Falls and east to Oswego and Syracuse.

James Vick's Sons say their store trade is keeping up well, considering the lateness of the season. The excessive drought has kept them back in setting out plants, but the fine rain June 19 has made it possible to put on three large forces of planters. They are planting a larger acreage than ever, including seventy-five acres of asters for seed purposes. The large bed of pansies at Highland park, from Vick's seeds, attracts large crowds. H. J. H.

The Market.

The week closing June 20 proved the best the market has had for a long time. Between class days, school graduations, weddings and outdoor fetes there was a genuine briskness in trading, especially June 18 and 19, more resembling a good Memorial day business than anything seen in many weeks. There were no fancy prices, but the clean-up was exceptionally good. The present week opens with less activity, and, as class days and graduations are over, there is less to buoy up the market. Roses cleaned up well last week. There are few fancy flowers, the bulk being short-stemmed. Beauties are abundant and sell cheaply. Some nice Taft, Kaiserin and other summer roses are arriving. Sunburst is pale, and other yellows have a bleached appearance. Killarney Brilliant is proving quite popular; so are Hadley and Russell.

Carnations vary from 50 cents to $2 per hundred and are poor in quality. Many growers are throwing out their crops. Sweet peas are druggy. Valley has been selling well. Blue cornflowers are hard to sell; so are snapdragons and stocks. Mrs. Francis King and America are the leading gladioli and have sold well of late. There also has been an abundance of the small-flowered varieties and Spanish iris. The latter now comes from outdoors. Peonies are nearing the end. Lilies have been a drug. Callas are about over. Not many good Club Ladies' Night.

There was an attendance of 225 at the club ladies' night at Horticultural hall, June 16. A small admission charge prevented the overcrowding sometimes seen at these gatherings and rendered the meeting the more enjoyable. One new member was elected at the short business session held. Of the entertainers of the evening, James Singer, a Scotch soloist, and the Misses Jennie and Nellie Irving, in Scotch dances, were enthusiastically encored. A first-class collation was served by a well known firm of caterers in the large hall, following which dancing was enjoyed until midnight, nearly everyone seeming to trip the light fantastic. President Kennedy, during the evening, called the attention of all present to the coming S. A. F. convention and asked each and all to act as an entertainment committee and make it as pleasant as possible for all who may attend.

The annual club picnic will this year be held at the time of the S. A. F. convention, in conjunction with the sports being arranged for that occasion. A seashore location is favored by some, but the identity of the club and the

S. A. F. would be lost in the crowd at these popular resorts and a quieter inland resort would be vastly better.

Various Notes.

William H. Elliott is cutting a fine lot of Beauty, Kaiserin, Taft and other summer roses at his Brighton establishment. Mr. Elliott has leased his Park street salesrooms and will probably locate in the wholesale cut flower center.

A. E. Walsh, a popular salesman at the Boston Flower Exchange, who handles flowers from the Halifax Garden Co. and from W. Jurgens, Newport, R. I., was married June 20 to Miss Gertrude McLean, formerly bookkeeper for William Sim, of Cliftondale. The young couple have the hearty wishes of many friends for a long and happy married life.

Thomas Roland, at his Revere establishment, now picks one and one-half tons of tomatoes daily. He still has a fine cut of roses there.

William Sim had the misfortune to sprain an ankle June 15, but is improving and hopes to be able to attend the sweet pea show in New York. His tomatoes are coming into crop nicely.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. had a busy time last week with class, graduation and wedding orders. June 17 they had orders, among much other business, for fifteen shower bouquets, and the force was kept on the jump the whole week.

The annual sweet pea show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society occurs July 10 and 11. Twenty-seven classes are allotted to sweet peas.

exceptionally fine tuberous-rooted begonias and hydrangeas. They report the bedding plant business as being the best on record.

N. F. McCarthy & Co. sold the balance of the store fixtures, etc., of the W. E. Doyle Co., 3 to 6 Boylston street, at public auction June 20.

At Penn's the week ending June 20 was an exceptionally busy one. They never had so many wedding, class and graduation orders in a single week before.

Frank J. Dolansky still cuts some fine summer gardenias, in addition to an excellent crop of Cattleya Mossiæ. He has received some grand importations of orchids this season.

F. H. Houghton, on Park street, says June business with him has been good. He has had some large orders which have kept him busy the whole month.

Charles E. Evans is cutting extra fine Mrs. F. King and America gladioli. He now is practically sold out of hydrangeas. He is using a new Premier roadster car.

Welch Bros. Co. say last week proved the best for business in a long time. There are no fancy prices, but clearances were decidedly better. David Welch sailed on the S. S. Laconia for Liverpool June 23, on his annual European trip.

The convention garden is receiving liberal notices in the Boston daily newspapers. It is described as likely to prove a serious rival to Boston's public garden, and many visitors already are being attracted to it. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. have an extensive collection of new Chinese plants there, collected by Wilson. The city of Boston also is filling several large beds. F. E. Palmer is one of the latest of the local growers to secure space. The W. W. Edgar Co. has a finely planted bed. Dreer's aquatic display should prove an imposing one. The spaces allotted to Vaughan's Seed Store, A. T. Boddington, Peter Henderson & Co., Conard & Jones Co., and other large exhibitors, now are all occupied. W. N. Craig.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The weather was ideal last week and business excellent in all branches. Counter trade was unusually good and wedding, commencement and funeral work kept up fairly well. The warm weather has brought an abundance of outdoor flowers into the market. Spanish iris, peonies, pyrethrums and daisies have been plentiful, but peonies will soon be at an end, for they are now beginning to deteriorate. Outdoor sweet peas have made their appearance and are excellent in quality. There was a scarcity of roses last week, so that prices on these went up. Peonies have made a good substitute for roses for graduation bouquets. For corsage work, sweet peas, valley and orchids were used and occasionally roses were pressed into service. Gift baskets of flowers are not used so much this season as in other years. Beauties are fine, considering the warm weather. Valley is good, but not overplentiful. Prices on cattleyas are firm. Sweet peas, of the Spencer variety, are excellent and in good demand. Flowering plants are scarce; a few gloxinias, rhododendrons, spiræas and fuchsias are about the only ones to be had just now.

Asparagus, both Sprengeri and plumosus, is plentiful, as are ferns, smilax and galax. There are some good Boston ferns in the market, but these are tall and drooping.

Various Notes.

Charles Schoenhut, on William street, is doing a good business in wedding work. He is looking forward to a big trade for commencements the latter part of the month.

Joseph Connon has discontinued his services at Anderson's Elmwood store and is now with the force at the Main street store.

Harold Taylor has taken quarters at the Y. M. C. A. dormitory for the summer since his parents have moved to Williamsville.

Barney Myers, of Lancaster, N. Y., is cutting large quantities of Spanish iris of a most beautiful color. He also is growing some fine digitalis.

Joseph Streit's gloxinias are fine just now and find a ready market.

The beds in Lafayette Square were planted last week in formal design with century plants studding the centers. The catalpa trees, which were planted recently, are growing splendidly.

S. A. Anderson and family have gone to their summer home at Farnham, N. Y., to remain until fall.

Warm weather designing is in order among the florists here at present. Flowers are cut with shorter stems for design work, which keeps them fresher, because they are nearer the moss. For basket work, tubes or glasses filled with water are used and the flowers remain fresh much longer if treated in this way.

Charles Sandiford, gardener for J. J. Albright, is producing some excellent cattleyas.

A heavy frost was felt here June 20,

NEWS OF THE SEED TRADE

THE peas are approaching the critical period with excellent prospects.

THE Holland bulb salesmen have nearly all completed their canvas and sailed away. Not one of them would admit having booked less business than in 1913.

THE Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., at Kansas City, Mo., has leased the building at Ninth and Santa Fe streets, containing 80,000 square feet, from the Western Grocer Co., for seven years, at $6,000 a year.

SUMMING up the talk in the trade, it appears that 1914 was the banner season to date on vegetable and flower seeds, but that on field and grass seeds the showing was not so good as in several recent years.

THE president of the New York Produce Exchange has just appointed the following members as a committee on seeds, for the ensuing year: William Jacot, chairman; Marshall H. Duryea, Ernst Wehncke, O. W. F. Randolph and Chas. Wimmer.

THE demand for pansy seed increases steadily. Not only are greater and greater quantities imported, principally from Germany, but American pansy specialists who have worked up first-class strains steadily are adding to their production, while the number of growers also is increasing.

IT looks as if it may be up to the growers of sweet pea seed to migrate, just as did the growers of culinary peas. The reports on the California crop keep getting more and more pessimistic until now there are the most direful forebodings as the result of failure to control the aphis. Probably, however, things are not so black as they are printed; they seldom are.

KELWAY & SON, Langport, England, have this year received from the United States government an order for flower and vegetable seeds totaling in weight nearly forty-four tons. This is one of the largest orders for flower and vegetable seeds ever received by one firm from one customer, as it is not composed even in part of agricultural seeds or of large seeds, such as peas and beans. Of the four other European firms which, in addition to the Langport firm, are this year favored by the United States government with orders for seeds, one is English, two French and one Dutch.

FREE SEEDS CONTINUE.

History has repeated itself—the conference committee has put back into the agricultural appropriation bill the provision for free seeds that was eliminated by the Senate. The appropriation for this purpose as provided by the House is restored. The conferees eliminate the $12,000 for the encouragement of bulb growing in this country that was provided for in the bill as it passed the Senate. The conference report was presented to both branches of Congress June 23, but has not yet been adopted.

P.

SEED TRADE CONVENTION.

In Session at Washington.

The thirty-second annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, which opened at Washington June 23, is perhaps the record meeting of the organization. Following what generally has been an exceptionally prosperous season, Washington is at the moment a special point of interest. The grass seed people have in recent years been extremely active, almost dominant, in the affairs of the association, and only last week the government issued its latest report on the analysis of samples of Kentucky bluegrass and redtop obtained in the open market, showing that some houses of excellent standing last season handled extremely poor redtop. This meeting gives the grass seed dealers the opportunity to personally acquaint themselves with the government's seed testing laboratories and Botanist Edgar Brown is keeping open house. The garden and flower seed people who oppose the free distribution of seeds by the government also have had a special reason for visiting Washington at this time. One branch of Congress has provided funds for the usual distribution in 1915 and the other branch has refused to do so, the matter now being in the hands of the conference committee. Interested seedsmen are this week calling on members of the conference committee, singly and in groups. Some of the congressmen are said to have considerable difficulty in understanding the point of view of the seedsmen who say they oppose the congressional free distribution but who nevertheless bid for the business.

Hotel Raleigh, the headquarters, began filling up with seedsmen as early as Sunday, for the Grass Seed Dealers' Association holds its annual meeting one day ahead of the general body. The custom of executive sessions was not followed so closely this year as recently, for it seemed inexpedient to give official Washington the idea that the affairs of the seed trade require secrecy. With the younger men taking a more active part in the affairs of the association there is apparent a change of sentiment in the attitude toward newspapers and the public.

It is a warm convention, not only in the discussion, which seems to center around the points where the seed business is touched by the law, but in temperature: the mercury climbed to 92 degrees on the opening day, but had fallen to 74 by 7 p. m.

The sentiment appears to favor a trip to California for 1915, with an international congress of seedsmen as a feature of the convention.

Official Reports.

At the opening session at 10 a. m., June 23, W. F. Gude, president of the Chamber of Commerce and Washington representative of the S. A. F., delivered an address of welcome, after which President Massie made an optimistic address from the chair, printed on page 62 of this issue.

Secretary C. E. Kendel made the following report on membership:

improvement, advocated the coöperation of members of the American Seed Trade Association in their respective states or sections, with all the various agricultural educational agencies at work, such as the farm demonstration work, boys' corn clubs, girls' canning clubs, etc.

A distinct phase was developed by this committee, in inquiries made of experiment station and agricultural college workers, which brings on a considerable discussion of the general question of seed regulation in its relation to the furnishing of seeds of higher quality and less impurities by the seed trade as a whole to farmers. This committee makes what may seem a radical recommendation to the association, that its members coöperate with agricultural college and experiment station workers in formulating and pressing for passage reasonable pure seed regulations, insofar as they relate to grass, clover and agricultural seeds in general; that is, such seeds as are distinguishable in the grain of the seed.

"The chairman believes that the high-class seed trade of the United States has everything to gain and nothing to lose by taking such a stand. Investigation shows that troubles arising out of purchases of impure or inferior seed are mostly purchases made from local general merchants or local seed stores and not from recognized, high-class seed houses such as generally compose the American Seed Trade Association. This class of dealers as a rule are ignorant as to seed quality and, generally, buy where they can buy the cheapest, regardless of quality, and it is seed handled in this way that is responsible for a great majority of complaints that result in calls for seed legislation.

"The chairman of this committee is making a recommendation of this kind to the association entirely on his own responsibility and recognizes that it is a radical departure from the past attitude of seedsmen, but a careful study of the situation as it relates to production and distribution of seeds in the United States leads him to believe that this is the wisest policy that the American Seed Trade Association can follow. This policy would, if followed, bring about coöperation between the seed trade and various agricultural agencies on this question of seed legislation which must be faced and if the seed trade will adopt such an attitude, instead of one of antagonism to all seed legislation, they will secure the sympathy, respect and consideration of the forces that are either drafters of seed bills or act in an advisory capacity in such matters."

Experiment Stations.

L. L. Olds, for the committee on experiment stations, presented a voluminous report consisting of extracts from letters from thirty-nine of the forty-eight state experiment stations telling of the work they have been doing of special interest to seedsmen, particularly along the line of plant breeding. The purpose of Mr. Olds and his committee is to put the association and the trade at large closer in touch with the experiment stations so that all may profit by coöperation.

Postal Affairs.

The report of the committee on postal affairs recounted briefly the inclusion of books and seeds in the parcel post and was followed by an animated discussion of the effects of the new arrangement. While many individual embarrassments were pointed out, it was the consensus of opinion that Mr. Therkildson and his committee had obtained the best that could reasonably be expected.

In opening the discussion Mr. Therkildson said that the greatest difficulty encountered under the parcel post is in pricing catalogues, since the application of the zone rates makes the cost of delivery differ widely as between near-by and distant customers; also it makes it impossible for seedsmen in different cities to quote approximately the same delivered prices for the whole country, since no two houses, if located in different cities, can figure on the same basis. It was the consensus of opinion that the trade requires the elimination of the zones and resolutions to that effect were adopted.

Papers and Discussions.

The following papers were read during the early part of the meeting:

"Selling Seeds at Wholesale—Catalogues, Surplus Lists and Circulars," by Watson S. Woodruff, Orange, Conn.

"Printers' Ink Advertising—Farm Journals and General Advertising," by A. E. McKenzie, Brandon, Man.

Grass Seed Dealers Meet.

The sixth annual meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association was held at the Hotel Raleigh June 22. Among those active in the session were President Reynolds, C. C. Massie, M. H. Duryea, G. S. Green, W. G. Scarlett, Albert McCullough, J. A. Smith, E. D. Stanford, A. J. Brown, H. W. Wood, and A. C. Kendel. Discussion centered on the injustice of some of the state seed laws and it was planned to get together with the state seed analysts and work for a uniform, workable law for all states.

An arbitration committee was appointed, to act in cases of differences in which members of the association might be concerned.

Officers were elected as follows:

President—A. E. Reynolds, Crawfordsville, Ind., reëlected.

Vice-president—W. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md.

Secretary-treasurer—J. A. Smith, Toledo, reëlected.

Directors for three years—G. S. Green, Chicago; W. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, and E. D. Stanford, Buffalo.

French Bulbs

Do we keep 'em? Nope—but surest thing you know we sell 'em—Dutch bulbs too—also Azaleas. A client when placing his order for lily bulbs with us, when we solicited his order for other bulbs as well, remarked that he did not know we sold other than lily bulbs. So this turn we are going to toot our horn on other than lily bulbs. The extreme drought in the south of France this season has been harmful to the crops; the sizes will be small and the prices high on account of the small crop. Those of you that gave your orders for French bulbs to the Hollanders are likely not to receive the bulbs, the Hollanders have such a pleasing way of not shipping the orders when taken at low prices and the market goes against them. Our growers write us that our orders will be filled and with good stock. Protect yourself against disappointment and the failure to receive your French bulbs by sending us your order. Horseshoe Brand French Bulbs, Dutch Bulbs and Azaleas—obtained of reliable, responsible growers—are of A-1 class and give the best results. A catalogue with prices on request.

$ $ $ JULY AND AUGUST FOR $ $ $

The progressive florist must now look ahead to winter and plan early for a full measure of success. If you have not grown my S. P. Seedling snaps you will want a big bed of them. If you have grown them you will grow more, for there is no plant in cultivation that will give the same returns, and there is no snapdragon in existence so beautiful or productive, nor so easy to handle. Sow seeds in July and August for best results. Allow three months to have fine, bushy plants, ready for the bench. Our free instructions are complete and make growing simple. There is no comparison between a seedling plant of Silver Pink and a cutting from any other variety. The seedling makes a business plant from the start and can be produced at one-eighth of the cost.

When buying my original Silver Pink you are getting the cream of all snapdragons. You won't have to make an apology for its color. It is that lovely, silvery, sea-shell pink that fits into any occasion without special toggery to match it. It is what the people buy and the people are the ones to whom we must cater. Unsolicited testimonials and repeat orders by the hundred. See recent ads.

For a long flowering season sow seed in JULY and AUGUST. Price of new crop, $1.00 per packet of about 1000 seeds; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Cash. Fine seedling plants for fall blossoms, now ready, at only $3.00 per 100.

PRESIDENT MASSIE'S ADDRESS.

[A synopsis of the address of C. C. Massie, president of the American Seed Trade Association, delivered at the opening session of the Washington convention, June 23.]

While some departments of our business may show more or less decrease, on the whole the seed trade has reason to review the year's business with considerable pride. The business of seed selling is gradually being elevated to a higher plane. When the seed business as it is conducted today is compared with the methods in vogue two or three decades ago, rapid development is apparent. There is still room for great improvement and changes for the better are rapidly taking place.

It was my good fortune to spend my early life on the farm. This experience taught me many things; among others, the true value of good seeds and the great moral responsibility resting with the seedsman. It has been said that the seed merchant occupies a position relative to that of the banker. Men who deposit money in the bank do so with confidence in the banker; those who purchase seeds also must have confidence in the seedsman. Our vocation is one which requires men of unquestioned honesty and highest integrity.

The annual conventions of this association, increasing in size, are bringing before us many new faces, mostly young men. Some of these new members are due to attain great success, but this will not come without hard work and certain sacrifices. It is upon these younger members that we must depend for the progress and stability of this association.

Uniform Laws Needed.

The most important subject before the seed trade at this time is uniform state legislation. All realize the difficulties involved in the transaction of their business while widely different seed laws are enforced in each state. There does not seem to exist the harmony which naturally should be expected with the law-making bodies of the various states, but those who have the enforcing of these laws in their power are beginning to realize the necessity of coöperation and are working more closely together. Many of the seed analysts are coming to realize the difficulties under which the seed trade is operating and are disposed to view with wisdom the advisability of mutual understanding. I feel that the seed analysts are willing and ready to coöperate with the seedsmen, but I am inclined to believe that the average seedsman is not so well acquainted with his state seed commissioner or analyst as is possible. If all those interested could get together at stated intervals and discuss the matter in a sane and business-like manner, it should result in laws which would protect the uninformed, minimize the possibility or opportunity of fraud and work for the general betterment of the business of seed selling.

As an example of what can be done, in Minnesota last summer our agricultural college conducted a week's course on the pure seed law. All the seed

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

PRINCESS

The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 seeds, 25c; 1000, 50c; ¼ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $10.00.

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance; a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, its large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.

ORCHID FLOWERED, Mixed—A dwarf free bloomer with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other pansies, a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois.

houses in our state were invited and each had a representative present. The meetings were conducted by the state seed inspector. Half-day sessions were held for a week and a splendid opportunity was given to discuss the Minnesota seed laws in every detail. The seed inspector stated that the week's work was most valuable to him and that, after having an opportunity of talking to so many of the seedsmen, he realized some of the difficulties with which the seed merchant had to contend.

Law Changes This Year.

During the year new weight and measure laws have been made effective in various states. A bushel of peas in Iowa now calls for sixty pounds, regardless of whether they are smooth or wrinkled peas. In Minnesota the law calls for sixty pounds of smooth peas and fifty-six pounds of wrinkled sorts. In Pennsylvania all peas are classed at sixty pounds per bushel. I only cite this one commodity to show the difficulties the seedsmen have to contend with. A national weight and measure act would be desirable, but better still, I think that the seed trade as a body should discontinue offering seeds by measure and adopt the cental system.

While the new parcel post rates are not entirely agreeable to all, especially those mailing large catalogues, on the whole the seed trade is to be congratulated in securing the rates now in effect.

The seedsmen's disclaimer or non-warranty clause has again been upheld by the courts. The latest decision was handed down by the Supreme Court of Wisconsin. This court maintains that the custom is universal among seedsmen and establishes the fact that all purchasers of seeds are bound to take note of the conditions under which those seeds are sold. The court further states that if seed houses warranted their seeds they would have to sell at a much higher price than if no warranty were given.

Recommendations.

(1) That Curtis Nye Smith be employed another year as counsel for this association.

(2) That a press committee be appointed. The reason for this is because of the many articles appearing in newspapers, magazines and other publications, which in many cases depart from the truth and are, therefore, detrimental to our interests. With a committee to censor these articles, much good could be accomplished and considerable harm avoided.

(3) That this association go on record as favoring shorter terms of sale on garden seeds, to replace the present antiquated system of June 1 dating without regard to time of purchase.

(4) That our members be urged to make prominent use of the disclaimer, by using it on letter-heads, invoices, shipping tags, labels and containers, so as to protect themselves from unfair claims.

CENTAL SYSTEM RECOMMENDED.

[A report on the advisability of selling seeds by weight, prepared by F. W. Bruggerhof, of J. M. Thorburn & Co., presented at the Washington convention.]

In my opinion American seedsmen should break away from tradition and quote in our catalogues, whether wholesale or retail, all seeds as well as potato tubers by weight.

While the selling of seeds by the measured bushel has disappeared to a certain extent in the trade, the weight per bushel has a value in determining grade, especially in grass seeds, which vary greatly in quality. Redtop seed weighing ten pounds per bushel is composed largely of chaff and contains a small percentage of good seed, while fancy seed containing from eighty-five to ninety-five per cent of pure seed weighs from thirty-five to forty pounds per bushel. Similar variations in weight exist in connection with other common grass seeds, such as bluegrass, brome grass, rye grass, orchard grass and the fescues.

The weights per bushel of grains do not vary so much as do those of grass seeds, but nevertheless the weight per bushel is an important factor to be considered in grading; still I think we should sell by weight from our catalogue, specifying, if need be, the grade by mentioning the approximate number of pounds to the bushel.

I note that in several instances the legal weights are obviously misleading and should be changed. There is evidently an error in the Louisiana statute which gives the weight for barley and rye as thirty-two pounds. The weights of buckwheat vary from forty to fifty-two pounds in the different states. The legal weights for oats should be made more nearly uniform. In Pennsylvania and West Virginia the legal weight is thirty-two pounds; in Virginia, thirty pounds, and in Maryland, twenty-six pounds. The legal weight for Kentucky bluegrass and redtop in all states where legal weight has been established is fourteen pounds. This weight was established before the present methods of cleaning came into general use and while the seed was still in chaff. Clean seed of good grade always weighs from two to three times as much.

In numerous instances the customary weights per bushel of seeds used by the trade are not the same as the legal weights. Seedsmen handle large quantities of fodder and forage seeds, as well as other seeds, for few of which legal weights per bushel have been established. They have, therefore, to arrive at customary weights only, which vary in the different states.

A subject of much importance in the cental system of selling seeds is that of mixtures of various grass seeds for lawns, for pastures and for meadows. Such mixtures are in most cases offered at prices per bushel of various weights and in cases where no specific bushel weight is noted it is usually assumed that the mixture weighs fourteen pounds to the bushel. This is a misleading condition, as today where first-class seeds are used the bushel weight of such mixtures would vary from twenty to thirty pounds to the meas-

NEW WINTER-FLOWERING SWEET PEA

ROSE QUEEN

If you are a grower of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas, you naturally look for the very best strain procurable. The Indianapolis Sweet Pea called "ROSE QUEEN" is without question the finest Sweet Pea introduced for many a year. Orchid-flowering, borne on long stems, extremely free and early and of a pink color most attractive, it is a decided acquisition, and like all meritorious novelties is sure to be in demand wherever grown.

The following letters from men in the trade, well known everywhere, speak for themselves:

Gentlemen:— Indianapolis, Ind., April 14, 1914.
We have handled the pink sweet pea, "Rose Queen," in large quantities for several years, and can heartily recommend it to any grower or retailer as a good keeper and fine seller. It is easily the best sweet pea shown in this market. Respectfully, A. WIEGAND'S SONS CO.

Gentlemen:— Indianapolis, Ind., March 14, 1914.
We take pleasure in conscientiously recommending Mr. A. Pittet's new sweet pea, "Rose Queen." It is the new Orchid type, and has these advantages: They bloom earlier than any other Orchid type on the market are a wonderful producer, and have a clear pink color unsurpassed. We think the price of the seed is a small item. Very truly yours.
BERTERMANN BROS. CO.

Dear Sir:— Richmond, Ind., April 20, 1914.
We are glad to write you a line concerning your beautiful pink Sweet Pea. To our mind it is the most beautiful variety of its color, being large in size, long-stemmed, the tint bright and exceedingly clear and, best of all, the variety is a wonderful keeper. We do not believe there is another sort that will keep, when cut, as finely as this variety. It has been a great favorite in our stores. Yours very truly,

New Winter-blooming ORCHID-FLOWERED Sweet Pea "Anita Wehrman"

A fine, clear lavender, with three to four flowers to stem, and has been grown with 20-inch stems, holding the length longer than is usual with any other winter-flowering variety.

Will bloom from Thanksgiving on, if sown in July.

This variety originated with Mr. Henry Wehrman, of Maywood, Ill., five years ago, and has been grown and selected by him ever since, he now having the type fixed as well as it can be in the Spencer variety.

The seed we offer is greenhouse-grown, saved and rogued by the originator, and will be ready for delivery in July, the proper time to sow for Thanksgiving and Christmas bloom.

We give herewith Mr. Wehrman's own opinion of its merits as a cut flower.

New Winter-blooming Spencer Sweet Pea, Anita Wehrman.

MAYWOOD, ILL., June 22, 1914.

A. Henderson & Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—

In answer to the many questions your customers are asking you in reference to the new Winter-flowering Sweet Pea Anita Wehrman, which you are disseminating for me, I can safely say that Anita Wehrman is the best Early-flowering Lavender Spencer type I have ever grown, and has produced with me, more flowers to the square foot of bench than any other variety. Last year I purchased nearly $500.00 worth of Sweet Pea seed, buying the most expensive kinds as I never hesitate on the price of the seed, it being only a minute expense in contrast to the enormous returns the grower gets if he hits the one the public wants. Anita Wehrman is the one the public demanded and I made more money out of this variety than any other. I have grown it for five years, selected it myself, have been very careful to hold it true to type and cheerfully recommend it to my brother Sweet Pea growers.

Yours truly,
HENRY WEHRMAN.

ured bushel, according to the formula used.

In consequence of this somewhat chaotic condition I have felt for many years that some concerted action should be taken by seedsmen, by which all seeds could be quoted and sold by weight. Peas, beans, sweet corn and grass seed mixtures for the retail trade should, in my opinion, be sold by weight, rather than by the pint, quart, etc., and I hope all the trade may concur in this opinion, as it certainly is fairer and more rational for both buyer and seller than the custom now in vogue, and if both wholesale and retail catalogues could be made to conform to this suggested change, say with the issue of 1916 publications, I think a long step would be taken in the right direction.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Pioneer Nursery, Monrovia, Cal.—A 72-page catalogue of deciduous, citrus, tropical and semi-tropical fruit trees, ornamental trees, shrubs, vines, bulbs, etc. A comprehensive but condensed list, without descriptions or illustrations.

Conrad Appel, Darmstadt, Germany.—Jubilee edition of catalogue, celebrating the one hundred twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the seed house; contains wholesale lists of forests and agricultural seeds.

M. Herb, Naples, Italy.—General catalogue of bulbs, and of seeds for autumn sowing; twenty-six closely printed pages, in English, German and French.

A CENTURY AND A QUARTER.

The firm of Conrad Appel, Darmstadt, Germany, is this year celebrating its one hundred and twenty-fifth year of trade, and coincident with this, Ludwig Heyn has completed twenty-five years as sole proprietor of the business.

The firm was established in 1789 by Johann Christian Appel, in Griesheim, a small place near Darmstadt, which at the beginning of the last century was the center of the German forest seed trade. His son, Conrad Wilhelm Appel, who was the head of the firm up to 1855, considerably extended the business, and in 1850 removed it to Darmstadt, on account of the better railway communications. His successors, his son, Conrad Appel, and his son-in-law, Ernst Ludwig Heyn, did much to enlarge the trade by extending more and more the seed dressing, cleaning and grading departments, which even in the sixties were already conspicuous. In 1888 the son of E. L. Heyn, Councilor of Commerce Ludwig Heyn, the present owner of the business, became head of the firm, which, as he is the great-grandson of the founder, has remained with the same family for four generations.

Vegetable Forcing

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

Can you tell me of a good book on growing tomatoes under glass? What is the best kind to plant? I do not force my tomatoes. I keep the night temperature up to 60 degrees and the day temperature at about 80 to 83 degrees. At night during December, January and February it will drop to 40 degrees. I only aim to keep the frost out of the house during winter. I grew Chalk's Jewel this year. The plants were fifteen inches apart in the row and two rows to a 3-foot bed, with a 20-inch path between. The soil can be made any depth up to twelve inches. I found the Jewel tomato set all right, but the fruit rotted and half the crop was a loss. I would like all the information you can give, as I have a market that will take 300 or 400 pounds daily from April 1 to June 15.

C. D. O.

I do not know of any special work on indoor tomato culture, although some of the state college bulletins and special vegetable books have articles on them. You will find some practical notes on this subject in a recent copy of The Review. For midwinter forcing the English varieties are decidedly superior to the American. Comet is largely grown, but Lister's Prolific seems to be an improvement on that variety. Other good sorts are Carter's Sunrise and Sutton's Best of All. Of American varieties Earliana and Early Jewel are the best.

For a midwinter crop you are planting your tomatoes too thickly. One row to a bed would give you far better returns. After March, two rows are all right. In order, however, to get a good winter crop you must run your night temperature higher than 40 degrees. You cannot expect a first-class crop and fruit free from rot in so low a temperature. Also give the plants a much more limited root run in winter; four inches would be far better than twelve inches. Drop Early Jewel and try one of the other sorts named and you will succeed much better. Always give the plants a dry atmosphere, and pollinate artificially in midwinter.

MINNESOTA SOCIETIES' SHOW.

D. W. C. Ruff, of St. Paul, and B. T. Hoyt, of the Hoyt Nursery Co., St. Paul, divided the first and second prizes for peonies at the annual flower show held by the Minnesota State Horticultural Society in connection with the State Garden Flower Society and State Florists' Association. The Brand Nurseries, of Faribault, Minn., took all four prizes for seedling peonies.

Peonies composed the greater part of the show, although roses and perennials of various kinds were largely shown. The Minneapolis park board exhibited a particularly fine collection of roses.

Prize-winners in other than peony classes included G. C. Hawkins, Mrs. E. W. Gould, J. P. Brown, E. A. Farmer and Mrs. H. A. Boardman, all of Minneapolis.

BODDINGTON'S QUALITY FLOWER SEEDS

SELECTED SEEDS SUCCESSFULLY SOWN SECURE
SURE, SAFE AND SERVICEABLE SATISFACTION

IT has been, is, and always will be our policy and intention to disseminate only the very choicest strains of flowering seeds (or any other varieties of seeds), giving special attention to the class known as Florists' Seeds, and intending customers need have no hesitation in buying or fear of disappointment when they bloom. No expense has been spared to secure the finest types as to habit of plant, form of flower, color and breeding of our Quality strains of Primula, Cineraria, Cyclamen, Calceolaria, etc.

ASPARAGUS

PLUMOSUS NANUS. True greenhouse grown. 50 cts. per 100 seeds, $1.00 for 250 seeds, $3.50 per 1000 seeds.

PLUMOSUS NANUS. California grown. 50 cts. per 100 seeds, 75 cts. for 250 seeds, $2.50 per 1000 seeds.

SPRENGERI. 25 cts. for 250 seeds, 75 cts. per 1000 seeds, $3.00 for 5000 seeds.

CALCEOLARIA HYBRIDA

BODDINGTON'S PERFECTION. The herbaceous Calceolaria is an easily cultivated plant. So long as frost is excluded from the plants in Winter they are perfectly safe, and to attempt to hasten growth at any time is a failure. July is the best month for sowing the seed. The great advance made in the habit of the strains offered is remarkable, whilst in the colors there is a marked improvement. Saved by England's most famous specialists. Monster flowers of rich and varied colors, including spotted, laced, blotched and self-colored varieties. ½ pkt. 60 cts., pkt. $1.00.

Boddington's Matchless CINERARIAS

BODDINGTON'S MATCHLESS CINERARIA. A combination of the three most famous English strains, which we can recommend to those wishing to grow the best. Tall, ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00; Dwarf, ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

CINERARIA STELLATA (Star-flowering Cineraria). Tall growing, 4 to 5 feet; excellent as a single specimen for table decoration, or for grouping with splendid effect in corridors and conservatories. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

CANDYTUFT (Iberis) H. A.

BODDINGTON'S GIANT HYACINTH-FLOWERED. Large, pure white, spiral spikes. The finest variety for growing under glass. Trade pkt. 35 cts., oz. $2.00.

MIGNONETTE H. A.

BODDINGTON'S MAJESTY. The finest of all the fancy varieties of Mignonette; an improvement on Allen's Defiance. Seed saved from select spikes under glass. Trade pkt. 60 cts., ⅛ oz. $1.00, oz. $7.50.

BODDINGTON'S POT MYOSOTIS

Forget-Me-Nots are delightful subjects for flowering indoors at Christmas time, and as they are everywhere welcome the practice of growing plants in pots is rapidly increasing. Sown in July and potted on, the strain we offer produces fine, free-growing specimen plants. Trade pkt. 50 cts., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

SCHIZANTHUS (Butterfly Flower) H. A. 1½ ft.

Elegant, free-flowering, hardy annuals for the garden in Summer or for pot culture in the greenhouse during Winter.

GRANDIFLORUS BODDINGTONII. Boddington's Select Hybrids. This strain is superior to any of the Schizanthus in cultivation, the flowers are better shaped and the colors are more varied. In habit the plants are very bushy, and the flowers are invaluable for cutting; as a pot plant for conservatory decoration they are unequaled. Trade pkt. 75 cts.

WISETONENSIS. The colors are varied, ranging from white with yellow center to pink with brown center. Most useful as a Winter plant, and should be given a place in every greenhouse. Trade pkt. 50 cts.

Boddington's Matchless GIANT PRIMULAS

PRIMULA SINENSIS

Boddington's Matchless Giant Primulas, Mixed. This selection includes all the finest Giant Single Primulas of the plain-leaved class. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Pure White.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Blush White.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Orange King. A delightful novelty; almost orange.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Rose.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Scarlet.

Boddington's Matchless Giant Royal Blue.

Each, ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00. Collection of the above 6 varieties, ½ trade pkt. each, for $3.50.

The Duchess. The large, pure white flower, with its unique zone of bright, rosy carmine, surrounding a clear yellow eye, is simply unapproachable in its beauty. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

Sutton's Coral Pink. The name describes it; habit dwarf and compact; flowers thrown well above foliage. Pkt. $1.00.

PRIMULA OBCONICA GIGANTEA

Primula obconica gigantea Kermesina. Beautiful, deep crimson.

Primula obconica gigantea alba. The pure white flowers greatly enhance the beauty of the existing lilac, rose and crimson shades.

Primula obconica gigantea lilacina. Beautiful lilac.

Primula obconica gigantea rosea. Lovely rose.

Primula obconica gigantea grandiflora. Mixed varieties, containing pure white to deep crimson.

Each of above, ½ pkt. 30 cts., pkt. 50 cts.

PRIMULA floribunda grandiflora (Buttercup). Small yellow flowers, borne in great profusion; fine for pots. Pkt. 50 cts. Forbesii (Baby Primrose). Pkt. 25 cts.

PRIMULA KEWENSIS (Giant Buttercup). This plant is a strong grower, with bright green leaves and numerous erect flower-scapes, 10 to 18 inches in height, producing flowers in whorls at intervals along their whole length. The flowers are fragrant, bright yellow in color, with a slender tube and spreading limb nearly an inch in diameter. As a Winter-flowering decorative plant it is an acquisition; very floriferous when in a small state. ½ trade pkt. 60 cts., pkt. $1.00.

PRIMULA FIMBRIATA, GIANT QUEEN ALEXANDRA. G. P. The largest white Primula Sinensis, blooms measuring 2½ inches across. Petals very solid and erect. Robust foliage with red stems. ½ pkt. 60 cts., trade pkt. $1.00.

PRIMULA, NEW HYBRID QUEEN OF ROSES. A lovely new hybrid of P. obconica and P. stellata, producing shapely heads of large and beautiful, bright rose-colored flowers, remaining decorative for a long time. 1 foot. Trade pkt. $1.00, ½ pkt. 60 cts.

PRIMULA MALACOIDES. H. H. P. (The Giant Baby Primrose.) The plants branch very freely. The flowers, which are ¾ inch wide, are of a pretty light lilac, and are borne in whorls on long stems. If grown in a greenhouse, can be had in bloom in four months after sowing. Trade pkt. 50 cts., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

PRIMULA MALACOIDES ALBA. The white prototype of the foregoing variety, and a great acquisition; very chaste and beautiful as a plant or cut flower. Trade pkt. 50 cts., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

ARTHUR T. BODDINGTON, Seedsman 342 West 14th Street NEW YORK CITY

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

June weddings and school exercises have given just the stimulus to business that was needed to wind up the season well. In almost every retail store, and in some of the wholesale ones, school work has been prominent. Funeral work has also kept up well, and altogether it has been a busy week for all. The stock being used is about the same as noted last week, the principal addition being superb Iris Kæmpferi. Greenhouse carnations are good, but the outdoor flowers are getting rather rough. There is a good demand for hanging baskets, with ferns or foliage plants, for porch and house decoration.

Various Notes.

It had been common knowledge in the city for several days that Charles E. Morton, of the Los Angeles Flower Market, had sold his interest in the corporation and that Fred Sperry had been appointed president. But the incoming partner apparently did not like the flower business and Mr. Morton has bought in again. He will probably go away for a time to get the throat trouble from which he has been suffering fixed up, but will continue in business at the old stand. We should all be sorry to lose "Charlie" from our midst, and all wish him a speedy recovery of his usual health.

Miss Rohrs since giving up her business on Washington street has been living at the beach at Ocean Park and is much improved in health.

J. M. Grant, of this city, has been appointed forester for Orange county, with headquarters at Santa Ana. He has already taken up his duties. He has had considerable experience in southern California, including some time as inspector under the horticultural commission. Previous to coming here he was in the government forest service in South Africa and Australia. His practical and theoretical knowledge of the trees and shrubs of these latitudes should make him a valuable man to the county, and he enters his new position with the best wishes of a large circle of friends in Los Angeles and vicinity.

H. Reeve Darling has returned from his European honeymoon trip. I have not as yet seen him, but Manager W. Garbett says he has him in harness again. Business is keeping up finely in the store, with plenty of graduation work.

C. Winsel always has a lot of flowers in the store, from his Montebello nursery. Some fine outdoor roses are the special attraction this week. An automobile service station has taken up part of his Washington street nursery, but does not interfere with his store there.

H. W. Turner is adding a Chalmers automobile delivery van to the equipment, which will help to eliminate all delays in delivery in the early morning and in meeting trains with plant stock. Everything points to a most successful season here, the number of plants shipped out being remarkable.

F. Howard, C. Winsel, J. Dieterich, J. Taylor, H. Kruntz and H. R. Richards

I sold over 35,000 chrysanthemum plants this season on my 1-inch ad in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. Of course that paid me well and I am very pleased. You will hear from me again as soon as I can work up stock.—Frank Wilhelm, R. F. D. No. 6, Los Angeles, Cal., June 13, '14.

met in the store of C. Winsel to finish the arrangements for the Montebello picnic of the Horticultural Society, which is going to be a "hummer." The trade has been liberal in offers of transportation, C. Winsel, Aggeler & Musser Seed Co., the Germain Seed & Plant Co., Howard & Smith and others having already promised to send trucks and automobiles for the purpose.

Trade surely seems to be moving to the south and west. Only a few years ago Howard & Smith, at Ninth and Olive streets, seemed quite out of the business section, but their store is certainly a busy place now. All hands have been on the run with school work, and some elegant work in baskets and bouquets has been turned out.

Preparations are being made by the Germain Seed & Plant Co. to remove its entire nursery business, except the city salesyard, to the new grounds on the Whittier road. The soil at the trial grounds is now in splendid condition and many important trials have been carried out, to true up and prove the excellent strains of flower and vegetable seeds in which the firm specializes. This is an important work in which the Germains are practically pioneers here, having spent a great deal of money in it.

J. Reeves has grand nursery stock out at Beverly Hills and the large new lath house is now complete. Mr. Reeves, I was glad to hear, has much improved in health of late. H. R. Richards.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

The Market.

Green and refreshing as the country around Santa Barbara always is, it is even more beautiful than usual this season, on account of the frequent rains and the absence of hot, sunny weather. Many new places are going up and the older places are looking their best. While the florists say that business has not been exactly rushing, yet there has been a continuous demand that has kept everyone moving. The supply of indoor flowers is never particularly large here, owing to the absence of big ranges for the growing of cut flowers, and most of the stock is shipped in from Los Angeles and San Francisco. But there is a fair showing and the quality is good.

Various Notes.

A splendid new establishment is in course of construction near Montecito, on the Cowles estate. Although an eastern firm is carrying out the landscape work, the superintendent in charge, William Donald, is a man of wide experience both in California and in the east. The work is only in the preparatory stage, but he has already started a nursery in a sheltered part of the grounds and a quantity of young seedlings and other stock are being raised. Mr. Donald has a virgin field to work in—almost too virgin, he says, as he would have liked a little more native timber to begin on, but those who know his capabilities have no fear as to the results.

A. Beverley, of the Mission Oak Nursery, says he has had a good season. His specialty is vegetable plants and roots, though he also grows some cut flowers and has had good success in both lines. He has built a new lath house and carried out several other improvements. Incidentally he mentioned some improvements in the sprinkler business, in which he is also interested, but his plans are not matured as yet.

Joseph Whipple is making additions to his greenhouses and is pulling down some of the glass at his State street place, with a view to centralizing his efforts at the lower plant, on Rancheria street. He is not complaining of lack of business and is showing fine stock in his store.

Mr. Riedel, proprietor of the Southern California Acclimatizing Association, is carrying out a good deal of landscape work, notably the removal of some large old orange trees and other such stock from his place to a neighboring estate. The stock here is always interesting, comprising many varieties.

At the Kentia Nurseries Mr. Verhelle is showing elegant stock of all his specialties. The kentias in all sizes look remarkably clean and good in color. He is interested in a new insecticide, of European origin, I believe, and is putting it on the market after repeated and thorough trials at the nursery.

At the Exotic Nurseries Mr. Lejeune says business is about the average. Many good shipments of the fine stock he grows have been made. His sign reads, "Exotic Nurseries, for Distinctive Plants," and this is amply descriptive.

H. R. Richards.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Carnations are now selling at a lower price than for many years and still there is hardly any demand for them. Sweet peas seem to be the only flowers for which there is much call, and of these there is a good supply. Roses are plentiful and not in great demand. Gladioli are selling fairly well, though more of them are offered than is usual at this season. Several florists have grown some in benches and large quantities of the Colvillei type are being sold. The sale of bedding stock is about over for the season and, even at the low prices prevailing, most growers have too many left over to make the prospects alluring for another year; few of the growers made any money from their bedding stock this season. There were some large funerals again last week, which cleaned up considerable stock.

Rose Society's Show.

The first show of the Pacific Northwest Rose Society was held June 13 and 14, under canvas on a lawn adjoining the Henry building, on Fourth avenue. The competition for prizes was mostly confined to amateurs and many notable stands of roses were exhibited by them, the competition in most instances being keen. The sweepstake prizes were won by fine specimens of Melanie Soupert and Jonkheer J. L. Mock. Mr. Balmer, of Cle Elum, Mr. Sherbrook, of Portland, Ore., and Mr. Tucker, of Portland, were the judges.

Among the trade representatives was J. J. Bonnell, who secured first prizes for the nurserymen's exhibit and for roses, the Seattle Landscape & Nursery Co. being second in each instance. The Seattle Floral Co. gained first award for greenhouse plants; the Burdett Co., second. Rosaia Bros. put up a notable exhibit, an Italian pergola draped with asparagus and orchids, for which they received first honors and a silver cup. Thomas Wylie carried off the premium for hardy perennials.

Various Notes.

Mr. Gill, of Oakland, Cal., and Mr. Howard, of Los Angeles, both rose growers, were in town last week in the interests of their respective establishments.

Mr. Rowe, sales manager for Mrs. L. W. McCoy, was the sole representative of the Seattle trade who visited Portland for the rose show. He reports a good time and generous hospitality from the florists in the Rose City.

T. W.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Aside from commencement exercises and an occasional funeral, there is practically nothing doing in the stores. Business dropped off unusually early this year, owing to the advanced season to a great measure. Carnations are plentiful, but will be so only for a short time, as the benches are rapidly being cleared to make way for the new plants, which will be planted as early as possible. Peculiar weather conditions make it advisable to remove the plants from the field at the earliest date possible. Roses are still plentiful, but badly injured by mildew, with the exception of Hillingdon, which seems to be entirely immune. Orchids are scarce, while valley is plentiful enough to supply the demand for June weddings. Delphiniums, gaillardias, Canterbury bells and coreopsis are in abundance.

Various Notes.

The Holden Floral Co. is cutting a fine lot of America gladioli, which are quickly snapped up by the trade.

J. R. Fuestner, representing the Pine Tree Silk Mills, Philadelphia, was calling on the trade last week.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held Tuesday evening, June 16, in the Masonic Temple. The regular routine business was transacted, in addition to the election of officers. Those elected were: President, F. A. Van Kirk; vice-president, S. W. Walters; treasurer, E. J. Steele; secretary, Hans Niklas; trustees, D. Routledge, J. B. Pilkington and H. Kahn.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Hot weather has struck this market in full force and is a welcome relief from the unusually cold weather which prevailed almost without a break all spring. The weather was so cold, in fact, that the early outdoor roses were practically a failure. Geraniums, cannas and almost all bedding plants have gone back or, at the best, have stood still. The park men are complaining of the amount of replanting which this condition has necessitated.

Outdoor sweet peas, snapdragons and stocks are to be had in good quality and at decidedly reasonable prices. Roses and carnations are in full crop, with little demand. Several batches of Easter lilies from cold storage bulbs are in the market, but meet with no demand. While there have been a good number, probably the usual number, of weddings this June, this season is remarkable in that there have been no really large weddings, from a florist's point of view.

Various Notes.

Graduation exercises at the various schools brought out lively bidding among the florists for decorating and the graduates' corsages. The Spokane Florist Co. received the order for decorations for the North Central High School, while A. J. Burt supplied the corsages. Mr. Burt also supplied the palms and decorations for the Lewis and Clark High School exercises, at the State armory, and Henry E. Reimers supplied the corsages.

The Spencer sweet peas of Hoyt Bros. Co. are probably the best attainable in these flowers. Countess Spencer is especially good.

Olsson & Bernson are planning to get all the enjoyment possible during the hot days. They have rented a cottage for the summer at Newman Lake and are passing around invitations to come and spend a week or two with them. Mr. Olsson is moving into the cottage this week.

YOUNG DRACÆNA PLANTS.

I have a quantity of Dracæna indivisa in 2½-inch pots and should like to know what is the best treatment I can give them and how they should be handled next winter.

E. H. K.

The best method for growing on young plants of Dracæna indivisa during the summer is to plant them out in the open ground in rows, spacing the plants ten or twelve inches apart in the rows and keeping the ground well cultivated throughout the season. If the weather should prove to be extremely dry, the dracænas would be benefited by watering, but unless this is really necessary it is preferable to depend more on cultivation to provide the moisture. The plants may remain outdoors until there is danger of frost, and if planted at once they would have almost three months in which to make their growth. Lift carefully in the autumn, and pot into as small pots as the roots will allow. Water thoroughly and protect from the sun for a few days, after which they may be placed in the full light in a greenhouse with a night temperature of 50 degrees, in which they will keep in good condition for the winter, provided they are not overwatered before the roots get into action.

W. H. T.

Spokane, Wash.—The Spokane Florists' Co. has had its premises equipped by the Armstrong Machinery Co., refrigerating engineers, with a complete cold storage plant for taking care of the display cases. These are piped for a temperature of 48 degrees, controlled by an ammonia compression plant operating on the direct expansion principle. The system does away with the nuisance and expense and irregularity which is incidental to the ice cooling method.

MASTODON PANSY SEED

is grown under conditions absolutely unique to seed growers. To explain:

1. Rigid selection of finest plants in bloom.
2. Beds highly fertilized.
3. Under constant cultivation.
4. Properly irrigated.
5. 200 square inches to each plant.
6. All seed hand-picked.

Every condition decreases quantity, but increases quality. It costs money to grow such seed. New crop now ready. New cut prices. Mastodon Mixed, per ⅛ oz., $1.00; per oz., $7.00. Greenhouse Special Mixed, new, same price.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE Kenilworth Nursery Co., of Chicago, has received permission from the secretary of state, at Springfield, Ill., to increase its capital stock from $7,000 to $25,000.

AS the peony season in Minnesota is considerably later than in the other districts where that flower is extensively grown, D. W. C. Ruff's nurseries at Bald Eagle lake, near St. Paul, had, he estimated, about 100,000 blooms on his plants when he entertained the Men's Garden Club of Ramsey county last week.

AN acre of rhododendrons in bloom on the land of the Bay State Nurseries, at North Abington, Mass., was made of advertising value by the arrangement of drives and walks for the accommodation of visitors. W. H. Wyman, proprietor of the Bay State Nurseries, has 400 acres at Rockland and North Abington in addition to the plant at South Framingham, about half of which is under cultivation. The whole seventy acres at North Abington are planted so as to allow automobilists to drive through and see the growing stock.

PACIFIC COAST ASSOCIATION.

[For a full report of the opening days of the Vancouver meeting of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, discussions, etc., see The Review of June 18, page 64.]

Officers Elected.

San Francisco was selected as the place of meeting in 1915, during the exposition. Officers were elected as follows, the election coming at the close of the convention:

President—John Vallance, Oakland, Cal.

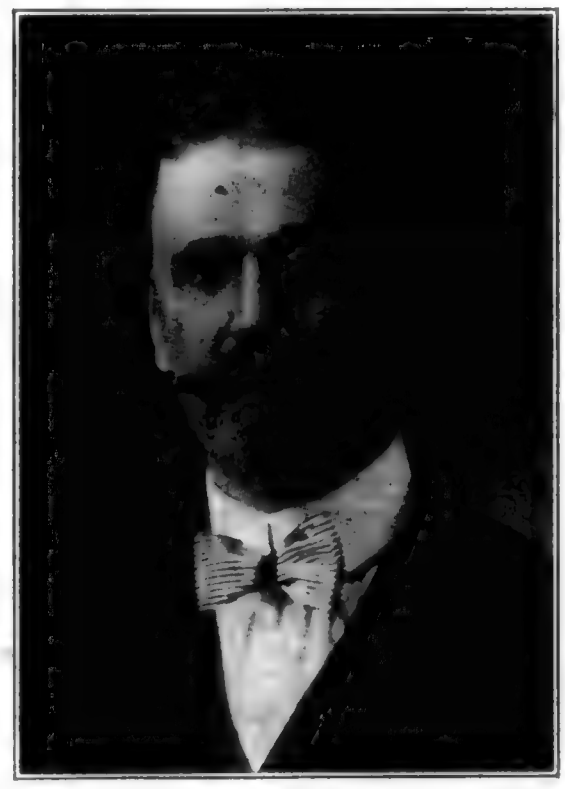
Vice-presidents—California, A. A. Elmer, San Jose; Oregon, C. F. Lansing, Salem; British Columbia, J. Brown, Vancouver; Idaho, E. F. Stephens, Nampa; Montana, D. J. Tighe, Billings; Utah, P. A. Dix, Salt Lake City; Washington, F. A. Wiggins, Toppenish.

Secretary-treasurer—C. A. Tonneson, Tacoma, reëlected.

Executive committee—D. W. Coolidge, Pasadena, Cal.; John Gill, West Berkeley, Cal.; F. H. Wilson, Fresno, Cal.

A Successful Meeting.

The outstanding feature of the meeting, which had an attendance of about 100, was the participation and active interest taken by the horticultural authorities of the states represented in the association. A better mutual understanding was arrived at and it is felt that great progress was made in the matter of uniform legislation and especially in the intelligent enforcement of laws already on the statute books.



WELCH WINS SUIT.

The following report of the decision in the case of E. S. Welch, proprietor of the Mount Arbor Nurseries, at Shenandoah, Ia., before the Montana Supreme court, at Helena, appeared in the Missoulian, of Missoula, Mont., under the date of June 6:

"E. S. Welch, an Iowa nurseryman, can do business in Montana as long as his stock is free from disease, and he does not need any license. The Supreme court so ruled in an opinion by Justice Holloway today, reversing the District court of Yellowstone. Welch appealed because the lower court refused to issue a writ of mandamus preventing State Horticultural Inspector M. L. Dean and Fruit Inspector R. E. Bancroft from interfering with him and also refused to compel them to issue certificates for shipments of nursery stock.

"That provision of the statute requiring dealers in nursery stock to be licensed is called 'one of the curiosities of the law' by the Supreme court. It fails to provide how or by whom the license shall be issued, who shall receive the $25 fee, what disposition shall be made of it and also fails to provide for the $1,000 bond that is required."

You may discontinue our advertisement, as we are through with our spring shipments, but we will give you another order for fall, as THE RESULTS from the one for spring HAVE BEEN VERY SATISFACTORY.—Franklin Davis Nursery Co., Baltimore, Md., May 19, 1914.

J. B. Pilkington.

NURSERY STOCK IMPORTS.

According to government statistics the imports of nursery stock in the last three fiscal years had an invoice value as follows:

Year	Value
1911	$1,094,637
1912	1,251,365
1913	1,379,913

This includes plants, trees and vines; bulbs, formerly included as nursery stock imports, now are classified separately.

THE CLEVELAND CONVENTION.

A Record Gathering.

Most venerable of the commercial organizations in the horticultural trades, the American Association of Nurserymen this week is holding what probably will turn out to be its record meeting, at Cleveland, O. It is the thirty-ninth annual gathering. Last year's convention having been held on the Pacific coast, with only a corporal's guard in the eastern delegation, the present convention probably profits somewhat by the fact that few of those who attend irregularly were present last year. But the advantages of Cleveland as a convention city are strongly emphasized by the unusually large number of buyers present.

The convention is held in the Hollenden hotel, with several rooms on the same floor as the sessions hall devoted to a trade's display in charge of T. B. West, Perry, O. The opening session was called to order Wednesday, June 24, at 10 a. m., Rev. C. S. Harrison, well known nurseryman of York, Neb., delivering an invocation, followed by an address of welcome by Acting Mayor Stockwell.

President Pilkington delivered a fine address from the chair, sketching the work of the year and pointing out the course along which he thinks effort should be directed for the future. He made it apparent that the subject on which the bulk of attention is centered at present is the harassment of widely divergent and unintelligently enforced state laws.

Secretary Hall's report showed receipts from membership and badge book of $3,077.15, all turned over to the treasurer. In concluding his report Mr. Hall asked to be relieved of his office.

Legislation.

Wm. Pitkin, reporting for the committee on legislation east of the Mississippi, said that the year has been uneventful. He emphasized the warning given last year, that the Federal quarantine law holds only menace for the nursery trade, and traced briefly the course of state legislation, the only important new law being the one in New York. The main points of the New York law were sketched, but with the statement that they do not apply to nurserymen outside that state.

Mr. Pitkin also presented a splendid report for a special committee appointed at Portland last year to further the adoption of uniform state legislation. He was able to show excellent progress. Several meetings had been held and committees of the Inspectors' Association, with Prof. J. G. Sanders, of Wisconsin, as chairman, and of the American Pomological Society, with Orlando Harrison, of Berlin, Md., as chairman, are working to the same end. On behalf of the joint committees Prof. Sanders is redrafting a bill that it seems everybody can support and which should get past the state legislatures. The bill as informally drafted provides for a state board of control, one of the members of which shall be a nurseryman actively engaged in the growing of nursery stock, and the board will have the authority necessary to carry out the law and to provide the rules and regulations for its enforcement. The bill will attempt to define the terms "nursery," "nursery stock," "nurseryman," "dealer," "agent," and the "insects" and "plant diseases" included in the provisions of the act. It will provide for the appointment of a chief inspector whose duty it will be to carry out the details of the law and all the rules and regulations authorized by the law, under the direction of the board of control. It will provide for a proper method of appeal to the board from the decisions or orders of the inspector, and will, of course, provide for the inspection of nurseries and other premises and the issuance of certificates to the nurserymen, and for the treatment or destruction of infested or diseased trees and plants, either in nurseries or other premises. It will provide for the issuance of certificates to the nurseryman, to the dealer and to the agent, and to nurserymen located outside of the state, and for a uniform system covering the certification of shipments in state and interstate commerce, and will include proper penalties for violation of the law.

Transportation Matters.

For the transportation committee Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo., presented a detailed report, the situation being summarized in this paragraph:

"With the change in the Southern Classification effective last November nursery stock is now fifth class in car lots east of the Mississippi river, with the exception of Illinois, and seventh class in Illinois and west of the Mississippi. It appears to the transportation committee that the railroads are quietly trying to have the classifications in such shape that when it comes to uniform ratings they will be in position to place nursery stock all over the country, car loads, in fifth class, which would greatly increase the rates west of the Mississippi river. The nurserymen should watch this closely, and, if possible, endeavor to secure seventh class east of the river, and failing in that, possibly secure a compromise on sixth class."

Crown Gall.

E. A. Smith, Lake City, Minn., who has been chairman of the committee on crown gall since it was made one of the standing committees, said that the year has developed little new information. "The P. J. Berckmans Co., in connection with H. P. Stuckey, horticulturist of the Georgia Experimental Station, commenced an experiment two years ago which we believe will be of practical value. Up to this time the trees that were planted with crown gall show favorably with those which were planted without crown gall, the stand in both cases being almost perfect.

"The information relating to root knot and crown gall should be preserved for reference, where in the course of time it could be boiled down and presented so that nurserymen and theorists may arrive at a definite conclusion in regard to the injury of crown gall or root knot, especially upon apple trees, there still being a great diversity of opinion among inspectors and those who are supposed to be authority on matters of this kind."

Other Committee Reports.

Other standing committees called on for their annual reports are as follows:

Legislation, west—Peter Youngers, chairman, Geneva, Neb.

Tariff—J. McHutchison, chairman, New York. Mr. McHutchison is in Australia.

Coöperation with entomologists—L. A. Berckmans, chairman, Augusta, Ga.

Essays and Discussions.

The state vice-presidents were in session early Wednesday afternoon to formulate a list of nominations for next year's officers. Later in the day the convention listened to several essays, programed as follows:

"Some Reminiscences," by Ethan Allen Chase, Riverside, Cal.

"Pecans for Profit," by W. C. Reed, Vincennes, Ind.

"Roses," illustrated with lantern slides, by Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

"Ohio Nurseries," illustrated with lantern slides, by N. E. Shaw, Ohio state inspector, Columbus.

Wednesday evening was given over to the protective associations for their annual meetings.

Thursday and Friday mornings there are to be sessions, but the afternoons and evenings are open for private business or recreation. The papers that remain to be considered are:

"Competition," by John H. Dayton, secretary of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.

"Water," by Jim Parker, Tecumseh, Okla.

"Trade Conditions in the Dominion," by F. Hogg, Toronto, Ont.

"How to Secure a Uniform and Correct System of Nomenclature in Nurserymen's Catalogues," by Prof. E. R. Lake, United States pomologist, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Rochester Lithographic Co., Rochester, N. Y., fruit plates.
Vincennes Nursery Co., Vincennes, Ind., nuts.
Milton Nursery Co., Milton, Ore., cherries.

Many of the exhibits were large, occupying several rooms in the hotel, and the show as a whole was the best the trade has seen in years.

Entertainment.

The entertainment arrangements, in charge of W. B. Cole and the Ohio Nurserymen's Association, include an automobile ride Thursday afternoon, June 25, through the parks and boulevards of the city, after which light refreshments will be served at Shaker lake. Thursday evening, from 8:30 to 10:30, there will be a boat ride on Lake Erie on the steamer State of Ohio. Afternoon entertainments have been prepared for the ladies.

KELSEY NURSERIES BUILD.

The work of excavating for the foundations of the frost-proof building, 140x180, to be erected by the Kelsey Nurseries, at South St. Joseph, Mo., was begun June 10. The approximate cost of the site and building will be $20,000. Later a modern office building will be erected near this site, and all of the company's business will be transferred to South St. Joseph. The new building will be completed in time for the opening of the fall shipping season. It will have a capacity of 200 cars of nursery stock. A private Rock Island siding will extend along the west side of the structure, which will be near the 200-acre tract of trees to the south.

At the meeting of the directors last week, C. J. Ferguson, for several years the company's local manager and lately its secretary-treasurer, was advanced to the vice-presidency, and G. L. Welch, for some time in charge of the plant at Fremont, Neb., was made secretary-treasurer. Mr. Welch will move to St. Joseph to assume active management of the interests there. E. S. Welch, of Shenandoah, Ia., is president of the company, and W. N. Adair, of Lincoln, Neb., a director, is general field superintendent.

Bayonne, N. J.—John Johnson had a satisfactory season both in seeds and plants.

MISSOULA, MONT.

The Market.

Business is good this spring; in fact, it has been so all winter. People out west do not indulge in flowers so heavily as do the inhabitants of the eastern and middle states, yet Missoula for its size, 15,000 to 18,000 population, is a fairly good place for florists. Roses and perennials do well outdoors, but at the same time wild flowers and shrubs are luxuriant and furnish the people with all they want in this line during this season. In summer everything dries up except asters, which grow to perfection.

Various Notes.

C. F. Dallman finds the store a good business getter for the Missoula Nursery Co. This concern now has about 35,000 square feet of glass and seventy-five acres of nursery land.

The Anderson Greenhouses are keeping up to the record for this time of year. Prospects are good for the growth in size of this range, which now comprises about 20,000 feet of glass.

The R. & S. Flower Store reports business good for this season. A. C. A.

Elberon, N. J.—Wm. Bryan finds shore business opening later than usual, with excellent prospects for a busy season.

West End, N. J.—Wm. J. Eisele reports a rather slack season in landscape work, attributing it to various causes. Plant trade is always good.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The week has been a good one in that it saw the break of the prolonged drought. Tuesday, June 16, we had a general rain of over an inch and a half, and we have had two good showers since. The most noticeable change is in the appearance of the outdoor roses and the parks. They have changed for the better as if by magic.

There is no great supply of cut flowers of any kind, but there are plenty for the dull summer trade. The excessive heat has driven many people away from the city earlier than usual. There is little demand except for funeral work, now that the last of the commencements are over. Taking it as a whole, the season closing has been one of the most successful we have had here. Roses are pretty good at present, while carnations are practically gone. Sweet peas are scarce and the quality is not good. The bedding plants the city over have suffered badly, and there is little bloom on any except some of the geraniums. Shrubbery has done well, and there has been little loss from spring-set trees.

The seed trade has had a revival since the rain, there being a good demand for field seeds and tomato and sweet potato plants. Much of the small garden stuff will be replanted.

Various Notes.

The Hillcrest School Farm is planning to put in a private water plant at once. The water will be pumped from White's creek to the top of the hill, where gravity will give sufficient pressure on all parts of the farm. They have finished planting dahlias. They say that gladioli never looked so badly at this season.

J. K. Postma, one of the employees at Lischey's Gardens, has invented a new fumigator for using nicotine in its various forms. Mr. Browne says that it is the best thing that he has ever seen for the purpose. It is understood that Mr. Postma has applied for a patent and will put the device on the market in the near future.

Chas. O. Green, who has finished his first year in the florists' business in Nashville, is planning on enlarging his plant this summer.

The florists' association for this city seems to be an assured fact. It will be a factor that has been needed here for a long time. There is a move on foot for a state association as well and the wide-awake florists should not rest till this is an accomplished fact. When the men of any business look one another in the face and discuss their common problems there is always better feeling on the part of all. F. B.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture.

First volume just off the press. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:

KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.

This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.

This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.

THE GLOSSARY.

This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.

TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.

In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

LANCASTER, PA.

Club Meeting.

President B. F. Barr called the Lancaster County Florists' Club to order on Thursday evening, June 18, with a large attendance of members. Much interest was shown in the arrangements for the annual picnic and the preparations for the fall flower show. The Auditorium has been leased for November 6 and 7. The committee is at work on a schedule of awards, and special attention will be given to amateur exhibits.

Elmer J. Weaver reported for the picnic committee. The picnic will be held at Mount Gretna, July 16. The special train leaves the Pennsylvania depot at 9:40 a. m., and, returning, reaches Lancaster about 8:30 p. m. Mount Gretna is a beautiful mountain resort, with many attractions, and will make an ideal place for the picnic. An invitation is extended to all florists in neighboring counties, and their friends, to join with us in this outing.

The papers of the evening were read by Chas. M. Weaver, of Ronks, whose subject was "Asters," and Ira H. Landis, of Paradise, whose subject was "Gladioli."

H. D. Rohrer exhibited some fine Niagara and America gladiolus blooms.

The committee on coöperative buying is investigating a corrugated box proposition offered by one of the large eastern firms.

The program committee is arranging some special features for the fall meetings, which are being looked forward to with much interest.

Various Notes.

J. H. Linkey, of Mountville, Pa., has placed an order with D. T. Connor, representing the Lord & Burnham Co., for a good sized addition to his present plant. H. K. R.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

There has been no decision as yet from the Court of Appeals in the florists' tax case. We learn from the county clerk that this court has returned no decisions in any of the cases heard here. The judges are said to have been well loaded with cases belonging to their own district and some time is therefore required to dig through the accumulation of local and foreign matter.

Representatives of the Good & Reese Co. and the Leedle Floral Co. are attending the annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen at Cleveland this week. Ge Dale.

GERANIUMS

Careful growers do not depend on the scrubs left over from the bedding season for propagating their next season's stock. They know that it pays them to safeguard the vitality of the geranium stock, just as well as of the carnation or the rose. We have thousands of vigorous young plants which were propagated late for this purpose. Let us supply you from these—they are a bargain at $2.50 per 100, $20.00 per 1000. We have:

HYDRANGEAS

EXTRA LARGE PLANTS IN TUBS AND BARRELS FOR SUMMER FLOWERING

We make a specialty of Hydrangeas, and have a very large stock of plants which have been kept backward and which are now just beginning to set buds. They are in fine shape for shipment and will bloom from June to August. Plants are heavily budded and are exceptionally good value.

We have always made a specialty of large Hydrangeas for summer blooming and have never had such a fine stock as we have at this time. We have a very large stock, especially of the plants in barrels, and can supply carload lots.

Fine plants in tubs.....$2.00 and $3.00 each
Extra fine specimens in half-barrels.....$5.00, $7.50 and $10.00 each

The Market.

Business was exceptionally good last week. The weather has been cool for the last few days and this has helped stock materially. Carnations are shortening up and their quality is greatly improved. Sales are a great deal better and the market is being cleaned up fairly well every day, at higher prices than formerly. Roses are scarce and it is practically impossible to take care of all the orders for them. White roses, especially, have been in great demand, while the supply has been limited and the quality not as good as it should be. There are some fine Russell roses on the market and they seem to be in great demand. In many cases this rose is taking the place of American Beauty.

Sweet peas have shortened up considerably and are bringing top-notch prices, although the quality is not extra good. The peony supply seems to be about past, with the exception of a few late varieties. New Wisconsin ferns are now in the market and are bringing from $1.50 to $2 per thousand. The drop in price is noticeable, as in the early part of the week, owing to the extreme shortage, ferns brought about $4 per thousand. Graduation exercises at the Milwaukee Downer College and at the Normal School helped to clean up the market.

There was a slight frost in this vicinity Friday night, June 19, but no damage has been reported.

Various Notes.

The automobile parade for Ford cars, June 20, was well patronized by some of Milwaukee's leading florists. Mrs. Baumgarten, of the Stephenson building, had her new Ford truck decorated with excellent taste for the occasion.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Fred G. Wheaton, formerly of this city, but for many years of South Easton, Mass., died there recently. He was an authority on botany and frequently lectured on the subject before the Newport Horticultural Society.

William Koehler, of Wadley & Smythe, New York, was in the city early last week, arranging for the opening of the firm's branch in this city.

A. T. Bunyard, of New York, was here last week, opening his branch store, on Bellevue avenue. Mr. Bunyard has just returned from Europe, where he attended the golden wedding of his parents, at Hove, England.

THE GENUS IRIS

By WILLIAM RICKATSON DYKES

With 48 colored plates and 30 line drawings in the text

This magnificent work brings together the available information on all known species of Iris. The most striking feature of the book is the life-size colored plates, reproduced from originals drawn from living plants—making it a volume of remarkable beauty as well as of great scientific importance.

254 pages, demi folio, half morocco, $37.50. Postage extra (weight 11 lbs. 7 oz.)

NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.
Here are three you ought to grow.
ALICE SALOMON—Pure white, larger than Chadwick, easy to grow, ready to cut Oct. 10 to 25. R. C., $15.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $17.00 per 100.
GOLDEN SALOMON—A sport of Alice Salomon, the same in every respect except its color, which is as its name implies—a golden yellow. R. C., $20.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $22.00 per 100.
CHIEFTAIN—A pink, described by E. G. Hill Co. as a Pink Bonnaffon, ready to cut about 10 days earlier than Enguehard. R. C., $12.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $14.00 per 100.
We believe the above mums are valuable additions to the list of commercial varieties, and recommend them as such.

CYCLAMEN.

200,000 GIANT FLOWERING CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS AND BLOOMING PLANTS.

For the last 16 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five-petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first prize at the Cleveland show and first and second at Toledo, early November, when blooming cyclamen were scarce.

STRONG AUGUST SOWN SEEDLINGS, once transplanted, $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

Cash with order. Cultural directions with all orders.
C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, Defiance, O.

CYCLAMEN GIGANTEUM is one of the best paying winter plants in the florist trade. Grown from seed sown August, 1913. We only send out a plant when it is ready for a move up. The stock we are now sending out is well rooted, has fine bright foliage and will prove to be a money-maker. We are now selling only the stock in 4-in. pots that is ready for 5 and 6-in., $20.00 hundred for any amount. Have a trial shipment come now, so you can get what you need. Can ship in clay or waterproof pots. Cash with order.

NEED FOR NEW VARIETIES.

committee has spent a good deal of time in examining and describing kinds that might much better have been confined to the originator's own premises, but I think those ddys are over, and it is just by setting up a high standard that we can prevent them from recurring.

"Now, I know that the professional man often feels that he cannot be bothered with a batch of seedlings every year—they take too much attention. That may be true for him, but certainly for the amateur, who does not have to look to his garden as a source of profit, it is always possible to set aside a corner for the 'youngsters,' and the thrill with which the peony enthusiast sees his first blooms open every year is much intensified if there are even a couple of dozen new ones to be watched as they gradually develop their beauty. Only it cannot be too often said that if he will avoid disappointments he must be particular as to the source of his seed and take only the best."

ANTS ON PEONIES.

Will you kindly tell us how to keep red ants from molesting peony plants? They prevent the plants from blooming.
S. F. S.

The ants will not harm your peonies and it is a mistake to blame them for the plants flowering poorly. Frequent inquiries are received as to how to get rid of them on peonies when the plants are in flower. They do no harm whatever to the buds or flowers, but are attracted by the juices exuded. To get rid of ants, water the ground about their haunts with Vermine, one part to 300 parts of water, or poison them with powdered sugar to which has been added some finely powdered potassium cyanide. The latter is a deadly poison and must be handled with care.
C. W.

Aberdeen, S. D.—R. Strohmeier, who recently sold his store to Miss Elizabeth Youreman and Mrs. Minnidelle Kronenberger, will devote himself to growing carnations and developing roots and bulbs. He is contemplating a considerable enlargement of his range to accommodate this business.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The annual rose show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at the Nassau Country Club Tuesday, June 16. Owing to the international polo match being on the same day, the attendance was not so large as in the two previous years. There was an excellent display of roses, sweet peas, perennials, vegetables and fruits, but the entries were not quite so many this year, as a great many of the best hybrid tea and tea roses were past perfection, the drying winds and hot sun of the last five or six days having been extremely hard on roses. Still there was a good display.

James MacDonald was manager of the show, and the judges were James Duthie and Fred Kirkham, of Oyster Bay, and William Gray, of Glen Cove. The principal prize-winners were J. W. Everitt, gardener for J. T. Pratt; J. Adler, gardener for H. S. Ladew; James McCarthy, gardener for W. E. Kimball; Henry Gaut, gardener for H. L. Pratt; James Gladstone, gardener for Paul Dana; W. Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

Present conditions in the coal business tend still further to confirm the opinion that has been uttered and reuttered by students of the market during the last few weeks, to the effect that the lowest level has been reached and passed in the coal business and in other lines of trade, and that the nation's commerce is now on the up grade, though the rate of upward motion will naturally be slow until the needed impetus is gradually acquired. Perhaps the situation as it now exists cannot be better described than by the following quotation from the Black Diamond:

"The one impression which seems to be gaining ground the country over is that the low point of depression has been reached and that from now business will begin to move in the opposite direction. There are two or three bases for this belief. The first is the assurance that crops will be big. The second is a definite opinion that railroads are going to get a certain increase in rate, even though not the full measure of advance asked for. The third is that stocks everywhere are so low that any increase in buying anywhere will automatically bring an increase in production. The fourth is that buying has been delayed so long in many necessities that ordinary business this fall will demand a rush movement and consequently there will be a shortage of cars. The real increase in business, taken together with the psychological effect of a car shortage, will give a definite impression that business is distinctly improved, and this is expected to carry trade off the dead center on which it has been for the last few months.

"The lake trade has been peculiarly quiet. Reports recently compiled show that up to June 1 the movement of iron ore down the lakes was just about fifty per cent of what it was last year, and 1913 was not a record-breaker. This has meant, of course, a small supply of boats for the upward movement of coal, and this put a blockade upon coal movement to an almost unprecedented extent. Some improvement in that direction, however, is in sight.

"There is a definite impression in the Chicago coal trade that the low point in the depression has been reached and passed. The first indication is that buying of coal has taken on greater activity. Also prospects are distinctly better. The smokeless coal trade is fairly satisfactory. Apartment houses are beginning to appreciate that deliveries of coal can be made now most cheaply by the retail dealers, and as a consequence they are buying. This buying is ahead of what was the case last year. This movement is solidifying the smokeless coal market. Last year the new smokeless price circular was considered uncertain for a long time because the apartment houses were waiting for a reduction in the retail price, which they tried to force. The smokeless market last year did not become firm until the real estate agencies began to buy. This year those agencies apparently expect no reduction and consequently are buying at current retail prices. This is having the effect of strengthening the wholesale prices also. Even so, a good deal of price cutting has been done by small producers. Also, a lot of low volatile coal has been sold here in substitution for smokeless. There is still a good deal of mine-run coal for sale at $1 per ton, but this has not altered the purpose of the major companies to get $1.25, which is the circular figure.''

PIPING A VIRGINIA HOUSE.

I have a greenhouse 30x30 and wish to know the best method of piping it in order to heat to 50 degrees in zero weather. The house is to be used for a general line of bedding plants and florists' stock. I intend to increase the length of the house as rapidly as possible.

I have a vertical steam boiler, six feet in height and thirty inches in diameter, with fifty inch and three tubes (?), which I wish to convert into a hot water boiler.

The house runs north and south, is twelve feet high to the ridge, and has concrete walls two and one-half feet high, with two feet of glass in the side walls. There are three 5-foot benches and two 3½-foot side benches. The boiler is in the potting shed, 10x30, across the north end of the house. Please give the size of pipes to be used and tell me what length of house thirty feet wide this boiler will carry. J. L.

The letter states that the boiler has a height of six feet, but it is not clear whether that is the total height of the boiler or the length of the tubes. We infer that the former is the case, but if the tubes are six feet in length, the capacity of the boiler would be about fifty per cent greater than the estimate given.

For a house 30x30 feet, with two feet of glass in each of the side walls, we would use five 2½-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns. Place one flow on each plate, another at each purlin and the other three feet below the ridge. Two of the return pipes could be placed under each bench. Give all of the pipes a slope of one inch in fifteen feet and connect the expansion tank to the highest point of the main flow.

The letter states that the heater is a vertical boiler ''with fifty inch and three tubes.'' If that means that the boiler has fifty 3-inch tubes, and the tubes are four feet long, it would probably handle about 1,500 or 1,600 square feet of radiating surface, but I would consider it better to limit the amount of radiation attached to such a boiler to 1,200 square feet. This would heat a house 30x120 feet to 60 degrees in zero weather.

The Market.

The cool weather of the last week was probably the cause of increased business, as trade in nearly all lines showed a considerable improvement. Stock of all kinds found a ready market; good roses were especially in demand, with a rather insufficient supply. Some good carnations are still coming in and are finding a ready sale. Lilies are still plentiful, with a fair demand.

Greens of all kinds are now to be had in any quantity, but the demand is only fair. The quantity of cut stock is decreasing, but that which is coming in is of fairly good quality. Outdoor peas are still holding up well, despite the exceptionally dry weather. The scarcity of stock was evident from the absence of the street merchants on Saturday. None of them were at their usual haunts in the shopping district, which speaks well for the general clean-up in the wholesale houses. Some late peonies were seen, but were not in good demand.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was called to order by President Johnston, at its rooms, Florists' Exchange building, June 22. The weather was rather warm, but there was a good attendance. The subject of the annual outing was discussed. It was decided to hold it at Beull's park, formerly the grounds of the Baltimore Pleasure Club, on Monday, July 20. A committee was appointed, consisting of F. C. Bauer, C. H. Wagner, James Boone, John Nuth, James Glass, A. G. Fiedler and William F. Ekas, to make arrangements for the affair. The club donated a substantial sum and each member attending will be assessed 50 cents. The committee will report at the next meeting of the club.

Various Notes.

E. A. Seidewitz is cutting some good Maryland roses at his greenhouses near Arlington. Business at the Annapolis branch has been quite satisfactory this season.

Mrs. Mary Lancaster, who for many years conducted a florists' store on Frederick avenue, near Irvington, is selling her stock and fixtures and preparing to retire from business.

While riding a motorcycle along the Hillen road June 16, Park Superintendent James W. Boone and Mrs. Boone met with an accident. Two dogs ran directly in front of the machine, turning the motor on its side and dragging the riders some distance. Mr. Boone got off with bruises, but Mrs. Boone was painfully cut and has been confined to her bed since the accident.

J. J. Perry, manager of the Pennock-Meehan store, has been absent from the city, attending the funeral of his father, who died at Frederick, Md., June 21.

There has been a good demand this spring for bedding plants and window box stock, but the season is now about over, and while most florists report a good season, they all have some good stock on hand. The season was a rather short one, only lasting about four weeks. The majority of florists attribute the sudden cessation of trade to the long drought we are now experiencing. Stock which has been planted is hardly any larger than when first set out, even though it has been kept watered, and conditions are exceedingly unfavorable to all outdoor plants. W. F. E.

PORTCHESTER, N. Y.

Every Florist Should See These Heating Systems

Carnation Range of Mr. Nic Zweifel, North Milwaukee, Wis.
Heated by No. 14 and No. 15 Kroeschell Boilers and Generator System. Greenhouses each 27 feet by 100 feet. A. Dietsch Co. Construction.

THIS plant is heated by 2 inch return piping system. The product of the Zweifel plant is known throughout the west for its fine quality. Mr. Zweifel has used different kinds of boilers—his experience with boilers would be valuable to any florist. As for the Kroeschell, he says: "I think the Kroeschell boilers are the best boilers a florist can buy."

Rose Range of Riverbank Greenhouses, Geneva, Ill. Charles McCauley, Supt.
Heated by No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler, Kroeschell 2-inch Return Piping System and Kroeschell Generator. Greenhouses each 28 feet by 200 feet. Garland Construction.

"Your No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler heats our entire range. We maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in our greenhouses, and this temperature is easily maintained even in the very coldest weather. Your boiler has given entire satisfaction. It is the best and quickest heater I have ever used or seen. I have found the boiler very economical in the use of fuel and labor, as it is not necessary to use the best coal, and any labor will do for a fireman. The Kroeschell Piping System with Generator works like a charm. When I want to sulphur, I can heat the water up to 230 to 240 degrees and I get the same results as from steam. Seeing is believing—all Growers are invited to call. Any further information concerning boiler and piping system will be gladly given. We had a large number of Florists at our place recently, and they all thought we had the finest equipped plant in the business. In speaking of the Kroeschell Boiler as an economical greenhouse boiler I cannot say too much. Personally I have had the pleasure or misfortune to fire nearly every make of G. H. Boiler on the market and I can safely say the Kroeschell is the best of them all."

grounds of the Portchester hospital. A tent was erected directly over a fine pool of water containing a pair of fountains, which are a permanent feature of the grounds. This formed a fine setting for the exhibition. The finest of roses and sweet peas by the thousands were in evidence, as well as flowers from hardy shrubs, perennials and herbaceous plants. A special feature was the table decorations, showing fine examples of the gardener's knowledge of decorative art. There were six tables and each could be considered an artistic success. A dainty conception of pink and white sweet peas in combination with adiantum won the first prize, and was arranged by Joseph Lovie, of Mamaroneck, N. Y. The second prize was won by Fred Lagerstam, of Greenwich, N. Y., with a rambler rose arrangement. The third prize was carried off by James Linane, of Rye, N. Y., with a well arranged decoration of Deutzia candidissima in combination with Heuchera sanguinea.

Several novelties of recent introduction were on exhibition, prominent among them being the new hardy shrub, Salvia Greggii, and two hardy nymphæas, N. Escarboucle and N. Attraction. Each is of good form and fine coloring, the former crimson carmine with orange center, the latter deep crimson with orange center. The nymphæas were in the collection of Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, which was awarded a certificate of merit. John Hay was in attendance. Geo. E. Baldwin Co., of Mamaroneck, made a fine table display of orchid plants in bloom, which was awarded a certificate of merit. This firm was represented by Charles Adcock. The Julius Roehrs Co., of Rutherford, N. J., represented by Frank Scaley, also had a fine display of or-

"RICHARDSON" GREENHOUSE BOILERS

Were first put on the market many years ago. They were quickly recognized as possessing special adaptability to greenhouse requirements and have been sold to florists in steadily increasing numbers as the greenhouse industry has expanded.

A boiler must be a good boiler—and made by a strong, dependable manufacturer—to have withstood the stress of competition for so many years.

The "Richardson" line has developed with the needs of the trade. The "Richardson" now is made in sixty sizes, round, end feed, side feed—all sectional—for hot water and steam. They are low priced, but, better yet, they are fuel savers.

PLANTLIFE

PLANTLIFE has several advantages over liquid insecticides on the market. Containing refined tobacco dust it can be used to mix with the soil, acting as an excellent fertilizer, at the same time destroying worms and insects in the ground before they have a chance to reach the plant.

PLANTLIFE has been found very effective in ridding greenhouses of insects by dusting on plants. When dry, use for dusting about once a week.

Put up in bulk for greenhouse men; in packages for retail trade.

Bag of 100 lbs., $3.50.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

The market remains quiet and stock is still coming in plentifully. The weather is cool and outside stock holds up well.

The retailers who handle insecticides are doing a good business in that line. Prof. A. S. Ruggles, assistant state entomologist, says insect pests are unusually plentiful this year, and many complaints from growers are received daily, with requests for expert advice. Among the most troublesome insects at this time are the ash-gray pinion moth and the cankerworm moth. Beetles of various kinds, as well as aphis, are numerous.

Various Notes.

Holm & Olson recently had an interesting window display of insecticides. The insect pests, such as army worms, aphis, moths and beetles, were shown in an enlarged form and in various stages of development by means of colored drawings, which also showed the effects of the pests on the plants.

L. L. May, of L. L. May & Co., spent last week on business in Canada.

N. C. Hanson spent a few days in Wisconsin on business.

Munich & Wahler, the west side florists, report an excellent spring business. They are cutting some exceptionally fine Kaiserin roses and their carnations are holding out well. They intend to remodel their entire place this summer.

Ernest Holmstrom, of 815 La Fond street, has sold his greenhouse business to Nyberg Bros. Mr. Holmstrom expects to build greenhouses again as soon as he procures the sort of location he wants.

The greatest surprise the local florists have had for some time was sprung by G. D. Dysinger, secretary of Holm & Olson, Inc., when he appeared at his desk Monday morning, June 22, accompanied by a box of cigars, and announced that he had taken unto himself a helpmate in the person of Mary M. Chalmers, of this city. The marriage took place June 20. Mr. and Mrs. Dysinger will be at home to their friends after July 1, at 176 Summit avenue.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.

The Market.

Aside from graduations, funerals and a few weddings, there is not much business. Stock is plentiful and the growers at times are not able to dispose of all their cuts. The extremely hot weather has forced in about everything that would or could bloom. Carnations are getting small and are evidently nearing the end. Of good sweet peas there is a shortage. Growers are commencing to throw out the old carnation stock.

Various Notes.

Elmer King, of Attleboro, Mass., had a busy week and reports conditions about the same as last year.

The management of the S. S. Kresege Co., of Pawtucket, has forbidden the sale of flowers over the 10-cent limit, as it is contrary to the established rule of the store.

The town of Hebronville lost by fire a number of trees planted along the state highway; the oil used on the road was ignited in some unknown manner and scorched the trees.

Among the local winners in the annual show held by the Rhode Island Horticultural Society in Providence recently were Neil Ward, of Lonsdale, and Mrs. M. E. Jenks, of Saylesville. Mr. Ward received first prize for the best mixed pansies and awards of merit for stocks and Jack roses. Mrs. Jenks won first prize for German iris and first prize for sweet-williams.

Albert Warner, of the Pleasant View Greenhouses, reports a busy week.

The nurserymen are suffering on account of the stinginess on the part of the clouds, which refuse to given even a little rain. B.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—William Cunningham has sold the site of his greenhouses on Robinson road and will tear down the buildings. He will discontinue this part of his business.

Salina, Kan.—On the seven acres of land which he recently purchased, on Delaware, Stapler and Gypsum avenues, Edward Tatro has started work on a range of greenhouses, 125x125 feet. The excavation of the cellar, in which will be placed one 50-horse-power and one 40-horse-power steam boiler, has already been begun. The new range will be devoted exclusively to flowers for the wholesale trade.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The vagaries of the weather have been interesting during the last few weeks. June 8 the temperature went up to 116 degrees in the greenhouses, and the heat was so intense that for the first time in many years several of the men were compelled to leave work for the day. Last week cool, windy weather set in, and a record midsummer temperature was established—32 degrees. The results in the immediate neighborhood were somewhat unfortunate and in the surrounding parts of the country the loss will be seriously felt.

Business at the Dale Estate continues good, but aside from Beauties, orchids and gladioli the stock is nothing to boast of. Sweet peas are practically over indoors, and it will be three or four weeks before the outside blooms will be ready for the market. There is no building going on here at present, but a good deal of repairing is being done. Fred Cox, assistant night shipper, left for England on a three months' trip last week, and Thomas Dale journeyed out to Vancouver with the Brampton lacrosse team, who have gone west in an endeavor to lift the famous Mann cup.

The ad convention in Toronto brings to that city between 4,000 and 5,000 delegates this week from all over America, as well as representatives from other parts of the world, so that the florists in that city are anticipating a particularly busy week and may find stock somewhat difficult to secure.

W. G. P.

Duluth, Minn.—J. J. Le Borious has been cleaning out his stock at retail at cut prices, in order to get it down to the lowest point possible while he is making the extensive improvements on his place that he has planned to occupy his time this summer.

Hambleton, W. Va.—H. E. Hoefner states that business has been the best ever this season. He has had a fine cut flower trade, disposing of all the roses and carnations he could grow, and during June business in bedding plants has been excellent, stock having been pretty well sold out by June 15.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

The Market.

Delightful weather prevailed last week. We had a white frost two nights, when the thermometer registered below 40 degrees. The weather bureau reported that these were the two coldest June nights in forty years.

The cut flower business is in the unsatisfactory condition customary at this time of the year. Extra fine stock is in great demand, with the supply falling short. Roses are showing the effects of the warm weather. The retailers are now finishing up their wedding orders, after which they expect to lie back on their oars and rest for the season. Plantsmen are making an effort to clean up the remainder of their stock. The growers are busy getting their roses planted and some are still planting chrysanthemums.

Various Notes.

Walter A. Faulk, of the Allegheny Market, was married June 18 to Miss Stella M. Blanerman. Mr. and Mrs. Faulk will be at home after July 21.

Ed. Weaver, chief decorator for Randolph & McClements, reports that he has had the busiest season in his experience and says he will retire with his family to the mountains to recuperate for next fall.

Wm. Loew, who is well known to the trade, has the sincere sympathy of all in the loss of his sister, Miss Emma Loew. Miss Loew had kept house for her brothers, William and John, since the death of their mother years ago.

Wm. Cummins, of Steubenville, O., was a visitor last week. Clarke.

Batavia, Ill.—Henry Wenberg, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., is erecting a $4,000 residence on one of his lots at South Harrison and Morton streets, near the company's plant.

Cliftondale, Mass.—In addition to his other crops, William Sim has this season grown a crop of pansy seed for Arthur T. Boddington. Mr. Sim has for years been at work on his strain of pansies, growing only flowers for market, the seed never before having been sold.

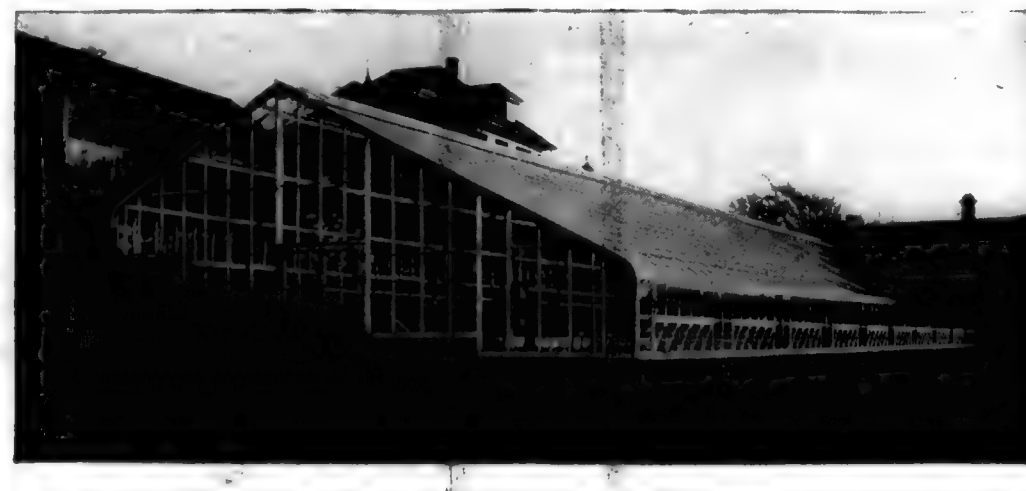
The President Points Out Some Points About Our Superior Way of Erecting Houses



WHEN you can keep your best men at work inside the factory, when work's a bit slack outside, then you can keep an organization of skilled men at all times. That's our way of doing it.

We have a skilled foreman for each branch of the work. We can send anywhere from two to forty men, just as a job demands.

But when a job's done, it's not considered by me really done until carefully inspected by a superintendent. If anyone can find fault with a job he can, and furthermore, he generally does. Anything that isn't right he sees to it's being made right.

It costs a lot of money to have a superintendent continually on the go inspecting our work, but it's one of the many things that we do that makes it possible for you to depend on depending on Hitchings.

And bear in mind that "we go anywhere for business."

AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY

Sixth annual exhibition and business meeting of national organization, held in New York, June 27 and 28, surpasses all previous efforts

DESPITE the extreme heat, the effects of which were apparent in a number of the exhibits, the annual exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, held in the Museum of Natural History, New York, June 27 and 28, was a complete success and, in the opinion of many, was of a size and quality not before reached in these exhibitions. In attendance and interest it was likewise ahead of previous displays.

The number of exhibitors was larger than at any show in former years and the competition strong in nearly all the classes. The weather conditions, which ruined the president's display two years ago, served him an ill turn again this year. Mr. Sim's exhibit, containing 15,000 blooms and thirty-five varieties, would have been a splendid one had it not been delayed on the road and subjected to the severe heat. Notwithstanding its late arrival and condition, the display was set up and occupied one entire wing of the museum, which had been reserved for this exhibit. President Sim took his disappointment philosophically, as usual, and the judges awarded him the society's silver medal.

Seedsmen's Classes.

The quality of the exhibit staged by W. Atlee Burpee & Co. was splendid and took the silver cup offered by C. C. Morse & Co. for the finest display. A. T. Boddington was a close second in this class, and took first prize for the largest and most artistic arrangement. These two firms were the only contenders in the open classes and both were strong. The awards made were:

For the finest display, open to seed trade only—W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, first; A. T. Boddington, New York, second.

For the largest and most artistic arrangement—A. T. Boddington, gold medal.

For the largest and most meritorious exhibit—W. Atlee Burpee & Co., first.

Retailers' Showing Strong.

The retail florists added materially to the artistic success of the exhibition and their displays were greatly admired by the large crowds of visitors. The retailers sent fine specimens of their art, in the shape of wedding bouquets, table decorations, baskets, corsage bouquets and hampers. The table arrangements and brides' bouquets were especially good. Those who sent work were Max Schling, G. E. M. Stumpp, A. T. Bunyard, Young & Nugent, C. A. Dards and A. Kottmiller. The awards were as follows:

Table decoration—Max Schling, New York, first; Alfred T. Bunyard, New York, second.

Mantel decoration—Max Schling, first; A. Kottmiller, New York, second.

Bride's bouquet—A. T. Bunyard, first; A. Kottmiller, second.

Hamper of sweet peas—Max Schling, first.

Corsage—Max Schling, first; A. T. Bunyard, second.

Boutonniere—A. T. Bunyard, first.

Private Gardeners' Classes.

The gardeners' exhibits formed a large part of the show, as usual, and came in for a large part of the prizes. The feature of the show in this section was William Gray's display of twenty-five vases of twenty-five varieties, which won the A. T. Boddington challenge silver cup. The varieties shown by Mr. Gray were as follows:

Alfrida Pierson
Lady Evelyn Eyre
Charles Foster
Empress Eugene
Martha Washington
Mrs. C. W. Breadmore
Prince George
Nubian
Queen of Norway
Dorothy Tennant
Wedgewood

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

The Julius Roehrs Co., of Rutherford, N. J., had a handsome bank of orchids of many varieties, which was given a certificate of merit. Similar awards were made to Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., for a fine collection of delphiniums; to John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, N. Y., for a display of lilies and Japanese iris, and to the Knight & Struck Co., of New York, for its exhibit of achimenes and iris.

The Business Session.

A fair attendance gathered in the Museum of Natural History Saturday afternoon, June 27, for the business meeting of the society. F. R. Pierson delivered the address of welcome, to which Arthur Kirby responded, in place of Wm. H. Duckham, designated for this office on the program. President Sim had no written address to present, but spoke briefly extempore. After the secretary and treasurer had presented their reports, F. G. Cuthbertson read an invitation to the society to hold its 1915 meeting at San Francisco, in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition. This invitation was referred to the executive committee for consideration.

Display of Arthur T. Boddington, New York, at the Exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society.

When the time came for the nomination and election of officers President Sim gracefully declined renomination and Lester L. Morse, of San Francisco, was unanimously chosen to succeed him. The remaining officers were reëlected, and William Sim was elected to fill the vacancy on the executive committee.

Prof. A. C. Beal then gave an interesting report on the society's trial grounds at Cornell University and received high commendation from A. T. Boddington and F. G. Cuthbertson in the discussion that followed. In this Maurice Fuld and Arthur Kirby also took part, and the general opinion was that the tests should be continued. Mr. Cuthbertson read his paper on "Sweet Peas: Past, Present and Future," which appears in this issue of The Review, and was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. The society adjourned to attend the banquet to the judges at 6:30 p. m. at the Hotel Endicott.

The Banquet.

The banquet proved to be a most enjoyable affair. After the excellence of the menu had been put to the test, A. T. Boddington assumed the role of toastmaster. F. R. Pierson responded for the Horticultural Society of New York and predicted a great future for the Sweet Pea Society, characterizing this year's exhibition as the best ever shown in this country. George Kerr, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., responded for the judges, and President Sim for the American Sweet Pea Society. F. G. Cuthbertson, speaking for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, expressed the hope that the society might meet in San Francisco next year, dwelling upon the assured success of the world's fair there.

Joseph A. Manda spoke for the New York Florists' Club and told of the success of the Newport show, of which he was manager. George Stumpp and Robert Koehne responded for the retail florists, whose displays did much toward making the show an artistic success. For the gardener, W. Angus spoke and J. W. Everitt for the amateur.

The seedsmen's advocate was Arthur Kirby, of Peter Henderson & Co. J. H. Dick responded for the press and J. H. Pepper for the ladies. Harry A. Bunyard, the hard-working secretary of the society, whose work was so large a factor in the success of the meeting, and Harry Turner, who, as manager of the exhibition, proved to be the right man in the right place, were also called upon to speak.

The Attendance.

The judges of the exhibition who were in attendance at the banquet were: Prof. A. C. Beal, chairman, Ithaca, N. Y.; F. G. Cuthbertson, San Francisco; C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., Geo. W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.; Charles Knight, Oakdale, L. I.; Percy Hicks, Oceanic, N. J.; Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.; Arthur Herrington, Madison, N. J.; John Everitt, Glen Cove, L. I.; Thomas Murray, Tuxedo, N. Y.; Robert Koehne, New York City, and W. Angus, Chapinville, Conn.

Others whose attendance at the banquet was noted were: F. R. Pierson, Wm. Sim, A. T. Boddington, H. A. Bunyard, Harry Turner, Samuel Burnett, W. H. Waite, Arthur M. Kirby, John Canning, D. Gray, A. Watkins, F. J. Michell, Jr., A. G. Campkin, Phil. Freud, Chas. W. Ashmead, J. W. Lynes, J. A. Manda, George Stumpp, J. Carman, J. H. Pepper, J. H. Dick, A. F. Faulkner and J. Austin Shaw.

No register was kept of the visitors at the exhibition, but in addition to those noted above, the following visitors from out of town were noted: Chas. Russell, Tarrytown, N. Y.; J. Robinson, Roslyn, Pa.; Henry Gaut, Glen Cove, L. I.; Wm. Robinson, Jenkintown, Pa.; F. R. Cooper, Wellington, New Zealand.

SECRETARY BUNYARD'S REPORT.

Right at this spot, six years ago almost to a day, July 7, 1909, the American Sweet Pea Society was born. At that time I said, "The Sweet Pea Society should be a success, must be a success." I leave it to you that at least we are on our way, if we take the trouble to look over the exhibits now shown here in this building, perhaps the finest general exhibit of sweet peas ever shown in this country, if not in the world. Nearly sixty exhibitors and over 2,000 vases of sweet peas, besides table arrangements and other decorative features.

We have with us today nearly all our charter members, with perhaps one great exception, the gentleman who helped us to organize our society when we needed all the moral support that could be brought to bear. I allude to the late Prof. W. C. Craig, who was indeed a gentleman and a scholar and who organized our trial grounds at Cornell University, which today are under the efficient guidance of Prof. A. C. Beal.

The following bulletins have been issued up to date: No. 319, "Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas;" No. 320, "Culture of the Sweet Pea," and No. 342, "Classification of Garden Varieties of the Sweet Pea," all of which have been sent to the horticultural press and to our members in good standing; today they are standard works.

Importance of Sweet Pea.

Some have said, "Why is the American Sweet Pea Society?" This is ambiguous and not exactly good grammar.

In the cut flower market the sweet pea stands third as an all-around flower and has been a money-maker for the grower, commission merchant and retail florist alike. You cannot gainsay that it is one of the most democratic and popular flowers of today. The seedsman, too, will tell you he sells more sweet pea seed today, in bulk and in value, than any other flower seed. Therefore, the sweet pea is of importance to us all. Then why not a society to advance this beautiful and ever-increasingly popular flower?

In the last ten years there have been great strides and advancement made in the sweet pea. From the grandiflora type has evolved the Spencer type, the winter-flowering grandifloras and now

Twenty five sprays, picotee edged—A. A. Mason, David S. Miller, gardener, Tuxedo, N. Y., first, with Elsie Herbert; Mrs. A. Crane, Stamford, Conn., second; Mrs. W. B. Leeds, third.

Twenty five sprays, striped or flaked red or rose Mrs. W. B. Leeds, first, with America Spencer, Giraud Foster, second; Mrs. Robt. Winthrop, third.

Twenty five sprays, striped or flaked blue or purple Mrs. W. B. Leeds, first, with Loyalty; Mrs. Moses Taylor, second, Giraud Foster, third.

Twenty five sprays, any bicolor other than picotee edged Mrs. W. B. Leeds, first, with Mrs. Cuthbertson; Mrs. Robt. Winthrop, second; Mrs. Moses Taylor, third.

Twenty five sprays, any color other than above—Giraud Foster, first, with Senator Spencer; Mrs. Robt. Winthrop, second; Mrs. Moses Taylor, third.

Exhibitor taking the most first prizes—Mrs. W. B. Leeds, the F. R. Pierson cup.

The Garden Magazine Achievement medal was awarded to Mrs. W. B. Leeds for the finest vase of sweet peas in Section G.

Twelve sprays, white—J. F. Raddin, Cliftondale, Mass., first, with King White; Mrs. J. M. Fuller, Bustins Island, Me., second.

Twelve sprays, light pink—J. G. Raddin, first, with Blanche Ferry Spencer; Walter D. Blossom, Cliftondale, Mass., second.

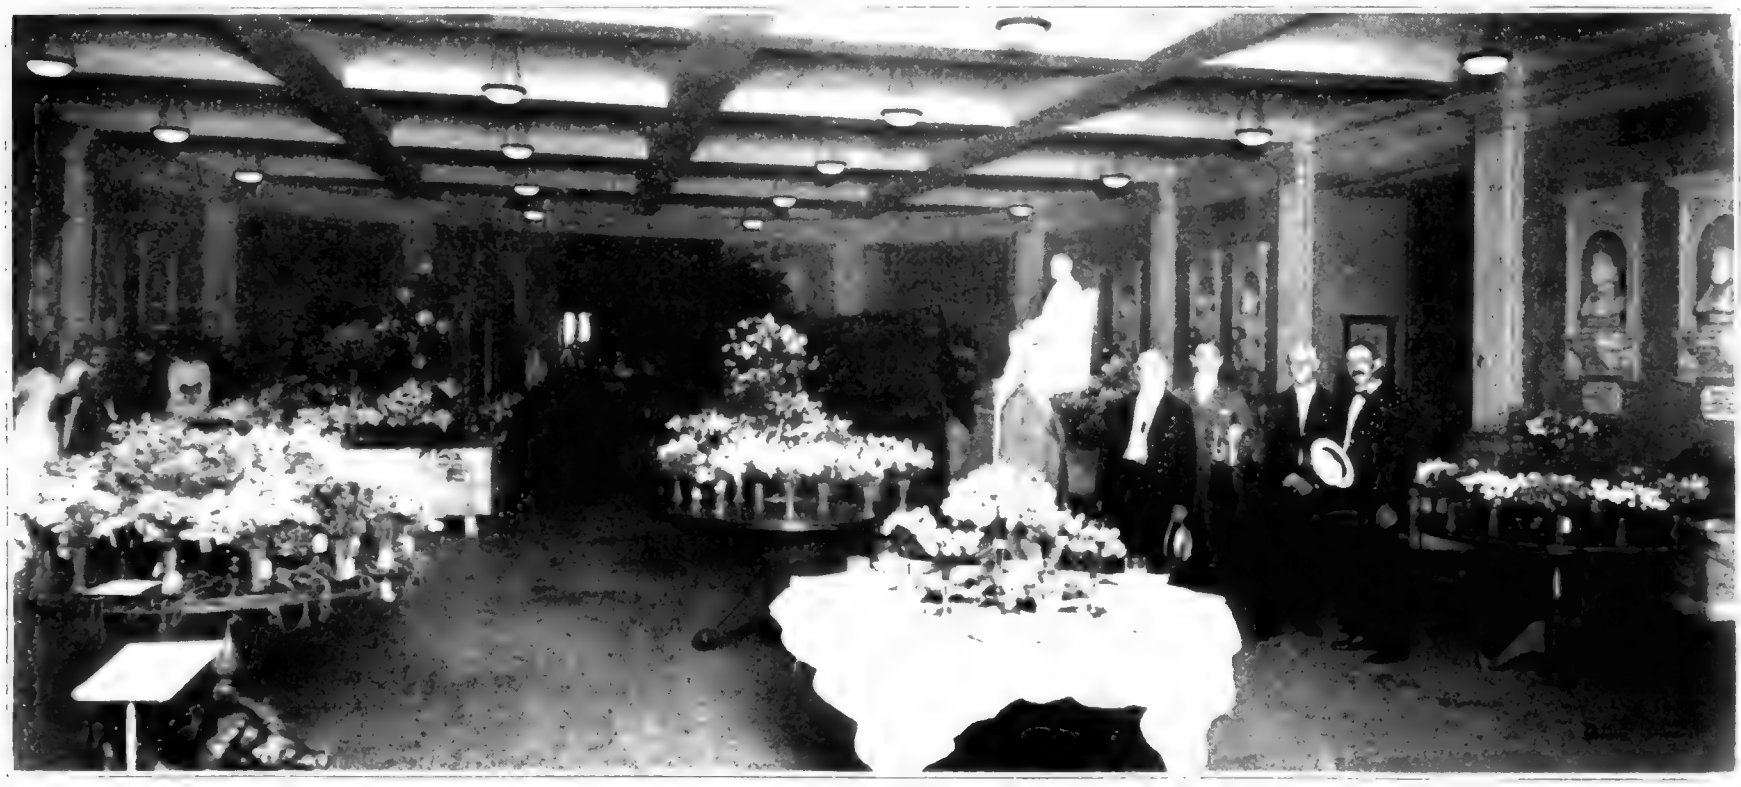
Twelve sprays, lavender—J. G. Raddin, first, with Dorothy Tennant; Walter D. Blossom, second.

Twelve sprays, salmon or rose—Mrs. J. M. Fuller, first, with Salmon Spencer; J. D. Raddin, second.

Twelve sprays, crimson or scarlet—J. G. Raddin, first, with Vermilion Brilliant.

Twelve sprays primrose—J. G. Raddin, first, with Isobel Malcolm.

Twelve sprays, any other color—J. G. Raddin, first, with Mrs. Townsend; Thos. Brook, Greystone, R. I., second.



For the best single pot of the geranium Helen Michell—J. W. Pepper, W. Robertson, gardener, Jenkintown, Pa., first; Mrs. French Vanderbilt, Newport, R. I., second; H. A. Poth, St. Davis, Pa., third. Special award of $10.00 to Henry Goldman.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

The Julius Roehrs Co., of Rutherford, N. J., had a handsome bank of orchids of many varieties, which was given a certificate of merit. Similar awards were made to Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., for a fine collection of delphiniums; to John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, N. Y., for a display of lilies and Japanese iris, and to the Knight & Struck Co., of New York, for its exhibit of achimenes and iris.

The Business Session.

A fair attendance gathered in the Museum of Natural History Saturday afternoon, June 27, for the business meeting of the society. F. R. Pierson delivered the address of welcome, to which Arthur Kirby responded, in place of Wm. H. Duckham, designated for this office on the program. President Sim had no written address to present, but spoke briefly extempore. After the secretary and treasurer had presented their reports, F. G. Cuthbertson read an invitation to the society to hold its 1915 meeting at San Francisco, in connection with the Panama-Pacific Exposition. This invitation was referred to the executive committee for consideration.

When the time came for the nomination and election of officers President Sim gracefully declined renomination and Lester L. Morse, of San Francisco, was unanimously chosen to succeed him. The remaining officers were reëlected, and William Sim was elected to fill the vacancy on the executive committee.

Prof. A. C. Beal then gave an interesting report on the society's trial grounds at Cornell University and received high commendation from A. T. Boddington and F. G. Cuthbertson in the discussion that followed. In this Maurice Fuld and Arthur Kirby also took part, and the general opinion was that the tests should be continued. Mr. Cuthbertson read his paper on "Sweet Peas: Past, Present and Future," which appears in this issue of The Review, and was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. The society adjourned to attend the banquet to the judges at 6:30 p. m. at the Hotel Endicott.

The Banquet.

The banquet proved to be a most enjoyable affair. After the excellence of the menu had been put to the test, A. T. Boddington assumed the role of toastmaster. F. R. Pierson responded for the Horticultural Society of New York and predicted a great future for the Sweet Pea Society, characterizing this year's exhibition as the best ever shown in this country. George Kerr, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., responded for the judges, and President Sim for the American Sweet Pea Society. F. G. Cuthbertson, speaking for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, expressed the hope that the society might meet in San Francisco next year, dwelling upon the assured success of the world's fair there.

Joseph A. Manda spoke for the New York Florists' Club and told of the success of the Newport show, of which he was manager. George Stumpp and Robert Koehne responded for the retail florists, whose displays did much toward making the show an artistic success. For the gardener, W. Angus spoke and J. W. Everitt for the amateur.

The seedsmen's advocate was Arthur Kirby, of Peter Henderson & Co. J. H. Dick responded for the press and J. H. Pepper for the ladies. Harry A. Bunyard, the hard-working secretary of the society, whose work was so large a factor in the success of the meeting, and Harry Turner, who, as manager of the exhibition, proved to be the right man in the right place, were also called upon to speak.

The Attendance.

The judges of the exhibition who were in attendance at the banquet were: Prof. A. C. Beal, chairman, Ithaca, N. Y.; F. G. Cuthbertson, San Francisco; C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., Geo. W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.; Charles Knight, Oakdale, L. I.; Percy Hicks, Oceanic, N. J.; Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.; Arthur Herrington, Madison, N. J.; John Everitt, Glen Cove, L. I.; Thomas Murray, Tuxedo, N. Y.; Robert Koehne, New York City and W. Angus, Chapinville, Conn.

Others whose attendance at the banquet was noted were: F. R. Pierson, Wm. Sim, A. T. Boddington, H. A. Bunyard, Harry Turner, Samuel Burnett, W. H. Waite, Arthur M. Kirby, John Canning, D. Gray, A. Watkins, F. J. Michell, Jr., A. G. Campkin, Phil. Freud, Chas. W. Ashmead, J. W. Lynes, J. A. Manda, George Stumpp, J. Carman, J. H. Pepper, J. H. Dick, A. F. Faulkner and J. Austin Shaw.

No register was kept of the visitors at the exhibition, but in addition to those noted above, the following visitors from out of town were noted: Chas. Russell, Tarrytown, N. Y.; J. Robinson, Roslyn, Pa.; Henry Gaut, Glen Cove, L. I.; Wm. Robinson, Jenkintown, Pa.; F. R. Cooper, Wellington, New Zealand.

SECRETARY BUNYARD'S REPORT.

Right at this spot, six years ago almost to a day, July 7, 1909, the American Sweet Pea Society was born. At that time I said, "The Sweet Pea Society should be a success, must be a success." I leave it to you that at least we are on our way, if we take the trouble to look over the exhibits now shown here in this building, perhaps the finest general exhibit of sweet peas ever shown in this country, if not in the world. Nearly sixty exhibitors and over 2,000 vases of sweet peas, besides table arrangements and other decorative features.

We have with us today nearly all our charter members, with perhaps one great exception, the gentleman who helped us to organize our society when we needed all the moral support that could be brought to bear. I allude to the late Prof. W. C. Craig, who was indeed a gentleman and a scholar and who organized our trial grounds at Cornell University, which today are under the efficient guidance of Prof. A. C. Beal.

The following bulletins have been issued up to date: No. 319, "Winter Flowering Sweet Peas;" No. 320, "Culture of the Sweet Pea," and No. 342 "Classification of Garden Varieties of the Sweet Pea," all of which have been sent to the horticultural press and to our members in good standing; today they are standard works.

Importance of Sweet Pea.

Some have said "Why is the American Sweet Pea Society?" This is an ingenious and not exactly good grammar.

In the cut flower market the sweet pea stands third as an all around flower and has been a money maker for the grower, commission merchant and retail florist alike. You cannot gainsay that it is one of the most democratic and popular flowers of today. The seedsman, too, will tell you he sells more sweet pea seed today, in bulk and in value, than any other flower seed. Therefore, the sweet pea is of importance to us all. Then why not a society to advance this beautiful and ever increasingly popular flower?

In the last ten years there have been great strides and advancement made in the sweet pea. From the grandiflora type has evolved the Spencer type, the winter-flowering grandifloras and now the winter-flowering Spencers. The American Sweet Pea Society has helped to advertise the sweet pea for us all and has helped to put it on the horticultural map.

I regret that the American Sweet Pea Society has not received from some quarters the support it deserved, but then, this is simply the history of all societies.

I want to thank the horticultural press at this time, however, for its unqualified support, and the gentlemen who are not only members but who have given their time and financial support far beyond their obligations to the society.

We have today, all told, about 200 members in good standing and fourteen life members. Our financial condition is healthy; no big surplus, but money enough to take care of all obligations. Apart from the exhibition, we do not owe a penny, and this is so far financed that we shall more than come out even, through guarantees, donations and prizes generously offered by the trade and others. We have no paid officers.

During the last six years we have held nine exhibitions; six summer and three winter; two in New York, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York; two in Boston, under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society; one in Philadelphia, under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, and three winter exhibitions in coöperation with the S. A. F. national and other flower shows, awarding during that time nearly $10,000 in cash, cups, medals and other prizes in kind.

Affiliation.

I hear some one say, "How about affiliation?" which reminds me of a letter I received today from a member who resigned, saying he could not afford to be continually paying dues to so many societies. I wrote him that I was feeling the same way and sugguested a blanket due covering all socities. If the S. A. F. should say to us as a mother society, "Come and sit on our knee and tell us all your troubles and let us see if we cannot help you and your good work along," I think we would at least meet her half way. 'Tis true we have not received any help directly, though her members are always willing to support us financially and morally. I am grateful for all this support, and also especially to the Horticultural Society of New York, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, which have been more than generous and courteous in the past. The future, too, is brighter to day than ever for our youthful and useful society, and in conclusion I might add the prophetic simile of the Rev. W. T. Hutchins:

"The sweet pea has a keel that was meant to seek all shores; it has wings that were meant to fly across all continents; it has a standard which is friendly to all nations; it has a fragrance like the universal Gospel; yea, a sweet prophecy of welcome everywhere that has been abundantly fulfilled."

CUTHBERTSON ON SWEET PEAS.

[Extracts from a paper by Frank G. Cuthbertson, of San Francisco, Cal., read at the sixth annual convention of the American Sweet Pea Society, in New York, June 27, 1914.]

The first line along which we should consider our subject is naturally the raising of varieties.

The historical records of the sweet pea were first noticed by Cupani, a monk in Sicily, in the year 1699 and a few seeds were sent to England.

It was not long before variations took place and about the year 1793 we find that black, purple, scarlet and white varieties were offered for sale. Seven years later a black-purple was offered and thirty-seven years later a striped-flowered variety could be had. In 1860 the first edged variety appeared. Ten years later Henry Eckford, whose name will be associated with sweet peas as long as sweet peas are grown, began his great life work. Varieties now came much faster, but at first the stocks were badly mixed. While ignorant of the laws of Mendelism, Eckford by careful selection was afterward able to put his novelties on the market fixed. The varieties of the past and their coloring must have been considered wonderful and to read over some of the descriptions given is now amusing when we think of present-day flowers.

About twenty-six years ago sweet peas were first grown for seed in California and there were then only a dozen varieties. Blanche Ferry was the first novelty ever offered in America and it created quite a sensation. I understand this variety was found by Professor Tracy growing in a country garden. There were many novelties so discovered and I fear that many varieties that were claimed to be crosses were only had by crossing the field to find them.

The grandiflora, as years went by, was improved much in form and size. From the hooded type an advance was made to the open type and greater substance was bred for.

Arrival of the Spencers.

The coming of the Spencers in 1901 is well known to everyone. How this flower captivated all growers and brought about present conditions in the sweet pea world is well known. We have to be thankful, however, that the original Spencer sweet pea was such a beauty, as had the Spencer form first appeared as some of our varieties today, the names of which I leave to you, I fear it would have passed unnoticed.

Following Countess Spencer, novelties were showered on the market in profusion, but mostly in a wretched state of unfixedness. Seedsmen were too anxious to sell their productions, but gradually things have settled down and today the conditions are much improved.

Besides the coming of Spencers, there were other variations of value. Of these the early flowering type was perhaps the most important, owing to its place with florists. Then the Cupid varieties and bush varieties were introduced by the American growers, but these never gained a wide popularity.

The present day finds us with a list of sweet pea names some 2,000 in number.

A Selection of Gems.

From the list we can pick out such gems as King Edward Spencer, Elfrida Pearson, Countess Spencer, George Herbert, Mrs. Cuthbertson, Melba, Bertrand Deal, Illuminator, Margaret Atlee, Morse's Monday Morning, Margaret Madison II, Miriam Beaver II, Doris Usher, Helen Lewis, Hercules, King White, Rosabelle, Mrs. C. W. Breadmore, America Spencer, Jessie Cuthbertson Spencer, R. F. Felton, Asta Ohn, Dainty Spencer, Thomas Stevenson, Nubian, Vermilion Brilliant, etc. What wonderful coloring has been produced and what remarkable size! Fifteen years ago, had we seen a plant of Prima Donna or Katherine Tracy, bearing four blossoms on one stem, with even a suggestion of the size of, say, Elfrida Pearson, even poorly grown, we should have looked for the immediate death of the plant.

Truly the work of hybridizers has been wonderful, and whoever they may have been, lovers of flowers will pay tribute. The extensive list of Spencers in most wonderful shades of color bears ample testimony to their work. Some people, principally in America, should be reminded that "even Burbank in all his glory has not arrayed one of these."

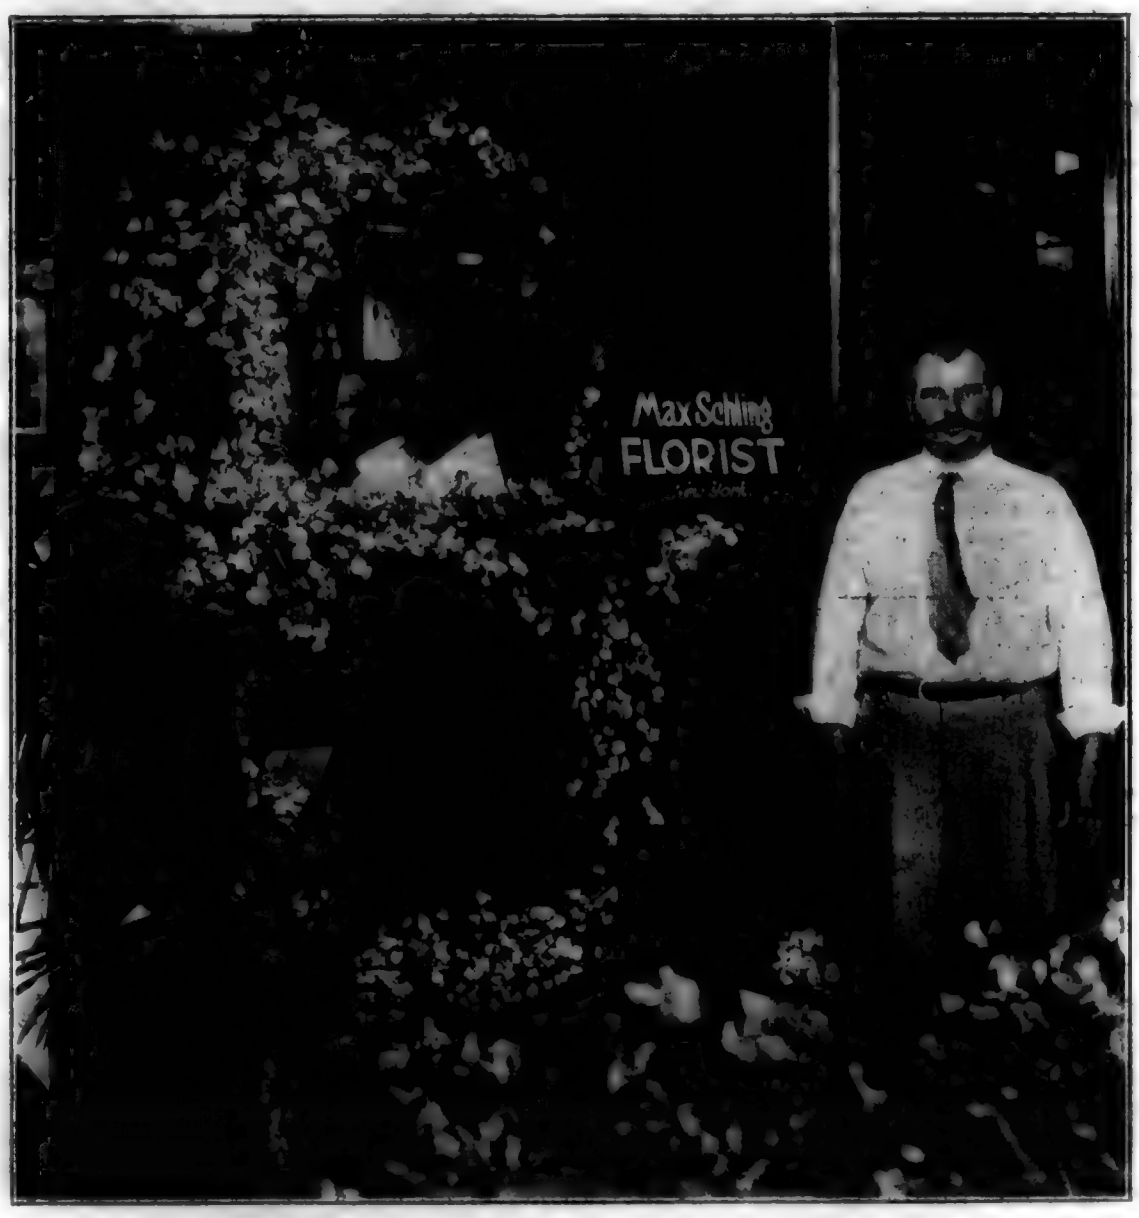
I often wonder whether Cupani, the monk, ever had a vision of the future of the insignificant little flower he first sent to England over 200 years ago.



A Look Into the Future.

What has the future in store for those endeavoring after new varieties? To my mind it will bring forth things which have never been dreamt of. Already we have had a glimpse of what is coming by the new true double flowers. These are quite different from the duplex type. I notice that Dobbie & Co., the Scotch specialists, have already exhibited one of these which caused much comment. I have these in various shades and colorings, coming along in the workshop of C. C. Morse & Co. They are most wonderful flowers and will rival the most expensive orchid, perhaps not only in beauty but in price, as the seeding qualities are extremely light.

Then in the early flowering section I look for good fixed Spencer flowers in colors suitable for florists and with the desirable qualities of the early flowering varieties of the past. There is yet much room for improvement in this section and an idea of what is to come can be had from the Australian variety, Yarrawa Spencer.

In Cupids I look for an improvement in the form of Spencers having the Cupid growth and the long stems, the large flowers and the colorings of the Spencer varieties.

One improvement which all seed growers will welcome will be the heavy seeding qualities of the grandiflora added to the attractions of the Spencer varieties.

First Prize Mantel Decoration of Sweet Peas, by Max Schling.
(Harry Turner, Manager of the Show, "On the Side" and in the Glass.)

On reviewing the present colors of sweet peas, we find room for additions such as the much sought after yellow, a better blue in clear and dark shades, a better scarlet and new combinations in bicolors.

Improvements in Culture.

Perhaps one of the most remarkable changes in sweet pea matters has been in the cultural methods. In years past the amateur dug his garden in the usual way, which was often poor enough, and then made a little drill with his hoe in which the peas were sown as thickly as possible. There were many ways resorted to in training them or supporting them.

Only a few keen growers ever thought of manuring or feeding the plants, and the result was a fine, thick hedge of medium height. A great contrast to that is the culture of the keen growers today. Growers have learned that thick planting was unnecessary; possibly they were helped to realize that by the price of seed. Then disbudding has been resorted to and the system of growing on single stems, thereby producing enormous flowers. It is nothing unusual to find growers spading the ground two or three feet deep, incorporating manures with great care and knowledge. The plants are fed with manures during the flowering period and many are shaded from the sun's rays to preserve the color. The sweet pea plant is watched with anxious eyes from its first appearance above ground until the final blossom is cut.

Troubles to Be Overcome.

The world of science has found much of interest in the sweet pea. Mendel used it as a subject when trying out his theory which has done so much for hybridizers of sweet peas. The results he obtained and which have been obtained since his time have done much toward the continued popularity of the sweet pea. In the years following the introduction of Spencer sweet peas, unfixed stocks threatened to disgust the grower, but science and Mendelism showed raisers the error of their ways, and unfixed novelties are now almost a thing of the past. With the increased cultivation of sweet peas, came some sweet pea troubles, and while the more serious have yet to be conquered, we find extensive investigations being carried out in England and in America. We look for scientists to give us a cure and preventive for the streak disease and for the aphis or green fly, which is doing so much destruction to sweet pea crops in California.

We urge all interested in these matters to use their abilities to give us remedies for these two serious troubles. Nothing will be more welcome in the near future than the news that our scientific men have mastered these two gigantic difficulties.

The Sweet Pea and the Seedsman.

The sweet pea has also been a most important item with seedsmen the world over. In the past comparatively little attention was given to it and sweet peas were found catalogued in a more or less ordinary way. Henry Eckford's was the first large house to boom the sweet pea. With the advent of the Spencer varieties, great possibilities were presented, but only in England were they fully realized. Many seed houses came into being purely on the strength of the sweet pea, and most of these have been successful. In America the houses of W. Atlee Burpee & Co. and C. C. Morse & Co. were the first to boom the sweet pea, and to these houses must belong the credit of starting the sweet pea boom in America.

At the present day we find more notice being taken by seedsmen of the sweet pea, and in many catalogues the space devoted to sweet peas has been doubled and trebled and the illustrations much improved. In this respect the English catalogues are as yet much better than American catalogues and the future ought to be brighter for American seedsmen if they will boost the sweet pea as our English friends have done. The American seedsmen can do much to popularize the sweet pea. It calls for a little extra work on the catalogue and a little more attention to varieties listed. The public have to be educated and they can largely be educated through the seedsmen's catalogues and advertisements. They have to be educated up to Spencer sweet peas. They have to learn that twenty-five seeds of a true Spencer variety are much better and more valuable than fifty seeds half of which are grandifloras.

Popularizing the Sweet Pea.

If the seedsman will prove to them, by giving them true Spencers, the superiority of Spencers over grandifloras, it will not take long for the sweet pea to hold the place in American gardens which it holds in England. I do not think I am far wrong in saying that only a small percentage of American seedsmen know a Spencer from a grandiflora and only a few have interested themselves sufficiently to be able to recognize varieties. Such a condition of things will never popularize the sweet pea in America, and the sooner American seedsmen make a start to learn the beauties and possibilities of Spencer sweet peas, the better it will be for their sales and for the public at large.

Flower shows should receive every encouragement from the seed trade, especially classes devoted to sweet peas. Prizes should be offered and subscriptions donated. New societies and horticultural clubs should be assisted whenever they spring up. It is impossible to overestimate what has been accomplished for the seed trade by the numerous flower shows in England where sweet peas have been shown. The future has much in store for American seedsmen if they will do their part to popularize the sweet pea.

The California Growers.

I suppose the matter of growing sweet peas for seed is almost solely left to California growers. As long as grandifloras were solely used, nothing but praise was heard for California sweet peas.

During the first few years of Spencer sweet peas, California growers were at a loss, as well as English growers, as to how to keep stocks pure. When the first lot of Countess Spencer was sent to California to be grown, it was undoubtedly in an unfixed condition, and naturally the product returned to Europe was unfixed. Immediately California Spencers were given a black eye, which was altogether unfair. The blame undoubtedly should have rested on the stock sent out to be grown. California has since provided an excuse for several English stocks which were not up to standard, which of course should not be tolerated. True, the English growers were first to get onto the way of fixing stocks and we give them credit. They left the California grower to find out for himself the way to do it, which in the seed business was only natural. At the present day there are seed growers in California who have developed true stocks of Spencers. It has cost money to straighten out stocks and has taken time, but there are stocks of Spencer sweet peas to be had from California which will compare with the best in England.

Trials have proved it; yet we read articles in various trade and amateur papers from the pens of men who ought to know better, throwing mud at California sweet peas because they may have seen some poor stocks from growers not as careful as they might be.

Prominent seedsmen have also stooped at meetings to air their limited knowledge of California stocks. It takes a little more money to buy a good stock than it does a poor one, for reasons obvious to all who know sweet peas. I am prepared to acknowledge to anyone the great step forward taken by some of the California growers of Spencer sweet peas.

Work of Sweet Pea Societies.

English growers do not grow twelve per cent of the acreage grown in California, so that all must realize the part California sweet peas play in the gardens of the world. The future points to great things for the seed grower in California who is careful with his stocks, and it is for the seedsmen and amateurs of America to supply the support. The development of sweet pea societies has in the past been remarkable.

I believe it is some fourteen years since the first sweet pea exhibition in England. Today there are about 125 societies affiliated with the national society, all having large sweet pea exhibitions. What the British National Sweet Pea Society has done for the sweet pea would be hard to determine. The effect has been far-reaching, and under its guidance the sweet pea has reached a stage of popularity not yet attained by any other flower.

The American Sweet Pea Society is today holding its sixth annual exhibition and I understand the interest has grown steadily since the society has been organized.

In the future we look for the society to be much enlarged and to take on larger responsibilities. We want to see more affiliated societies. We want to know as much about the American National Sweet Pea Society in San Francisco as you do in New York or Philadelphia. We hope that soon the society will assume the responsibility of carrying out trials of its own and that American seedsmen will rally to the support of the society in this matter. There ought to be several affiliated societies in every state in America where sweet peas are grown and we look to the seedsmen in the states to start things going. I think a number of state exhibitions of sweet peas could be arranged for, which would stimulate the interest of all growers.

A Practical Conclusion.

Summing up, I cannot but see a great future for the sweet pea in America, for the grower for pleasure, the florist, the seedsman and the seed grower. We shall have to infuse a little sweet pea sentiment into our business in whatever line we handle. We shall have to pull together, allowing a little more of the spirit of friendship to mingle with our competition, if we want to bring about such a result as I want to see and which we do see in England.

[Here Mr. Cuthbertson gives a realistic description of the painstaking zeal of the numerous English amateur sweet pea growers, in preparing their soil, selecting varieties, planting and tending, preparing their blooms for exhibition and finally waiting, "with thumping hearts," while the judges are arriving at their decisions. Then Mr. Cuthbertson concludes with this practical reflection:]

That is a fair picture of what sweet peas are to the amateur grower in England today. Never before has any flower so captivated men and women or had such an effect on human character. The start was given this hobby by the introduction of the new waved type of sweet pea in 1902. In the pursuance of our business, can we have a better ideal in view than that? I hope the time will soon come when the efforts of all interested in sweet peas will be rewarded with such a result.

THE TWO HUNDRED CLUB.

That amiable gentleman, F. T. D. Pochelon, of Detroit, enjoyed a little celebration the other day. Mr. Pochelon, whose mother called him Albert, but who gained his treble initials because of the enthusiasm he puts into his work as secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, had promised himself a day off when the F. T. D. achieved its two hundredth member. The goal was reached last week. But, perhaps, instead of goal it should be called a stepping stone or resting point, for long ago Mr. Pochelon adopted the slogan, "Five hundred members in 1915!" Will he get them? He should, for the F. T. D. certainly is stimulating the sale of flowers. The more members it has to tell the public about the possibilities of the distant quick delivery of flowers the more such business the public will entrust to the florists.

OHIO FLORISTS LOSE FIGHT AGAINST TAX

Ohio Court of Appeals affirms decision of lower court declaring all Florists' and Nursery stock taxable as personal property

FLORISTS and nurserymen of the state of Ohio received a heavy blow June 25, when the Court of Appeals, in session at Springfield, upheld the decision of Judge Jones, of the Court of Common Pleas, Clark county, Ohio, declaring greenhouse crops taxable as personal property. The importance of the finding in this case was understood by Judges Kinder, Donnelly and Crow, who occupied the bench, and although the hearing of the case took place May 25, it was a month from that date before the decision was given.

This decree marks the end of a determined fight of several years by the members of the trade in the state of Ohio, led by the Springfield Florists' Club. It was in 1907 that the board of review of that city first listed the greenhouse stock of the growers of Springfield as taxable personal property. The objections of the florists were of no avail and a test case was undertaken. The county treasurer, Ralph B. Miller, sued the George H. Mellen Co. for $272.18, assessed the firm as personal property taxes on the company's stock in pots and benches, listed at $5,180 for 1907 and $5,000 for 1908.

First Case Tried.

The case was argued before Judge Jones, in the Court of Common Pleas, of Clark county, Ohio, and reported fully in The Review for November 27, 1913, where the judge's decision was given in full. No light on the subject could be found in statute books, legal digests or commentaries, for this was the first case of its kind brought to trial.

The defense, representing the entire trade of the state, urged at that time that in Ohio growing crops were not subject to taxation. The question was only one of the proper interpretation of the statutes of the state. Judge Jones found that the laws made no such express exemption and that an implied exemption was founded only on a mistaken interpretation of the words of code. He therefore upheld the county treasurer and decided adversely to the trade interests.

Trade Unites Against Tax.

Upon the return of this decision, the florists and nurserymen supporting the defendant instructed the attorneys to file a petition in error and sent out a call for coöperation on the part of the trade throughout the state in raising funds to carry the case to a higher court. Financial support was quickly forthcoming and a defense fund of over $800 was raised. At Springfield $250 was contributed by the trade; from Cleveland came $210 and from Cincinnati $115 more. Donations were received from all parts of the state, and florists, nurserymen and vegetable growers—all the greenhouse men of the state—rallied to the support of the Springfield florists.

The outcome of the appeal was awaited with interest by members of the trade, not only in Ohio, but all over the country, for on the decision hinged the question whether or not, in the course of time, several hundred dollars should be yearly added to the tax bills of every large grower.

The Appeal.

Before an audience of florists, nurserymen and gardeners of Springfield and other parts of Ohio, Attorneys J. E. Bowman and Paul C. Martin ably presented the case of the trade before the Court of Appeals, at Springfield, May 25. Broadly stated, the argument was that growing crops have once been taxed in the valuation of the land and that it would be clearly an instance of double taxation to assess growing crops of any kind as such. The grower, it was contended, does not claim exemption for his particular class of stock, but that the stock has already been considered in the tax value per acre put upon the land, according to what was clearly the intent of the legislature at the time when the law was enacted.

The judges, however, failed to take this view of the matter and returned a decision adverse to the trade, upholding the lower court, although not making the statement so broad as to include both greenhouse-grown and outdoor crops, as Judge Jones had done. The decision of the Court of Appeals in full is as follows:

The Decision.

"Growing plants and growing floral stock which, on the date prescribed by Section 5372, General Code, were attached to, inhered and were growing in earthen soil, in greenhouses, either in benches or in pots or other receptacles therein, filled with earthen soil, designed and used exclusively for raising and growing therein plants and other floral stock, and which, on such date, and for varying periods thereafter, accordingly as the same matured, were removed from said soil, for transplanting or for sale and delivery, are not, within the intent of Section 5560, General Code, crops growing on real property, nor are they things contained in real property or land, within the meaning of Section 5322, General Code, but constitute personal property within the purview of Sections 5325, 5372, 5375 and 5376 and related sections, General Code, and are taxable as such."

An Ohio Florist's View.

The florists of the state believe now that they must accept the decision as it stands. It is not, however, so broad as that of Judge Jones. In commenting on it, Roy McGregor, chairman of the tax committee of the Springfield Florists' Club and one of the strongest fighters against the tax, called attention to the fact that "it affirms the decision of the lower court only in so far as it applies to plants in greenhouses being prepared for sale. Inasmuch as the court considered and the arguments covered all kinds of stock, in frames and planted outside, nursery stock and vegetables under glass, you will note it is not the broad decision of the lower court. True, it will take in almost all of the stock of most growers, but we do not think that boards will be inclined to make the decision more burdensome than would result through a monthly average tax, which we would

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Herman C. G. Schwarz, Central Park, N. Y., registers Siren, a seedling cross with Enchantress; color, brilliant flesh pink; size, three and one-half to four inches; ideal, upright grower and easy rooter; dark green foliage and no surplus grass; produces flowers freely on long, strong stems.

PLANTING IN THE HOUSE.

Planning the Work in Advance.

With the passing of the commencement and June wedding season, the demand for carnations begins to slacken, and there is little pleasure or profit in prolonging the cut of inferior carnation blooms. In our latitude we are able to keep up the quality until well into June, but after the middle of the month the intense heat gets away with them and the size of the blooms can be seen to diminish from day to day. Except for the continued failure of the aster crop throughout this section year after year, we would pull out the entire lot of carnations soon after Memorial day. The scarcity of flowers, however, makes such a course impossible and makes it necessary for us to do a little extra planning in the placing of the varieties on the benches. We find it expedient to select a certain portion of the place to be run later into the summer than the rest of the place, and naturally we select that portion which is the coolest.

Every grower encounters this proposition each season to a greater or less degree and now is the time to do your planning. Before we set a single plant, we draw a sketch of the houses, showing each bed and the number of plants it will hold. On each bed in the sketch is marked the variety or varieties to be planted on it. In this way we avoid the confusion and mistakes that are sure to creep in if you plan your planting as you plant. I mention this so early because, if you do your planning now, it will give you time to place your order for any plants you may need to make up the number of each variety you wish to bench, and to get them shipped to you at the time you are benching your plants, which you will find to be a great advantage.

Cleaning and Fumigating.

I presume that you have procured an ample supply of well prepared soil for filling the benches. If you have been negligent in this, you are starting under a big handicap, as high-grade stock can be grown only under favorable circumstances and good soil is the foundation on which good growing must be built. After you have taken the old soil out of the beds and made what repairs are necessary to run them through the next season, it is well to thoroughly fumigate the houses to kill all insects and vermin that have accumulated and bred during the season. The intensity of the fumigation will necessarily depend on whether you can empty the houses entirely of stock. Where detached houses are used, this can frequently be done, but if the place is built in ranges of houses, as many are built now, there is sure to be growing stock somewhere, which will be damaged if the fumigating is too severe. Hydrocyanic acid gas will destroy about as much insect life as anything I know of now, and with perhaps less danger to any growing stock that may be exposed to it.

After the beds have been filled and leveled, clean the walks and the spaces under the benches, if raised benches are used, removing anything in the way of old soil or litter that may have accumulated. A good sprinkling of hydrated lime will help to purify the place and make it more wholesome for the plants. Close attention to this will greatly lessen the danger from leaf-spot and kindred diseases which start from a foul atmosphere while you are doing a great deal of syringing during the time you are reëstablishing the plants on the benches.

Filling the Beds.

In filling the beds, be sure you pulverize the soil well. Lumpy soil is bad both for the plants and for the temper of the men who set the plants. Fill the beds even with the sides and see that they are well filled along the edges, leveling the soil evenly all over the bed, so that, in watering, the water will not collect in pools and leave part of the soil dry while other parts may be getting too wet. We place a layer of long stable manure on the beds before putting in the soil. We find this aids the drainage and helps to feed the plants later on, when the roots have worked through the soil.

If possible, arrange to refill at least a whole house at one time, so that the whole house may be planted at one time. The atmospheric conditions necessary while the plants are getting reëstablished are good for them only during that period, and it is taking chances with established plants to subject them to those conditions; hence the advantage in refilling a whole house at a time.

GARDEN SOIL FOR BENCHES.

Please let me know whether chrysanthemums will grow satisfactorily in soil taken from a garden, if the soil has been well fed but inclines to be heavy and, if left standing in piles, becomes a little green on the surface. I expect to plant within the next ten days, using cow manure. First I put in a layer of soil, then a layer of manure and then another of soil. Will the use of sheep manure, after the plants are put in, produce good results, or would you suggest something else?

A. B. L.

Chrysanthemums are not so particular as to soil conditions as are some other plants, and soil taken from the garden as suggested will grow fairly good mums. Since the soil is inclined to be heavy, it should, of course, be more carefully watered than soil inclined to be light. I notice that A. B. L. says he puts in one layer of soil and then a layer of manure on top of that, in the benches. I believe in incorporating the soil and manure thoroughly together before placing any of it in the benches.

Sheep manure is valuable for mums, but should not be used until the plants are growing well and are thoroughly established. Too much feed before the plants are well rooted, as has so often been stated, is like feeding beefsteak to a baby. First get your plants rooted, thoroughly established and growing vigorously; then feeding will do them some good. I have found liquid manure made from sheep manure to be much better than the same manure used as a top-dressing.

MOTH BALLS FOR PESTS.

A few weeks ago the following question was submitted to The Review: ''Do you know whether moth balls will be safe to use around the roots of chrysanthemum plants to get rid of white ants?'' In my reply to the inquiry, in The Review of June 18, I stated that I knew of no reason why moth balls would be injurious, but neither did I know that they would be helpful, since I had never put them to the test as a remedy. However, since my reply was published, I have received a letter on the subject from one of The Review's readers, A. H. Pike, proprietor of the Bryn Mawr Flower Shop, Bryn Mawr, Pa. He says:

''Having seen the article on moth balls in The Review, I beg to say that I have found them useful in keeping away slugs and small snails from chrysanthemums and all kinds of seedlings. Where I first used them was at W. K. Harris' place, in Philadelphia. Another man used them scattered over the fern seedlings and he said they were the greatest thing out to keep pests away.''

THE USE OF PRINTERS' INK

WHAT TO DO AND WHAT NOT TO DO

An address to Seedsmen that contains, also, many money-making points for all who deal in Plants or Cut Flowers

IN no preceding era in the history of industrialism in this country has the subject of good advertising been more thoroughly studied and keenly analyzed than today. If, through neglect or inability to sense properly the trend of the times in a business way, a man is not alert to perceive the essentials of good advertising he is a sluggard in the race and his reaching the goal of marked success is a doubtful possibility.

Advertising is indispensable to the development and maintenance of a large enterprise.

Who can measure the potency and scope of well prepared advertising? For the seedsman who gains a true perspective and assiduously addresses himself to the task of following well defined principles and rules pertaining to successful advertising, there are no bounds.

The strong arm of the sales department is undoubtedly the annual illustrated catalogue, but the question of advertising that is auxiliary to the seed annual is a most vital one.

Admitting that advertising supplementary to the catalogue is a necessity, let us recount some of the reasons why.

(a) There is what may be termed "the uncatalogued class," possible purchasers to whom catalogues have not been sent. These are a plentiful annual crop, and many are good buyers. Their names, once secured, can then be added to the mailing list.

(b) Catalogues are usually mailed at the beginning of each year and sometimes become misplaced in the home of the recipient. An advertisement may land the order.

(c) Almost every season there are contingencies which arise in the trade between the date of issuing catalogues in January and the close of the season in May. These contingencies can be met by journal advertising with telling results.

(d) To those who have already received a catalogue, advertising affords opportunity for making special appeals, thereby creating a demand where the catalogue fails.

(e) Advertising constitutes the strongest connecting link between the prospective buyer and the catalogue.

(f) Sometimes departments of agriculture, the government experimental stations, farm journals and farmers' institutes are instrumental in creating a widespread demand for some variety for field or garden after catalogues are issued. The sales department secures this trade by advertising.

A prerequisite of every advertising department is a knowledge of the field of operation and the best mediums for producing results. This knowledge must be analytical, thorough and exhaustive. The very nature of the business determines its main field of activity. Of the various publications subscribed for by agriculturists undoubtedly the farm journal is the most potent agency for seed advertising. It specializes. There is reciprocity, or something kindred to it, between farm journalism and the seed industry.

A summary of an address by A. E. McKenzie, of Brandon, Man., before the American Seed Trade Association at Washington, D. C., June 24, 1914.

Selection of Mediums.

Advertising never cost more than it does today and it will never cost less. Therefore, the selection of mediums is of vital importance. When buying a stock of Golden Self-Blanching celery or a certain strain of pansy seed, you select your respective growers and pay prices according to the quality and results these seeds will produce. Good or inferior advertising space is purchasable, just as good or inferior celery or pansy seed is purchasable. In neither case does it pay to buy the inferior. The selection of mediums should be based almost entirely on ability to produce results. There are a number of standard qualifications which serve as partial guides in making selection, viz.:

(1) Circulation is of first importance. This usually reflects the character and value of the publication.

(2) The publication which distributes advertising matter on pages containing news, markets and regular reading matter is usually a better medium for the seed house.

(3) The publishers who specialize in securing the service of compositors having the ability to make advertising features strong in favor of the advertiser are more worthy of patronage.

(4) Mediums which feature attractive front and back covers, use good paper throughout, and endeavor to give character, dignity and style in appearance should have the preference.

(5) Agricultural periodicals which classify their advertisers, weeding out the fake and quack, should be selected.

ADVERTISING:

What it is and does.

(1) It is the silent, impersonal spokesman of the house it represents.

(2) It is indicative of the firm's knowledge of its business.

(3) It is a ready reference for the buyer when, otherwise, personal representation would be impossible.

(4) It reflects the ideals and character of the house, and enhances its dignity.

(5) It magnifies the industry of agriculture.

(6) It performs a service in imparting general information and knowledge bearing upon the subject of seeds.

(7) It arrests the attention of a prospective buyer at times and under circumstances when other methods would be unavailing.

(9) Metaphorically speaking, it causes the plains, valleys and mountainsides to wax eloquent in praise of its message.

(10) It enables institutions to grow from small beginnings, giving their owners extended offices and warehouses equipped with every modern facility.

(11) It causes the seed house to become a household name throughout the length and breadth of the nation.

(12) The practice of the fundamental principles of true advertising rarely fails to win a large and successful business.

Space and Copy.

I am in favor of buying generous space. Many subscribe to several publications. It is important, therefore, that copy be placed so as to avoid, as much as possible, duplications of the same ad for the same readers.

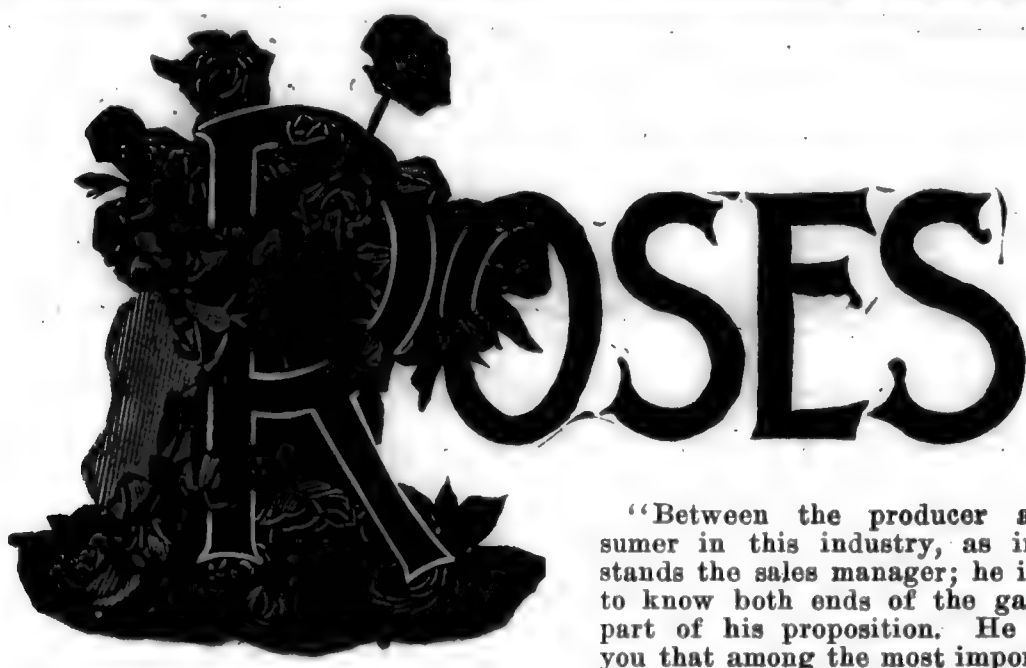
The preparation of copy is work which demands the skill and ability of an expert. Each sentence must be pregnant with ideas. It is conceded by every experienced advertiser that the use of illustrations is in most cases indispensable to good advertising.

The editor who duplicates his editorials does not attract much attention from his readers. Neither will the advertising manager by duplicated advertisements. Fresh, "down to the minute" copy must find its way to every publication. It requires hard work, it costs more, but it pays.

One of the constituent elements of a good advertisement is to quote prices. Somehow or other, people gain confidence in the house which takes the trouble and pains to quote prices. Particularly is this true if the integrity of the firm is well known. It pays to cater to the best trade. Then even the man who is inclined to buy a little on the cheap order will join in the procession. There is a class in whose opinion and practice "low price" is the only consideration, but do not lose sight of the fact that people as a whole like to buy from the house which makes a success of its business. "Nothing succeeds like success."

Some of the advantages obtained from quoting prices are as follows:

(1) This practice creates confidence.



(2) It imparts more information.

(3) When prices are properly arranged, it gives a better looking appearance to the advertisement, owing to the contrast of figures with letters.

(4) Stating prices is a fundamental in good merchandising, because the buyer prefers the information without being referred to a second medium, such as a catalogue or letter.

It is well to note that prices should be stated in black face type.

THE ROSE GROWING INDUSTRY.

Opportunity for Bigger Business.

In his address before the American Association of Nurserymen, at Cleveland, June 24, Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., brought to the attention of the members "some facts that bear a close relation to future balance sheets."

"Suppose for convenience," he said, "we divide the rose growing industry in America under three heads: First, the cut flower business, from producer to retailer; second, and in this the nurserymen are more interested, the production of the small roses, really in itself a branch of the trade, and third, field-grown roses for outdoor planting.

"Regarding the first I will not even cite statistics. You know as a rule that the cut flower men are a thrifty lot, with acres of glass and still extending. Single firms there are that handle easily a million roses annually and yet concentrate on a little more than a dozen varieties all told; that is one thing the nurserymen cannot do.

"In regard to the second, the increasing demand for small roses is indicated by the growth of one center in this state alone, which claims an output of 7,000,000 roses a year, and that is by no means the only place where such roses are produced in large quantities. While the first-named class influences the taste of the American public and the second class influences the nurserymen, as they have to supply them, I believe the subject that most closely concerns you and that deserves the attention of us all is that of field-grown roses for garden planting, and whether they be own-root or budded, or where they are produced, while of real importance to us producers, does not matter so much as does the question whether those in charge of these vast producing areas are awake to what appeals to me as an opportunity for bigger business at better prices.

The Distributing Agencies.

"It is my firm belief that the rose growing industry in America is on the threshold of a new era, and if I mistake not, how rapidly we advance and take possession of the field before us will depend more upon you gentlemen than upon any other one group of men I can think of in America, unless it be a little group with whose work I wish to make you later acquainted.

"Between the producer and consumer in this industry, as in others, stands the sales manager; he is obliged to know both ends of the game, as a part of his proposition. He will tell you that among the most important distributing agencies of field-grown roses are, first, the nurserymen's agents or the small dealers; second, the department stores, and third, the regular catalogues of the catalogue houses. Perhaps the department stores are least particular about the quality and origin of their stock and are prone to neglect the essentials of care and treatment, and, in consequence, probably hand out more stock that fails to make good than any other of the three distributing agencies mentioned. The nurserymen's agents do sell 'stuff,' as anyone who grows for this class of trade realizes, but I am informed by one of the largest of them that it is not the grower or, indeed, the agent who controls the sales, but that, as regards new roses especially, he is limited and influenced by the stock color plates which are distributed by the Rochester and other lithographers. So I turn to the last of the three distributing agencies, the catalogue man, who hires expensive salesmen and hires them by the thousands, and consequently the selection of the varieties that he shall recommend and push are more entirely within his own control.

"With a sales situation as above described, what is the result? The department stores take what the Holland salesmen choose to deliver. The firm which depends upon agency distribution continues to grow largely the same old varieties in order to cover the sales produced mainly by lithographed plates. While the catalogue man may be a little better able to dispose of new varieties as they come along, he too is slow to weave into his list the worthy new roses as they are introduced. Why? First, because the general public does not now readily take hold of new varieties, and second, because the grower himself lacks first-hand information regarding the new roses. Except for one or two firms who are doing splendid test work for their own information, our present means and methods for testing new roses and disseminating information are woefully inefficient and inadequate.

New Roses from Europe.

"How many of us realize that new roses are being introduced at the rate of 700 every five years? Yet how many of us know little about what we are getting when we buy new roses from abroad and therefore go slow and in consequence are so far behind our European brother as to give him the cream of the American trade!

"For example, last week at the Syracuse rose show, where I acted as judge, there was one amateur who showed 150 varieties out of a collection of something over 250 in his garden, and he was only one of many I met there who were obtaining their stock directly from across the water. Several other amateurs with whom I have come in contact, typical of those who show a discriminating interest in having the best obtainable, seem to feel that it is only natural that they should go to the source of supply in Europe for what they want in the way of roses.

"Let us compare: The average number of roses offered by the six leading rose firms in America last spring was about 400. The average number of roses offered by the six leading rose firms in England was over 1,000. The total number of varieties offered by eleven leading American firms was a little over 1,000, and only eighteen kinds were offered by them all. In these eleven catalogues of 1914 I find ninety-one new roses not formerly listed by any of them. I calculate that American firms have begun adding, on the average, more than twice as many new roses annually as they did five years ago. But selecting them is largely guesswork and consequently we still crawl along in the dark.

"Therefore, in order that we may walk in the light, in order that we may not become burdened with the 1,000-long lists of the Europeans, in order that we may eliminate before they reach the nurserymen's hands the varieties unsuited to our needs, in order that we may build our sales upon 'make good' varieties only, I advocate that American growers provide adequate means for obtaining country-wide tests of roses for Americans. Having once established a means of obtaining regularly a dependable list of roses that will make 'come-back' customers, may we not turn to the other phase of our subject, that of creating throughout the country a greater interest in and a bigger demand for roses?"

The Means.

In explanation of the methods to be used to arouse public interest and promote the rose growers' cause, Mr. Pyle showed stereopticon illustrations of the big European rose exhibitions and gardens. He told of the work done by the Syracuse Rose Society and the American Rose Society, the latter in particular, and urged the organization of rose societies and garden clubs among amateurs, the planting of public rose gardens, such as are now either established or being established at Hartford, Conn., Minneapolis, Minn., and other large cities, and the continuation, on an increasing scale, of the work of the American Rose Society.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Schenectady, N. Y.—Charles Limner has filed a schedule of his assets and liabilities with Referee Van Voast. A creditors' petition in bankruptcy was filed against Mr. Limner February 25, after the Albany Cut Flower Exchange had secured a judgment for $114. Mr. Limner owns some real estate at Woodlawn Stop, which he values at $2,200. It is subject to two mortgages, held by Charlotte Hoyt, of Troy, for $710, and Elizabeth Limner, of Schenectady, $500, leaving an equity of $929 in the property. Other assets are valued at $345.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Primula Malacoides.

Primula malacoides has jumped rapidly into favor since its introduction. It is a rapid and easy grower, is graceful, and makes a salable plant in several months' less time than Sinensis, obconica or Kewensis. A common error is made in sowing this primula too early. If started with the other sorts named, the plants become large and, as the large crowns are densely packed with leaves, there always is great danger of the centers rotting badly during spells of damp, cold and sunless weather. With plants produced from later sowings this trouble is obviated and it will be found that by sowing seeds now capital plants in 5-inch and 6-inch pots may be had for early winter blooming. This primula is worth more attention. It is more graceful than obconica, and will displace it in a large measure. There is a white as well as the colored form now offered. A double variety also has appeared.

Herbaceous Calceolarias.

July is a suitable time to make a sowing of herbaceous calceolarias. These showy flowers lack the texture of the average florists' flower, but appeal to many. Personally I consider C. rugosa Golden Gem and C. Stewarti far more useful varieties, both easily raised from cuttings, but there is a charm about the many-hued flowers of the large herbaceous section hard to resist. Seed should be sown in well drained pans, the compost being mainly leaf-mold and fine sand. To prevent drying out, a good plan is to plunge one pan within a larger one. Cover the pans with glass and this again with paper. Water carefully and keep in as cool a house or frame as possible. The growth made by calceolarias is quite slow in hot weather; in fact, it sometimes is hard to keep little seedlings alive when a prolonged heat wave comes along.

Outdoor Sweet Peas.

Outdoor sweet peas now are blooming freely and, with hot, dry weather prevailing in most sections, it is not easy to keep them flowering satisfactorily. The ground should be frequently stirred between the rows and, if they have not yet been given a mulch, let them have it at once. Old manure, hay, grass, straw, or anything which will hold the moisture will answer. Many growers prefer a mulch containing some plant food. Keep the flowers picked closely and the seed pods removed. Where a good water pressure is at command, a good hosing on the evening of a hot day will be found beneficial. To keep the plants blooming they must have moisture at the roots and artificial watering should be afforded. If green aphis appears, attack at once with a suitable spray. There is less chance for its getting a foothold where the plants can be freely syringed with water at a good pressure.

Flowering Shrubs.

It is important to pick seeds carefully from such plants as azaleas, rhododendrons, kalmias and lilacs as soon after flowering as possible. If not removed, the plants are much weakened. Now is the time also to prune most of the flowering shrubs, such as lilacs, philadelphus, loniceras, spiræas, etc. Directly flowering is over is the time they should be judiciously pruned. Old wood, weak wood, and any which has run away, leaving the plants unshapely, should be well cut back. Where it is not desired to plant new shrubs and the existing ones have run practically wild, they can be cut down, hard thinned out, the ground enriched and kept stirred about them, and it is surprising how much growth they will make in one season. Lilacs, loniceras and philadelphus all do well if cut down to near the ground.

Propagating Hardy Deciduous Shrubs.

Where it is desired to increase the stock of deciduous shrubs from half ripened wood, the present is a good time to start propagating. Some varieties, such as deutzias, philadelphus, kerrias, loniceras and spiræas, are easily rooted; so are most of the viburnums, like plicatum, tomentosum, Sieboldi, Opulus and dentatum. The varieties of Syringa vulgaris, better known as hybrid lilacs, are not hard to root if taken at the right time. The wood must be neither too soft nor too firm, and only a propagator of some experience can tell just when the wood is in the ideal condition. The Persian and Rouen lilacs, also S. villosa and one or two other forms, root with the greatest of ease at this season. Use a sandy loam. Put the cuttings in pans, flats or directly in the frames. Cuttings with two eyes are sufficiently large. They must be well firmed and, after they are in the flats or pans, should be sprayed at once. It is important when taking the cuttings off to dampen them with perfectly fresh water. Cuttings of any kind in summer turn black quickly if the water is not perfectly pure. A close frame, shaded from direct sunshine, aired only moderately until the cuttings are rooted, and frequently given a light spraying over, is what these cuttings need. Close up early in the afternoon, so as to bottle up a brisk heat. In the case of shrubs with large leaves, it is better to cut the foliage three-fourths away.

These cuttings can be gradually hardened off after they are rooted, planted out in nursery rows in spring, and they will make fine plants the first season, if kept clean and well cultivated. Of course, where large quantities are to be rooted they should be dibbled directly into the frames. The advantage of flats is that a small grower can move them any time he wishes.

Peonies.

As soon as the blooming period of the peonies has passed all seed should be removed. It also is an excellent time to give the plants some food in the way of a top-dressing of fine bone, dried blood, or any good commercial fertilizer, and hoe this in about them well. This will wonderfully strengthen the crowns and is especially necessary where the flowers have been cut freely, with long stems. If the flower stalks of any clumps of peonies are all cut down to the ground, the probabilities are that these clumps will bloom sparsely, if at all, the following season. Many growers wonder why their clumps fail to bloom, and forget that they unmercifully slaughtered them while in flower.

Show Pelargoniums.

As show pelargoniums pass out of flower they can be stood outdoors and gradually dried off. The common practice is to lay them on their sides at once. This drying off, however, is too sudden and severe. A better plan is to leave them standing erect for at least a week or two. There then is little chance of the plants shriveling.

Geraniums

WINTER-BLOOMING GERANIUMS.

Kindly advise me as to the proper time to take geranium cuttings so as to get fresh winter bloomers in Texas. Will my last year's cuttings be good for winter blooms, and when should I cut them back and repot? What age of geranium makes the best winter bloomer? Can you suggest something cheaper than carnations for winter blooms in a small house run at 50 degrees? Y. F. C.

Geraniums propagated in February and March, potted along, kept under glass all the time, shaded a little in your climate and flowered in 5-inch or 6-inch pots, make satisfactory and salable stock. It would be too late now to do any propagating, but any left-over fall or early spring propagated stock will answer. Older plants, if cut back, kept a little dry until they break, then shaken out and repotted, will also bloom freely and make larger plants. For winter bloom keep the plants pinched until early in September and remove all flowers. Use soil containing bone, but no fresh manure. Some well decayed manure is all right, however.

I do not know of anything better and cheaper to run in a temperature of 50 degrees than carnations. Certainly no other plants will give you such a quantity of flowers over a long period. C. W.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

Stock has been far in excess of demand, with little improvement in sight. The social season has come to an end and the retailers have little other than funeral work to keep the clerks busy. Although there is little activity during the heated months, one firm has devoted three large houses to roses for summer cutting. Exceptional care is being given to the plants, with the result that the flowers are above the ordinary run of stock and meeting with better sale. As a whole, the roses and carnations now to be had are good for this season of the year, but that is saying little. In all lines there is a price only on the choicest of qualities, the balance going at what the buyer is willing to give for it.

Various Notes.

Tuesday, July 7, the monthly meeting of the Florists' Club will be held on the spacious grounds surrounding the home of William F. Gude, at 3800 New Hampshire avenue, northwest. Special electric illumination is to be provided and many novelties will be introduced. The feature of the evening will be the lecture of Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., on "A Trip Through Scotland," which he expects to give in a number of cities in connection with the William R. Smith memorial project. An invitation has also been extended to the members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Baltimore, and their ladies, while that to the Washingtonians also includes the ladies.

While chasing a young crow through the fields near his home, Louis Hohman, a clerk at the store of Gude Bros. Co., ran into a patch of poison oak and in less time than it takes to tell about it he was a sight to behold. Walter Hawley was with him, but escaped contagion. They are starting for a vacation in New England and northern New York.

A pair of monkeys in the window of Leapley & Meyer, on G street, northwest, is attracting a great deal of attention. So great becomes the crowd at times that it is impossible to keep plants in the doorway or on the sidewalk.

The store of F. H. Kramer, on Ninth street, northwest, was broken into last week and the place turned upside down. The cash registers were empty, so the burglars got nothing for their trouble.

Whoever tapped the safe in the store of the Washington Florists' Exchange was a little more lucky, for Manager Albert Schnell has reported to the police that $965 was removed therefrom June 26. He said the door of the safe had been left open.

J. Harper Hetherington, with the Washington Florists Co., has left for Philadelphia and Atlantic City, where he will spend a five weeks' vacation. George Gouldman, with the same concern, has returned from a pleasant vacation spent in Fredericksburg, Va.

According to present indications the Florists' Club will give a flower show in the old Masonic temple, at Ninth and F streets, northwest, during the week of November 2 to 8. Fred H. Kramer, chairman of the committee, announces that negotiations are about to be closed. C. L. L.

BOSTON.

The Market.

With the passing of June, business has dropped to midsummer dullness. The last week of June was the worst for some weeks, there being little business and a heavy surplus of nearly all flowers. In roses, White and Double White Killarney have sold extremely well for funeral work. Others which have a fairly good call are Sunburst, Taft, Kaiserin, Cardinal, Russell and Shawyer. The major part of the flowers now are short-stemmed. Good carnations still come from a few growers, but the majority are poor. Sweet peas are in heavy oversupply; a good many outdoor peas are arriving. Yellow marguerites are getting small, but they still sell as well as anything. Cornflower is a glut. Valley is not selling well, nor are cattleyas and gardenias.

The small gladioli, such as Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride, are nearly over, but such sorts as Mrs. F. King and America are abundant and sell fairly well. Lilies continue far in excess of the market's needs. In the way of miscellaneous flowers, gypsophila is popular. Several hardy perennials, such as larkspurs, Scabiosa Caucasica, digitalis, etc., are seen and prove useful for window decorations. Adiantum, hardy ferns and asparagus all are abundant, with slow sales.

Convention Preparations.

A most enthusiastic meeting of the local governing board of the 1914 S. A. F. convention was held in the Parker House, Tuesday, June 23. It was called by Vice-president Patrick Welch to talk over local matters with Charles Critchell, of Cincinnati, the national chairman of the committee on sports, and Secretary John Young, of New York. Many plans were formulated looking to the entertainment of the visitors, and it may be said that Boston will be prepared to offer one of the most entertaining and enjoyable programs ever presented to the members of the S. A. F.

After the meeting and luncheon, Vice-president Welch took a party, comprising Mr. Critchell, Mr. Young, Mr. Shea, E. Allan Peirce and others, in his auto to Nantasket beach and other resorts with a view to selecting the grounds where the annual outing and sports may be held.

The committee on the convention garden has certainly done yeoman service during the last two weeks. Chairman James B. Shea, with his numerous assistants, has been over his head in detail. Foreman Murphy and Kenneth Findlayson, who have charge of the planting, have worked from early morn until late at night setting out the large shipments of new and rare plants sent by many of the leading growers for this event, and when all is told their earnest work for the success of this great undertaking will prove the thought and care that has been put into it. From environment and accessibility the garden should have the greatest attendance of any affair of its kind ever attempted, and it is regretted that more of the distant growers did not appreciate this. It is not too late, however, as a few desirable plots may still be obtained, and with the excellent care that will be accorded any plantings the exhibit should be at its best during August.

Rose and Strawberry Show.

Although a few days late to suit some of the near-by growers, the exhibition of both roses and strawberries June 27 and 28 was well up to the average, and far better than had been expected, considering that practically no rain has fallen since May 12.

For not less than twenty varieties of roses, filling fifty vases, M. H. Walsh, gardener to Miss S. B. Fay, was first; J. L. Smith, gardener to A. W. Preston, second; J. D. Gordon, gardener to Thomas N. Cook, third. In the various other rose classes, in addition to the foregoing exhibitors, a number of prizes went to M. Sullivan, gardener to W. Whitman; George Barker, gardener to A. F. Estabrook; George Page, gardener to Mrs. Frederick Ayer; E. L. Lewis, gardener to Frederick Mason, and to Albert Geiger. Mrs. A[illegible]t Geiger, Jr., took first and second f[illegible] most artistically arranged baske[illegible] roses, while for the most artistic decoration of roses with their own foliage, the successful competitors were George Page, M. H. Walsh and T. N. Cook.

The hybrid teas and teas were shown in greater numbers than ever before. The varieties showing up best were The Lyon, Kaiserin, Miss Cynthia Ford, Gustav Grunerwald, Dean Hole, General MacArthur, Mme. Ravary, Etoile de France, Dorothy Page Roberts, Prince de Bulgarie, Marquise de Sinety, Mme. Caroline Testout, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Jonkheer J. L. Mock. The finest hybrid perpetuals were Frau Karl Druschki, Clio, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Prince Camille de Rohan, Margaret Dickson, Mrs. Sharman-Crawford, Magna Charta, Paul Neyron, Francois Levet, Baron de Bonstettin, Ulrich Brunner, Captain Hayward, Duke of Edinburgh and Baroness Rothschild.

In the amateur classes Robert Seaver practically swept the deck with splendid flowers. His baskets also were tastefully arranged. Martin Sullivan and William Thatcher, gardener to Mrs. J. L. Gardner, had the best sweet williams. Mr. Sullivan took first for twelve vases of delphiniums, showing excellent spikes. For collection of hardy herbaceous plants, first place went to the Old Town Nurseries, second to the Eastern Nurseries, each making imposing displays. M. Sullivan had the best Campanula Medium, and William Thatcher took first for six gloxinias, with excellent plants; he also showed a fine lot of streptocarpus.

T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. had an exceptionally fine collection of late peonies. H. Stewart, gardener to Miss Cornelia Warren, displayed a large number of cut roses and a group of Hydrangea Hortensia. Farquhar & Co. had numerous bay trees and conifers in tubs, also an extensive display of herbaceous plants. The Mount Desert Nurseries had a large collection of peonies, iris, saxifrages, incarvilleas and other hardy perennials. Mrs. E. M. Gill and Mrs. Chadbourne had miscellaneous displays. E. L. Lewis and John L. Smith showed nice sweet peas. William Nicholson had a display of edelweiss.

T. C. Thurlow & Sons Co. received a gold medal for the great work they have done in popularizing the peony. This firm has been one of the pioneers with peonies and the award was well merited.

Silver medals were awarded to the Mount Desert Nurseries and Farquhar & Co. for their displays of hardy perennials. Jackson Dawson received honorable mention for a display of seedling roses, and similar awards went to William Nicholson, for edelweiss; A. H. Fewkes, for a collection of late peonies, and Miss Susan Morris for a display of York and Lancaster roses. George Page had a nice display of gladioli, and E. W. Dwyer had iris and other flowers.

In the strawberry section the display was good. Marshall once more proved to be the champion variety, closely followed by Golden Gate and Barrymore. There was a splendid assortment of vegetables, filling several tables. The Boston Market Gardeners' Association again made a fine display of market boxes packed with choice tomatoes, cucumbers, lettuce, endive, peas and other seasonable varieties.

Various Notes.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., Auburn, R. I., grows a wider assortment of roses than any other concern selling in the Boston markets, and their flowers are of fine quality. The following varieties are grown this season and 6,000 Beauties are planted in addition: Double White Killarney, Killarney Queen, Taft, Cardinal, Dark Pink Killarney, Rostand, Sunburst, Shawyer, Indiana, Russell, Maryland, Stanley, Fire Flame, J. L. Mock, Killarney Brilliant, Ophelia, Hadley, Nesbit, Black Beauty, Chicago and Prince d'Arenberg. William Malloy is the competent and courteous head salesman at the Boston Cooperative Flower Market.

William A. Hastings is receiving from John A. Nelson, of Framingham, White Enchantress, Enchantress, Fenn and Winsor carnations of quality equal to midwinter.

In the disastrous fire which wiped out a large portion of Salem, Mass., June 25 and rendered 2,000 people homeless, McGee, Geary & Co. lost everything. They had a fine greenhouse behind their store, on which they could not get any insurance.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report a heavier volume of June business than ever before in their history.

Among the firms sending in remarkably fine sweet peas of the Spencer type are H. S. Chandler, of Tewksbury, and H. F. Calder, of Norwood.

James Wheeler starts housing his carnations this week. During the prolonged drought he kept them well watered by the Skinner irrigating system.

At Penn's business is brisk in bird baths, sundials, fountains, urns, pedestals and other garden furniture, and the widow decorations show these off to excellent advantage.

The long drought which has prevailed since May 12 was broken by a good rainfall June 27. It certainly was needed, as crops of all kinds were suffering terribly.

The early closing on Saturday movement at the wholesale stores and markets commences this week.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. had a large hotel decoration June 29 and several weddings June 27. This concern never had better June business.

Arthur Capers is building two large commercial houses on land purchased on Weston road, Wellesley Hills. Carnations will be his specialty.

J. Newman & Sons, the old established Tremont street florists, had excellent business in June and are well pleased with the trade of the season as a whole.

At Galvin's June business has been good, wedding orders being particularly numerous. The aquatic display in the windows of the Tremont street store is quite attractive. W. N. Craig.

WINDLER FORCE GOES FISHING.

The fishing fever showed its first signs of becoming an epidemic in St. Louis this season June 20, when the staff of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. went out in one of the concern's motor trucks for a half-day's fishing trip. The party stopped long enough on the road for Oscar Kuehn, a guest on this outing, to catch the view of the fishers which is shown herewith. In the foreground, marked conspicuously by his white sox, is the boss, and to his right is the secretary, Albert Gumz.

OBITUARY

William H. Humfeld.

William Henry Humfeld, of Kansas City, died June 25, after an illness of three months. Mr. Humfeld was born in Indiana and was 59 years of age. He had lived in Kansas City twenty-four years, during twenty-one of which he was in the florists' business. He retired from business three years ago. Surviving are his wife and five daughters, Emma, Fannie, Viola, Mrs. L. N. Orear, of Kansas City, and Mrs. P. J. Newman, of Manhattan, Kan. There are a large family of brothers, all in the florists' business, E. A. at Kansas City; Charles at Clay Center; H. M. at Frankfort, Ind., and Simon at Muncie, Ind.

Joseph Wolniewicz.

Joseph Wolniewicz, aged 57 years, died June 26 at his home, 1214 School street, Chicago, from cancer of the stomach, after an illness of over a year. Mr. Wolniewicz was born in Poland, coming to this country thirty years ago, and has been in the florists' business since 1893, trading as Joseph Wall. Last spring he built another store and greenhouses at 3235 Springfield avenue, but both places were managed by his wife and sons. Besides his wife, Victoria, he leaves three sons, Kenneth, Julius and Leonard, and four daughters, Mrs. Stella Ginter, Antoinette, Celia and Laura. The funeral was held June 30, at St. Josephat's church. Burial was at Adalbert's cemetery.

Frank Heil.

Frank Heil, for many years in the park service at Columbus, O., and for the last five years at Schiller park there, died June 18 at the home of his stepfather, Ferdinand Baumann, 937 South Third street, Columbus, at the age of 55. He had been ill for almost two years, suffering from Bright's disease.

Mr. Heil is survived by his widow; a son, Frank Heil, of Toledo, and a daughter, Mrs. Daniel Lenehan, of Toledo. The funeral was held at the Baumann residence June 20, at 8:30 a. m., followed by services at St. Leo's church. Burial was in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

Joseph Bradbury.

Joseph Bradbury died on Saturday, June 27, at South Orange, N. J., at the age of 93. For sixty years he had been a rose grower in that section of New Jersey. He was born in Nottingham, England. A son and six daughters survive him.

Cudahy, Wis.—The Cudahy Greenhouse Co., owned by Patrick Cudahy, has two of its houses up, one planted, the second being planted this week, and the other two well under way. The range, a new one, will consist of four houses each 57x320, iron frame, supplied by the Moninger Co., Chicago. Roses and carnations will be grown, the stock to be consigned to Gust. Rusch in Milwaukee. The rose plants for stocking this new range were obtained of Poehlmann Bros. Co., the carnation plants of Nic Zweifel. The first house planted contains Killarney Brilliant, Mrs. Russell and Richmond, the second Killarney Brilliant and White Killarney.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

IT is significant that the trade is building, each season, larger and better houses. The little, old, wood greenhouse isn't in it any more; nowadays big, wide, high, iron-frame structures are the ones that everybody wants.

QUICK ACTION.

Growers who have surplus stock should not let the dollars slip through their fingers—nor should they experiment with unproven means of reaching the buyers. The quick, sure way of converting a surplus into cash is to offer it in the Classified columns of The Review. It makes no difference where the advertiser is located, this is the way it works:

Please stop my chrysanthemum ad; stock all sold and I am busy returning checks.—Charles A. Moss, Spartanburg, S. C., June 26, 1914.

Please discontinue our classified ad of ferns; we had only about 2,000 and sold them all in two days.—W. T. Buckley Co., Springfield, Ill., June 27, 1914.

MORE LOSS FROM HAIL.

A hail storm June 21 inflicted a heavy loss at the greenhouses of Gustav Obermeyer, at Parkersburg, W. Va. Not only was a large amount of glass broken, but nearly everything planted outside was cut down and destroyed by the storm. On the succeeding night, June 22, a heavy wind storm came in an opposite direction from the hailstorm and broke about the same amount of glass on the opposite side of the houses. The wind attained a velocity of fifty-eight miles an hour and did great damage in the vicinity.

On the night of June 27 hail hit the establishment of Walter E. Hastings, South Lyon, Mich., breaking practically all the glass on the west sides of his greenhouses, and cutting up the stock, both in the houses and outside. He estimates the loss at $350 to $400. About 1,200 2½-inch and 3-inch cyclamens in frames were stripped of most of their leaves.

A CODE FOR PUBLISHERS.

The Associated Advertising Clubs, recently in session at Toronto, adopted a code for newspapers to which The Review heartily subscribes, as it sets forth the policy on which this publication for years has been conducted. The code is this:

1. It is the duty of the newspaper first to protect its honest advertiser and the general newspaper reader as far as possible from deceptive or offensive advertising.
2. To sell advertising as a commodity on the basis of the proved circulation and the service the paper will give to the manufacturer or the merchant, and to provide the fullest information as to the character of such circulation and how procured.
3. To maintain uniform rates according to classifications and to present those rates as far as possible in a uniform card.
4. To accept no advertising which is antagonistic to the public welfare.
5. To effect the largest possible coöperation with other newspapers in the same field for the establishment and maintenance of these standards.

If the advertising clubs will support their code vigorously and persistently much good will be done, but will they? Experience has taught that at least a percentage of all advertisers, however much they may talk about applying business methods to the purchase of publicity, actually in practice do nothing of the kind. Not all but many are swayed by one consideration or another to buy advertising wholly without regard to circulation, the standing of a publication, or the value of its space. It doesn't take an association of advertisers to find out what a paper's circulation is—any intelligent man can get close enough to the truth for practical purposes—but we fear it will take something more than an association to keep some advertisers from buying space with their eyes shut.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Business for the last week in June turned out better than was expected. Ordinarily there is a sharp tapering off after the school closings, which generally end with the third week in the month, but this year many wholesalers report the last week in the month as actually giving a better total of sales than was obtained in the third week. Business has not been quite up to the usual standard this June; a majority of the wholesale houses are obliged to report some decrease in sales, but the last week, compared with what has gone before, was especially good.

A special feature of last week's business was the big volume of sales on American Beauties. Rarely has this flower sold cheaper, and probably never in larger quantity. While a few of the growers were cutting little, most of the important Beauty producers were in full crop with the houses run for the summer. There was an abundant supply of all lengths, and extra long stems were so plentiful that the picked-over accumulation of imperfect and open flowers was jobbed off at extremely low prices. There are reports of sales of long Beauties at $40 and $50 per thousand, while $60 was a not uncommon price, but it should be remembered that this was not first grade stock such as the first-class stores require; the bargain sales were on the leftovers. One wholesaler admits having had two large iceboxes jammed to the doors with Beauties at the closing hour June 26, but they were all cleaned out Saturday. This week the supply has been somewhat reduced by a wave of unseasonably cool weather, but there still are enough Beauties, with a probability of a prompt response when the weather warms up again.

The supply of roses is considerably reduced. It was heavy during the hot days of last week and the curtailment at the beginning of the present week is regarded as due only to the fall in temperature, with the probability that the rose supply will jump with the return of normal heat. Mrs. Russell is the best rose in the market, with Mrs. Shawyer also showing up well. A few Hadley have arrived, but they are not yet showing their true character.

Carnations have gone downhill steadily, in supply, but growers have thrown out their poorest stock first, so that there has been an improvement in average quality. Carnations are selling well at usual summer prices.

Peonies are practically over. There will be a few for some weeks yet, but they have disappeared from most of the price lists. Since the glut passed peonies have done well. Those now on hand are selling excellently. Easter lilies are in larger supply, growers having timed crops to fill the void left by the departure of the peonies. Weather conditions have held back the gladioli; such as are coming are selling well. Shasta daisies are everywhere. A few asters are seen, but they are not yet of good enough quality to attract attention. Sweet peas have taken a new lease of life as the result of a few cool days, but most growers had thrown them out. The call for valley is falling off. Cattleyas are not in large supply, but many of them are extremely fine. Such summer flowers as gaillardia, coreopsis, achillea and feverfew are selling better than usual. The greens market is quiet.

Practically all the wholesale houses have joined in the 5 o'clock closing through the summer and there is agitation to close all day Sunday during the same months. It does not seem likely, however, that anything will come of the Sunday proposition. While the houses that do only local business generally favor the idea, those which do shipping business on first presentation refuse to consider such a suggestion. O. W. Frese, for instance, says that Poehlmann Bros. Co. shipped fifty-one boxes of flowers in the half day June 28. To test the matter out, Bassett & Washburn, who do a large shipping trade, headed a list of those agreeing to Sunday closing and one of their employees circulated it June 30. All but three of the wholesalers signed, two stating that they will do so if all the others will—and there the matter rests for the present. An alternative suggestion is to let those who are off every other Sunday also have Saturday afternoon.

Various Notes.

Outings are scheduled for two consecutive Sundays. The Cook County Florists' Association has put up posters announcing a lake trip on the Theodore Roosevelt to Michigan City July 12. It is understood that the Chicago Florists' Club's committee has decided on an outing at Morton Grove July 19, al-

July 1 William Kidwell, who has for years conducted the establishment of J. F. Kidwell & Bro. at 929 East Forty-third street, took over the place at 3806 Wentworth avenue heretofore run by John F. Kidwell. The younger brother, William, will in future, with the aid of his son, conduct both places. The retirement of John F. Kidwell closes a long career in the retail end of the business. Mr. Kidwell will in future spend most of his time at Downers Grove, where he makes his home, and where his son and nephew run the Wellworth Farm greenhouses.

Acting as receiver for E. H. Hunt, Inc., Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel, last week closed up the affairs of the bankrupt corporation by paying creditors a first and final dividend amounting to about eighteen per cent of their claims.

Taking Orchestra hall, on Michigan avenue, on a three months' lease, Lubliner & Trinz opened a moving picture show there July 1. The theater has 2,500 seats and they give six shows a day. Consequently there is a possibility of 15,000 admissions a day at 25 cents each, and a probability of cleaning up a good bunch of money while the flower business is in its dull season, even if the rent is $5,000 a month.

Three head bookkeepers in succession have resigned their positions with the E. C. Amling Co., within the last year and a half, to be married. Miss Wattman, who held the position for some years, left for this reason, and was followed by Miss McCarl, and now Miss Amling is leaving. E. C. Amling says he should think this record would make the position especially attractive to other young ladies.

C. A. Samuelson is looking forward to the day, before the end of this month, when he can go to Idaho for a few weeks' change of occupation. He has two fruit farms there and he does not loaf on vacation.

last of its peonies out of cold storage June 29, and O. Johnson says they counted out 144 dozen less than they counted in. He states that he is presenting a bill to the warehouse company and the rest of the wholesalers will watch with interest his efforts to collect it.

N. P. Miller, president of the Cook County Florists' Association, states that he has signed a contract, on behalf of his organization, for the Gregory tour to San Francisco for the week of the S. A. F. convention next year. The contract can be canceled in case the convention goes elsewhere, but calls for the payment of $10 per man September 1. Mr. Miller says he already has twenty-five booked for the trip.

O. A. Tonner reports the last of the peonies taken from cold storage this week and says that the results with them in the last half of June have been the best ever obtained for the Tonner stock.

George C. Weiland, secretary of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has called the fourth annual meeting of the stockholders, to be held at 176 North Michigan avenue next Monday, July 6, at 3 p. m.

August Jurgens and Anton Then returned last week from a short trip to Calumet, Mich. Mr. Jurgens considered that the peony plantation there, in which he and E. E. Pieser are jointly interested, had not become sufficiently established to make it worth while cutting anything this year.

Charles H. Post, with J. Pehrson, 1134 Bryn Mawr avenue, leaves next week for two weeks' vacation at Loon Lake, Michigan.

Joseph Welch, 4407 Broadway, spent a few days last week at Fox Lake, Ill., on a fishing trip.

Robert Northam was able to come down to George Reinberg's store for a few hours June 29. He says he feels fine and expects to be on the job next week.

Retailers make a mistake, according to John Zech, in ordering open lilies to arrive just before they are wanted for use; open flowers always bruise more or less. Mr. Zech thinks every store that does a fair sized business should carry a couple of days' supply of lilies on hand all the time, receiving them in bud, in which shape they ship any distance without injury.

date costume passing—it may be only John Mangel's new White truck going down the street. Indeed, Mr. Mangel has quite the gayest turnout in town. The body, specially built on his order, is so largely glass that one wonders if the chauffeur's job will be worth having.

H. W. Rogers, of Weiland & Risch, is at Spring Lake, Mich., with his family, for the annual outing. They left June 27. Mr. Rogers will return in a fortnight, but Mrs. Rogers and son will be away until September.

Wietor Bros. are using Moninger's wood gutters on the new carnation houses being put up this season.

L. H. Winterson and Mrs. Winterson celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary June 30.

The greenhouse employees at Peter Reinberg's enjoyed a picnic at the grounds in Morton Grove June 28 and took the opportunity to inspect the establishment of Poehlmann Bros. Co., many of those connected with the latter concern joining in the festivities and helping to make the visitors feel at home. Mr. Reinberg loaned his big motor truck to the men for the day.

William A. Peterson, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, was treasurer of the International Sunday School Association, the triennial conference of which brought thousands of visitors to Chicago last week. He handled over $100,000 of association funds. Mr. Peterson also acted as marshal of one of the divisions of the parade, many thousands strong, through the downtown streets June 27, Peter Reinberg, president of the board of education, having been one of those invited to review the marching host.

A new white enamel refrigerator, ten feet in length, is being built by Buchbinder Bros. for the Geo. Wittbold Co. It is to be of special construction and will be installed in the Clark street store. Complete rearrangement of the fixtures also will be made to conform with the ideas of Victor Young, the manager.

P. L. McKee, general manager of the Moninger Co., says this is by far the largest season his company ever has had in the forty-five years it has been building greenhouses. For some time the factory has been in continuous operation, night and day.

T. E. Waters is busy this week, taking a semiannual inventory of the supplies stock of Poehlmann Bros. Co.

An injury to his hand some time ago, developing into blood poisoning, required Harry Manheim, with Hoerber Bros., to undergo an operation June 25.

The death of Joseph Wolniewicz, who has done business under the name of Joseph Wall, at 1214 School street for many years, is reported in this week's obituary column.

Felix Reichling underwent a serious operation under the hands of Dr. Ochsner, who has made that institution famous. Mr. Reichling has made many friends since his appointment as manager of Peter Reinberg's store and they will be pleased to know that the lady is getting along as well as could be expected considering the fact that she was on the operating table two hours and a half.

A flower tag day for charity June 30 used up a large quantity of carnations and roses. The ladies took in $5,000 in dimes and quarters.

A. L. Vaughan reports a visit last week from T. J. Corbrey, a former Chicago wholesale florist now located at Long Branch, Cal.

Milo Crozer, of J. G. Crozer & Son, Cedar Rapids, Ia., was in town June 29 on a buying expedition. He says that at Cedar Rapids "nobody cares who's President; with us what counts is that corn is king, and the prospects were never better than now." The Crozers opened a new store a short time ago and are running both places with marked success.

Among those who visited the market this week were the Chapin brothers, of Lincoln, Neb., and Swan Peterson, Rockford, Ill.

A visitor at the office of The Review June 27 was C. S. Harrison, of York, Neb., on his way home from the nurserymen's convention at Cleveland, where he read a paper. Mr. Harrison is 81 years of age, but does a full day's work as a propagator. He is an indefatigable writer and lecturer and is preparing to issue a book on the peony.

A. E. McKenzie, head of the McKenzie Co., Brandon, Man., was a caller at The Review office June 29, returning from the seedsmen's convention at Washington. He considers the outlook in the northwest as never having been better.

Another of this week's visitors at the office of The Review was W. B. Davis, of Davenport, Ia., Terre Haute, Ind., and elsewhere. As announced in last week's issue, Mr. Davis has just given Lord & Burnham Co. the largest single order for greenhouse material ever placed in this country. Ten houses, eight of them 76x600, iron frame, detached. He is in the market for approximately 10,000 boxes of 16x24 glass. Mr. Davis is moving his family to Terre Haute, leaving the Davenport plant in the hands of Albert Ankeny, his brother-in-law, who has been identified with the Davenport company since the establishment was started.

The week has been a good one, from a business standpoint, especially for this season of the year. A good demand for all kinds of cut flowers was experienced. Roses were not so plentiful as formerly, nor was the quality so good on an average. Carnations are still coming in and meeting with a fair demand at moderate prices. Lilies have sold well and fair prices were realized for worth-while stock. Valley was not in as good demand as last week, due, no doubt, to the decrease in weddings. Smilax sold well and there was plenty to be had at a reasonable figure. Some cold storage peonies were seen and, while not of fancy quality, they found a ready sale. The long drought from which this city has been suffering was broken during the week by a number of heavy showers which were of untold benefit to outdoor stock, which is beginning to brighten up, although some time must elapse before it will again be at its normal state of growth.

Various Notes.

R. L. Graham and wife spent three days at Atlantic City last week, having gone on the annual outing of the Old Town Merchants' Association, of which Mr. Graham is a member.

August R. Tischinger, well known florist of Govanstown, was married June 25, his bride being Miss Mabel Skillman. The couple left for a two weeks' stay at Atlantic City.

The Leo Niessen Co. is said to have handled an average of 1,000 peonies a day for the last ten days.

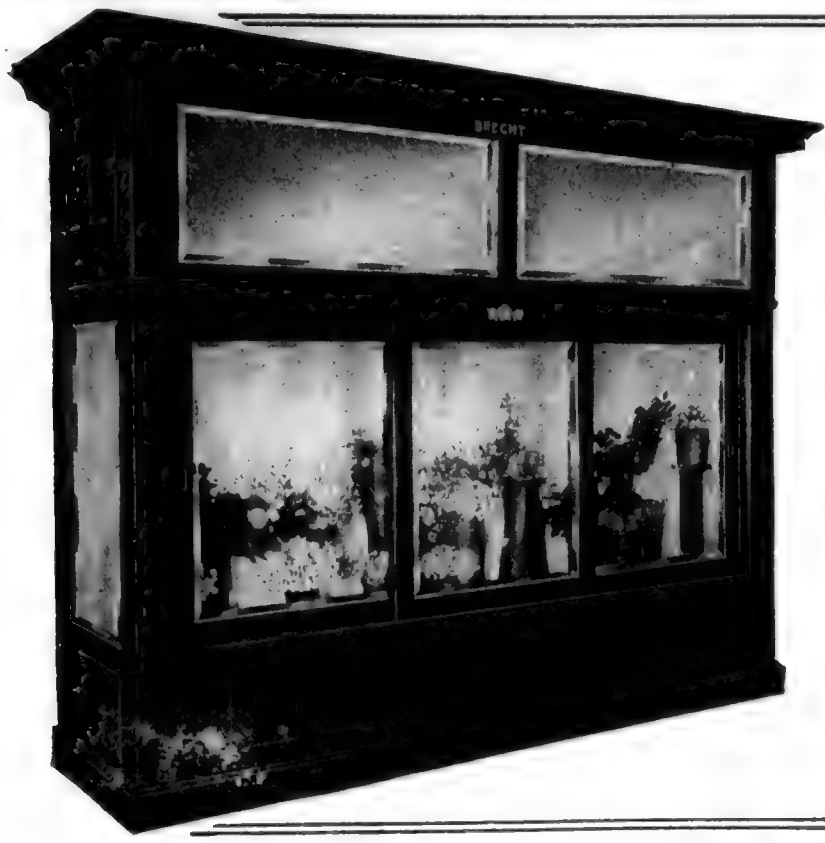
Lohr & Fritze have finished their new addition, 50x100, L. & B. iron construction. About half of this house is planted to roses, which are looking well. It is planned to extend this house to a length of 300 feet, for which three other houses of their present range will be removed.

Halliday Bros. had an attractive display of blue ragged robins in their windows last week.

Hugo Walther, of Park Heights, has some good potted petunias and fuchsias left from his spring stock.

Harry Glick, one of the employees of the Leo Niessen Co., left June 27 for a two weeks' vacation at Ocean City.

George Eberle, 2227 Fleet street, had a large wedding job last week, for which a large quantity of cut stock was used and which required extra help to get it through on time.



This city was visited by a severe electrical storm June 25, accompanied by heavy rains, high wind, and hail. While no serious damage has been reported, outdoor stock was considerably cut up in the western and southwestern sections of the city and suburbs.

Wm. F. Gude, of Washington, extends a cordial invitation to the members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of this city, and their ladies, to attend a Scotch lecture to be delivered by Richard Vincent, Jr., at Mr. Gude's home Tuesday evening, July 7. Anyone desiring to make this trip will please get into communication with Mr. Vincent or President Johnston, of the local club, who will make the necessary arrangements. W. F. E.

Business for the last two weeks has been excellent in all branches. Wedding and funeral trade was a little better than usual. Counter trade was good. Practically every florist in the city reports that June this year shows an increase over any previous June. Carnations vary both in price and quality. Most of the growers have thrown out their old plants and have replanted with new stock. Roses cleaned up nicely last week, the best being Russell and Beauty. Some of the Beauties are poor, but there is a large quantity on the market and all are selling at low prices. Some of the summer varieties have come in and these are of excellent quality. Cut stock from the field was scarce last week, as it is a little early for most things, and late for peonies and Spanish iris. Shasta daisies have commenced to come in, but the flowers are small, on account of the dry weather. Sweet peas are becoming scarce and few are of any use. Rubrum lilies are abundant and are selling fast, especially for funeral work.

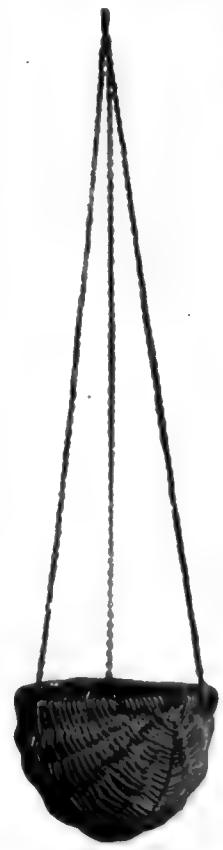
Various Notes.

Arthur Newell has had a big run on small baskets. He makes up five to ten of these baskets every day for the window display, selling most of them before evening. It is a good way to use up short-stemmed stock. These little baskets are used mostly for hospitals, being something different from the usual box of flowers. They are made attractive and people are quick to buy them. Mr. Newell says these things are what make the store attractive and what help to keep the business up through the summer months. He also believes in keeping his store attractive through the summer months, as well as in the winter.

T. J. Noll is receiving some of the finest roses and carnations that ever were seen in this city at this time of the year. He is getting his supply from the mountain region in the west. The stock is as good as can be had in the winter months, and he has a big demand for it.

Henry Kusik is feeling much better and is again able to take an active part at the store. He reports business as being good and that good carnations are scarce and hard to get. Mr. Cranston is back from his vacation.



R. S. Brown & Son are busy making repairs. They are improving both of their ranges of houses. Business with them has been good.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has a lot of work at the greenhouses. The chrysanthemums and roses are in excellent shape and replanting carnations has been begun.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. has started planting carnations in the houses. These are in excellent shape. Roses look promising. Business has been good, especially in out-of-town funeral work.

Seven of our local florists have been the victims of a swindler, who in each instance ordered about $10 to $12.50 worth of flowers, paying for them with a money-order of $38.50. He is medium built, has a dark complexion and smooth face, so look out for him.

The Eastern Market.

The season closes with lighter supply and lighter demand. The stock of poor flowers is much larger than of the good ones and orders require careful selection. Valley continues one of the leading flowers; it has been in supply lighter than the demand for several weeks. Mock is proving itself a great warm weather pink rose. Russell is good and Taft excellent, where color is not needed. Double White Killarney seems a good thing. The few Kaiserin and Shawyer are useful, but Maryland and Killarney are hardly up to market requirements. Beauties are in fair crop and sell pretty well when good.

Of the other flowers it is not necessary to say much. Centaurea has come, as have asters, although, unlike the first named, they are not yet good. Gladioli are rather late in coming into crop. Sweet peas are going down hill.

Chrysanthemums.

Robert A. Craig says that the wrinkle of planting two small plants together has proved satisfactory; this season he is benching about 30,000 double plants at his company's West Philadelphia place. He is a believer in soft wood stock that will go right ahead and has prepared nearly twice that many young plants for shipping. Ramapo, the improved Col. Appleton, is so good a variety, Mr. Craig says, that he is planting it largely. His list includes all the better kinds.

Europe.

J. Max Nitzschke has cleverly fashioned an ingenious hydroplane, which graces the window of J. J. Habermehl's Sons at the Bellevue-Stratford. Mr. Nitzschke says that his device was made without tools; to be exact, with the aid of a knife, hammer, some silk, some cigarboxes, nails, copper wire and steel wire. It is a truthful reproduction of the modern monoplane. It is suitably decorated, electrically lighted and arranged to convey the idea of carrying the Habermehl orders to the ocean liners with speed. There are mountains, waterfalls and lovely green, so restful to gaze upon.

The Go-as-you-please.

Edward Swayne was victor in a 25-mile go-as-you-please race from Pottstown to West Chester. His opponent set the pace for the first three miles, which he covered in thirty-five minutes, using a tremendous stride and little running. Mr. Swayne had by this time sized up his heavier though more youthful adversary and assumed the lead. After seven miles the race became a procession. Mr. Swayne covered the first nineteen miles in three hours and eight minutes; the whole distance of twenty-five miles, much of it up hill, over all kinds of roads, in four hours and thirty minutes. His opponent took two hours more and finished gamely just as a relief party was being sent out after him.

house cleaning must be finished. A tremendous job! The spring shipping rush being over, the houses must all be gone over, plants shifted and reset, space under the benches cleaned, pots straightened, rubbish carted away. While this is being done the outside grounds must be kept cultivated free from weeds, and such stock as is under irrigation must be watered. Then there are the frames to be filled with tender stock, and the orders to be kept moving. Add to this the same work, somewhat modified, at Riverview and outside work at Locust Farm and some idea can be formed of the amount of work that must be done in a short time. Large numbers of extra men are brought in for the rush, but even with these additional forces it would be impossible to get things done properly without efficient leaders and the Dreer spirit above all.

The Dreer spirit? A good parallel may be taken from the history of the British in India. There a handful of officers working together, with native followers to obey their orders, control whole provinces of an empire under most unfavorable tropical conditions, heat, jungle, mountains. The Dreer spirit makes possible the accomplishment of great things horticultural in a quiet, unassuming way scarce known to those who are not brought in contact with the work in their daily lives, unless they stop to measure what is accomplished each year and know the obstacles.

Various Notes.

Frank Hunter has purchased the greenhouses and stock of Macaw Bros., at Norwood, Pa.

Macaw Bros. have their new place consisting of three handsome Lord & Burnham houses, situated on fourteen acres of ground at Norwood, Pa., in running order. One house is planted with gardenias, two with early chrysanthemums, the side benches in ferns.

James McClans motored John Berger, Eugene Bernheimer and Charles S. Krueger down to Beach Haven, N. J., June 25, for two days' fishing. They had a splendid catch and enjoyed it immensely, barring a detention on the road over night due to a shortage of gasoline.

Fred J. Michell, Jr., Philip Freud and Israel Rosnosky went over to the sweet pea show in New York June 27, where the display of sweet peas was superb, as was Geranium Helen Michell, some fifty plants, the first prize winners of William Robinson having sixteen blooms on a 4-inch pot.

W. J. Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind.; E. A. Seidewitz, of Baltimore; L. C. Kippin, of Sedalia, Mo., and A. Leuthy, of Roslindale, Mass., were recent visitors.

B. Eschner says that the florists' shop on the steamer Vaterland was a surprise to him. It afforded fine flowers all the way over, whenever you wanted them, with a little greenhouse of growing plants above the shop.

The Johnson Seed Co. reports a brisk demand for millet and buckwheat.

Casper and George L. Pennock have a wonderful cold storage plant, containing four large rooms, for their lily of the valley.

Charles and Lewis Berger, who are running their father's greenhouses in Germantown, this week sent their first orchids to Berger Bros.

H. Bayersdorfer and Mrs. Bayersdorfer will be home on the Vaterland this week.

John Kulp has decided to wait one year before building at Fort Washington, Pa.

Public attention has been aroused by the lovely water lilies in the window of Henry A. Dreer, Inc. Phœnix Roebelenii, the most durable palm, graces the opposite window. The mid-summer catalogue goes out this week.

Joseph G. Neidinger cabled from Paris that he would return on the Vaterland this week.

Charles E. Meehan has taken his family to Ocean City, N. J.

Edward Reid will sail for Europe with his family July 16, to visit his home in Ireland. Mr. Reid, who returns for the first time after thirty years of hard work in this country, has the best wishes of all his friends.

large shipments of imported goods for the fall line, the steamers Prinz Oskar, Prinz Adalbert, Rugia, Chemnitz, and Rhine each contributing their quota.

The success of the club picnic calls forth the hope that greater things will come in the future. Robert B. Bragg voices the sentiment of the workers when he suggests a half holiday in all the wholesale cut flower, seed and supply houses, say in July, so all can go.

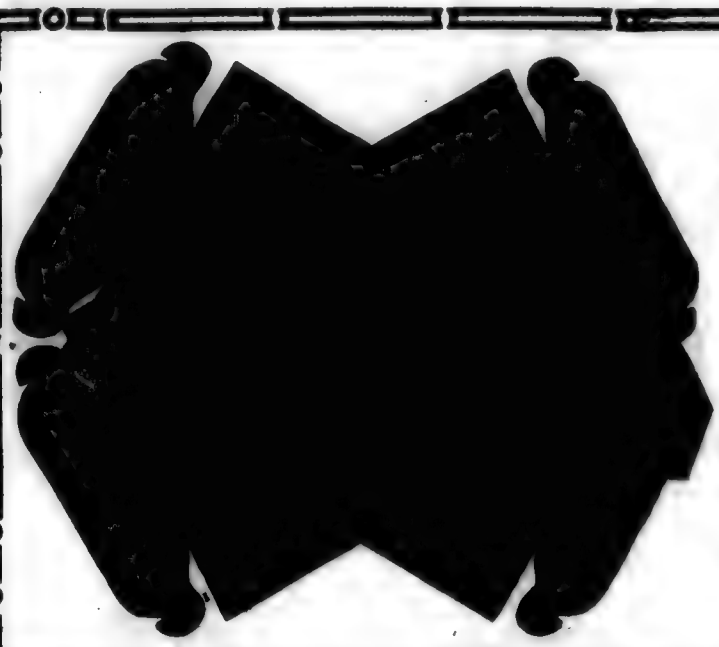
There recently have been three deaths of special interest in this city. That of William F. Bassett, the veteran dahlia grower, of Hammonton, N. J., a man of note, whose two sons, George W. and J. Murray, have followed in their father's footsteps as dahlia experts; of Isaac Kennedy, of Cleveland, O., for many years a grower in this city, at one time a partner of George E. Campbell and later right hand man for John Burton; and of Miss Carrie Rice, sister of the late M. Rice, who died in this city June 25. At her funeral June 28, Eugene Weiss and Bernard Eschner were honorary pallbearers.

H. H. Battles has returned from abroad.

The sporting element here want Charles E. Critchell, of Cincinnati, to note that Robert Q. Shoch was the athletic hero of June 22. Phil.

NEW YORK.

The Market.



The final week of June was "not so bad"; there were weddings galore, commencements innumerable and many funerals, as well as a lessening of supplies. There will be sparse picking the next ten weeks, and growers, wholesalers and retailers may as well prepare for and patiently accept the inevitable.

The peonies have departed after a most unsatisfactory season. Growers may be justified in their complaining, but the stock generally was not up to the average quality of other years. The rose supply is lessening, but prices do not advance. Good Beauties hold well, with the selected ones selling at top quotations. The same may be said of all the teas, the selects bringing fair returns and the lower grades being practically unsalable. Carnations developed some strength during the week, fine stock touching $3 per hundred in small lots and $20 per thousand. The common and sleepy arrivals met with no demand.

Orchids have enjoyed a little uplift and fine gigas are always in demand. The smaller and commoner varieties sell at low rates and are hard to dispose of. Lilies have advanced slightly and valley has held well during the wedding season. There is the usual big supply of outdoor flowers, Crimson Ramblers predominating. We have been overwhelmed with feverfew, and of daisies, forget-me-nots, coreopsis, delphiniums and antirrhinums there is seemingly no end.

Plant Growers' Outing.

The eighth annual outing of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers was held June 23, 24 and

Various Notes.

The Finch-Gardner wedding last week, at Ridgewood, N. J., was the event of the season there. Edward Sceery, of Paterson, had charge of the house and church decorations, which were elaborate and beautiful. Valley, orchids and roses were used profusely.

G. H. Blake, of Bonnet & Blake, Brooklyn, leaves July 10 for a lake trip, from Buffalo to Detroit, and afterward will spend several weeks at his old home, in Rochester. C. Bonnet is enjoying his holiday in his motorboat, fishing and sailing around Long Island. The first asters of the season were seen here last week.

Judge Kelvey, of the Brooklyn Supreme court, says Louis Kuebler is the best foreman of the jury he ever had. Mr. Kuebler has been on jury duty for several weeks.

M. Aronowitz, 66 Barclay street, is building up a large retail trade in lower New York and contemplates a much larger store in September.

Secretary Young, who was in Boston last week, says everything is progressing wonderfully for the convention. The outdoor exhibits will be a surprise to everyone, and the arrangements completed for the entertainment of the society are most elaborate. The boat from New York will carry over 200 to the convention. Those who intend to sleep on the boat will do well to see Chairman Traendly without delay.

European trip, Mrs. Kleinheinz accompanying him.

A. A. McDonald, superintendent of the Duke estate, Somerville, N. J., will sail July 14 for a two months' vacation in Europe.

Samuel Salzberg, formerly with Henshaw & Fenrich and H. M. Robinson & Co., is now with the Walter R. Siebrecht Co.

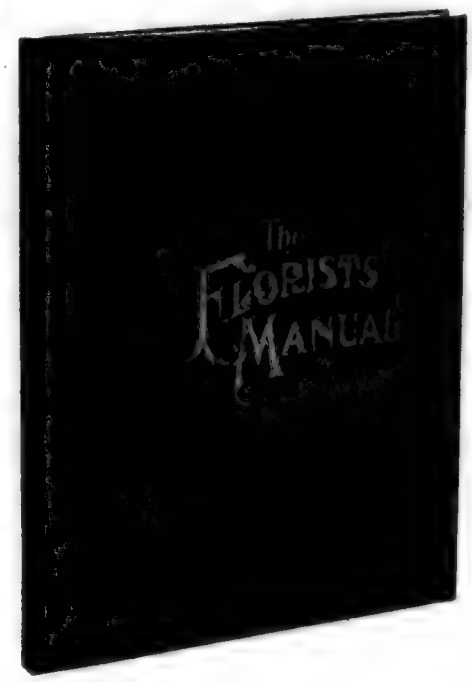
Wednesday, July 8, the outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association will be held at Wetzel's Grove, College Point, L. I. J. J. Fellouris says over 500 will attend. The boat leaves at 10 a. m. from the East Twenty-fourth street pier, New York.

The auctions of plants carried over until Friday, June 25, when the final sale took place. Robert MacNiff, president of the MacNiff Horticultural Co., leaves this week for a short vacation in the mountains.

J. F. Noll & Co., the seedsmen of Newark, N. J., have closed their branch in the Hudson Terminal building in New York.

Frank Good, for four years with John S. Nicholas, is now with F. H. Kramer, of Washington, D. C. His many friends here wish him success in his new field.

Mrs. C. F. Jordan, bookkeeper for Wadley & Smythe, left via the Cymric, June 28, for a two months' European tour.



Mrs. Paul Meconi sailed Saturday, June 27, with her father on the Imperator for a four months' vacation in Europe. Her cabin was a bower of American Beauties, and farewell gifts of other flowers were numerous.

J. K. Allen last week attended the outing of the Royal Arcanum lodge, of Kearney, N. J., at Asbury Park, N. J.

Visitors last week included F. R. Cooper, of the seed firm of F. Cooper, Ltd., Wellington, New Zealand, and John S. Hay, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., on his return to Philadelphia from the Newport show. J. Austin Shaw.

Alfred M. Scheider, partner of Max Schling, left June 26 for a month's vacation in Maine.

President Duckham, of the Florists' Club, has appointed W. F. Sheridan, Wm. H. Siebrecht, A. L. Miller, Jos. A. Manda, Frank H. Traendly, John B. Nugent and Chas. B. Weathered as the nominating committee, to prepare a list of candidates for offices for 1915.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,
J J Beneke

The Southwestern Market.

The local cut flower market is in poor condition; the little stock that is coming in is of poor quality and there is really not much doing in retail circles except for funerals, as most of the society people have gone for summer trips. There are still a few small weddings. From all accounts, the month of June was a good one for the leading retailers.

All local growers are ready to pull out the old plants, and there is prospect of a scarcity in all stock this month. Field-grown stock is in bad shape. The two months of dry weather are a source of much worry to the growers. There is hardly enough first-class stock coming in to supply one store in the busy season. However, there are some really good gladioli, Easter lilies, valley and Shasta daisies. Carnations are small; so are roses. The intense heat last week caused stagnation in every line of business. Cooler weather and rain are promised for this week.

Various Notes.

The twenty-eighth anniversary banquet of the St. Louis Florists' Club took place Wednesday evening, June 24, in the floral banquet room of the Hotel Jefferson. Over seventy-five attended, every member bringing a lady. The large room was beautifully decorated with plants, and the tables with Richmond roses. The decorating was done by Frank Windler, chairman of the trustees, who had the affair in hand. President Wallace J. Pilcher, who was toastmaster, sat at the head table, the others there being ex-presidents, Frank Fillmore, George B. Windler, R. J. Windler and J. J. Beneke, each accompanied by his wife. The menu was a splendid one, the best the club ever has had. While the guests were being served a fine string band, hidden by a bank of palms, played popular airs. After the feast, Toastmaster Pilcher welcomed the guests in behalf of the Florists' Club and called upon all the ex-presidents for short talks, after which he called upon other members of the club for a few remarks. The ladies, who never before had been invited to an affair of this kind, enjoyed the evening greatly. It was voted one of the best affairs ever given by the club in its twenty-eight years of existence.

R. J. Windler, state vice-president of the S. A. F., has about completed arrangements for the St. Louis party to travel to Boston with the Chicago Florists' Club on the president's special. He says the fare from St. Louis will be $35 for the round trip, and he is looking for a large representation from here, as he has received a good number of responses from letters sent to members in his territory. Now that the busy season is ended, Mr. Windler will spend a great deal of time in rounding up new members for the society. President Wirth made no mistake in appointing this young man to this office.

W. J. Pilcher's new rose house is in splendid shape; the young stock has made good growth. Clarence Smith, formerly with Poehlmann Bros. Co., has charge of this branch.

Last week the club trustees made the rounds looking for a suitable place in which to hold the florists' picnic this month. They decided to hold it again at Ramona park, Wednesday, July 22. Other arrangements will be completed by the next club meeting.

Joe Hauser, of Webster Groves, has nearly 5,000 of his new single red dahlias planted out. These met with a great demand last year, causing him to plant double the quantity this year. He also has a fine lot of asters coming on.

Mrs. R. J. Windler left last week for a month's stay with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Zender, in Chicago.

George Schmidt, rose grower par excellence, who has been with Werner Bros., at Clayton, for the last few years, is no longer connected with them.

The C. Young & Sons Co. has an attractive window at the Olive street store, showing a pond containing young ducks and surrounded by decorative plants. There always is a large crowd viewing the swimming feats of the ducks.

Oliver, Frank and Peter Sanders are the hustling younger members of the Sanders Nursery. Oliver and Frank manage the retail store on Clara avenue, and Peter is head of the greenhouse plant out in the country. C. C. Sanders, "the old gent," as the boys call him, takes full charge of the nursery department.

Oscar Kuehn, of the Smith wirework shop, again captured the first prize, offered by a Cleveland daily paper, for the best photograph. He entered several photographs. The one which took first prize was an interior view of the big conservatory of the Missouri Botanical Garden.

Among the near-by florists who called last week were E. W. Guy, Gust Grossart, H. Emunds, A. G. Fehr and Walter Ogle, of Belleville; George Madsen, Alton, Ill.; Edwin Denker, St. Charles,

C. E. De Wever, of Olivette, has his outdoor roses and gladioli in fine shape this year. The long dry spell has not been felt by him, with the Skinner irrigation system working overtime, although rain would be welcome, as water rates come high in the county.

The Foster Floral Co., which has an ice cream parlor connected with its store at Delmar and King's Highway, recently gave away an American Beauty rose with every plate of cream, and Fred Foster says they did a rushing business.

The County Growers' Association held its first annual picnic June 30, at Studt's grove. The regular monthly meeting took place the next day, at 8 p. m.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, July 9. This will be the most important meeting of the year, as the nomination of officers will take place, and S. A. F. matters, as well as local affairs, will come up for discussion. A large attendance is looked for.

of the month are keeping the trade just as busy as the first. While roses and valley are used extensively for wedding work, large quantities of sweet peas have also been made up. Counter trade remains fairly good, though many people have gone to the lakes and country for the summer. Funeral work is using up lots of stock that would otherwise be unsalable, owing to shortness of stem. Stock in general is in good condition, considering the intense heat of the last few days. Prices, however, are low. There has been a glut of carnations, as 65,000 to 70,000 of them have come to the wholesale house during the week, most of them in fairly good shape. Some of these, of course, were shipped on consignment, and have been sold in the streets at the low figure of 10 cents per dozen to clear them. Roses can be found only in the early morning, and for a few days the retailers had to be content with what they could get. Toward the end of the week, however, the consignments were heavier and of good selection. My Maryland, Sunburst and Cardinal were among the leaders. A large quantity of short Aaron Wards was disposed of. Easter lilies are scarce. Valley is not overplentiful. Sweet peas are keeping up their standard well; the quality is good, but the prices are low. A large quantity of lavender sweet peas are on the market. Shasta and yellow daisies are selling well. Lupines are found useful in basket work. Rambler roses are arriving now and are selling readily. The bedding business is letting up gradually and the growers are clearing nicely. The whole season, it is said, has been highly satisfactory in this line.

Various Notes.

A representative of the Manhattan Ribbon Co., New York, called on the local trade June 25.

J. B. Keller Sons have had several large weddings to attend to in the last few days. One of the largest decorations was for Geneva, N. Y., occupying two or three days, and another was for the Cook-Snow wedding, in this city.

H. J. Seel, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis., has visited various florists here and has expressed much satisfaction with what he has seen of Rochester. He is a member of the National Association of Credit Men, who held a convention here June 22 to 26.

Flower day is one of Rochester's red letter days. Upward of 150 daintily dressed girls, all wearing white, carried long-handled baskets of roses and carnations and disposed of them to passers-by for whatever the purchaser felt disposed to pay. The proceeds are to be handed to the free dispensaries conducted by the Rochester Public Health Association. Something like 25,000 roses were used, as well as a lot of carnations. George B. Hart was elected to serve on the floral committee, and he, with A. H. Salter, W. L. Keller, George T. Boucher, H. P. Neun, Fred Thomann, Dick G. Salter, M. Keller, Fred Schlegel, George Cramer and E. P. Wilson, was kept busy filling baskets for the girls nearly all day on Friday, June 26. Most of the flowers were sold and realized nearly $1,800. A 100-dollar bill was given for one rose.

Charles W. Curtis, of Irondequoit, N. Y., has signed a contract with the Lord & Burnham Co. for a new show house, about thirty-three feet long and of iron frame, with good, substantial benches. Mr. Curtis has found this to be an exceptionally good year so far, and he is looking forward to still greater things. His energy and thoroughness can easily be seen by looking over his houses and outdoor beds. He has a fine lot of gladioli which will soon be in blossom. His outdoor sweet peas are being picked. His aster plants have good, large buds and, with favorable weather, will soon be ready for picking.

E. A. PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

With the graduation exercises incident to the close of the school year last week, special activity among the florists ceases until after the summer months. A few late weddings will cause some slight flurry, but the dull season is now at hand. Growers, however, are busy, and in view of the constant annual increase that has been made in the business in this city during the last few years, preparations are being carried out for a much larger supply of cut flowers next season than ever before.

Various Notes.

The store of Mrs. James A. Staples, in the Union block, Woonsocket, suffered a loss of about $1,000 by fire Monday, June 22. The loss is covered by insurance.

large houses at Auburn to Boston and Roosevelt ferns. More than 3,000 plants are being put in.

The greenhouses of John J. Kelley, 244 Broad street, Valley Falls, are to have a thorough overhauling and remodeling this summer.

S. J. Reuter & Son, of Westerly, are sending some fine Taft and Ward roses to the Boston market.

Louis Patry, gardener for the O'Gorman estate, Narragansett Pier, has been spending a few days with relatives in this city.

William Hay is making a complete overhauling of his greenhouses at Oaklawn and preparing for a heavy cut of roses next season.

John Burke, of the Burke & Burns Rose Co., 548 Dyer avenue, is making an extended trip through the west and expects to spend several weeks at Denver, Colo.

Arthur Ames, of Pascoag, reports the largest season in his experience in bedding plants. He has had a large force of men employed on outdoor work.

Eugene Seymour has stocked his violet houses, at Warren, with Roosevelt and Boston ferns.

During the recent visit of Adolph and William F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., they inspected the places of S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, and J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., at Auburn.

The grounds at the Watch House, at Little Compton, have been completely laid out and rearranged by the head gardener, John Norris.

Henry Patry, of Johnston Bros., has been confined to his home by diphtheritic trouble, but is now reported to be improving.

where he has his family for several weeks.

Joseph Koppelman was a recent business visitor in New York and Philadelphia.

Miss Elizabeth Appleton, daughter of the late William Appleton, who has been associated for several years with her father and brothers in the florists' business on Broadway, was married last week. The decorations were arranged by the bride and her brothers.

John Peterson's range of greenhouses on Mendon road, Ashton, had a narrow escape from fire last week. A shed containing tools and supplies caught fire from an unknown cause, but the blaze was fortunately extinguished before spreading.

Under his contract with the city of Pawtucket, William Hoffman has so far put in more than 12,000 bedding plants in the parks of the city. W. H. M.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Outdoor Exhibition.

The second annual outdoor exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Association was held June 24 and 25, on a large lot on Bellevue avenue. The committee in charge had arranged the grounds in an attractive manner, under the direction of Joseph Manda. A large part of the exhibition was made up of displays by the gardeners of the estates of the summer colony.

Among the trade exhibitors were H. A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia, who had a fine display of aquatics; Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., evergreens and topiary work; A. N. Pierson, Inc.,

NEWS OF THE SEED TRADE

DARWIN tulips are in good request again this season and it appears they will be featured in most of the fall bulb books published in the east.

AT the meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association at Washington last week the directors elected Wm. R. Jossman, of Detroit, secretary and treasurer.

IT may interest the trade to note that the government's latest figures show a year's production of beans as 11,145,000 bushels from 784,000 acres, or fourteen bushels per acre.

ERIC SUTTON, second son of Leonard Sutton, of Sutton & Sons, Reading, England, and the firm's chief of the flower seed department, J. Tufnail, are visiting the seed growers in California.

COLLECTIONS through June have not been as heavy as many expected from the volume of business done. A good many concerns of excellent standing have failed to take advantage of the discount for cash following the June 1 dating of bills.

FOLLOWING the report of powdery scab on importations of potatoes from Holland, Belgium and the Island of Bornholm, Denmark, the further importation of potatoes from these places is prohibited, pending the taking of suitable action by the countries concerned.

HONORS, like troubles, sometimes do not come singly, and it was so last week in the case of Lester L. Morse, who within three days was elected president of the American Seed Trade Association and the American Sweet Pea Society, without being present at the convention of either.

THE tendency in almost all lines of business is toward shorter credits. In the seed trade the old custom of June 1 dating, regardless of date of sale, still is almost universal with wholesalers, but there is a strong undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the custom which indicates an approaching change.

ONE of the most remarkable incidents of the present bulb season, according to a British authority, is the big advance in prices, since wholesale catalogues were published, on Darwin and all late-flowering tulips. The advances range from twenty-five to fifty per cent, the latter on new and rare varieties. The general advance in prices is said not to arise from any scarcity of crop, as bulbs generally promise well, but is on account of the increasing popular demand.

A NEW concern will begin business at Crawfordsville, Ind., upon the completion of the building of the Crawfordsville Seed Co., at Washington and North streets. A. Homer Flanigan, for fourteen years with the Crabbs, Reynolds, Taylor Co., of Crawfordsville, and Shirl Herr, for ten years with the same concern, are the promoters of the enterprise. The concern will handle field seeds of all kinds. The installation of machinery begins the first part of July.

THE WASHINGTON CONVENTION.

[For a full account of the opening days of the annual meeting of the American Seed Trade Association, officers' and committees' reports, papers read, and discussions, see last week's issue of The Review.]

Officers Elected.

The thirty-second annual convention of the A. S. T. A. was brought to a close, at Washington, D. C., June 25 by the election and installation of the following officers:

President—Lester L. Morse, of San Francisco.

First vice-president—J. M. Lupton, of Mattituck, N. Y., reëlected.

Second vice-president—E. C. Dungan, of Philadelphia.

Lester L. Morse.
(And his famous Sweet Pea Notebook.)

Secretary-treasurer—C. E. Kendel, of Cleveland, O., reëlected.

Assistant secretary—S. F. Willard, Jr., of Cleveland, O., reëlected.

Counsel—Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, reëlected.

Executive committee—C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Kirby B. White, Detroit; Frank W. Bolgiano, Washington; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore; Watson S. Woodruff, Orange, Conn.

Membership committee—Albert McCullough, Cincinnati; Ben P. Corneli, St. Louis; H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.

The choice of Mr. Morse, in spite of the fact that he could not attend the convention this year, was in furtherance of the plan to hold the 1915 convention at San Francisco during the Panama-Pacific Exposition, with an international conference of seedsmen and a tour in a body through the seed growing valleys south of the city as its chief attractions to draw a large attendance.

Following the installation of the new officers, the retiring president, C. C. Massie, of Minneapolis, was presented with a handsome clock. The presentation was made by E. L. Page, of Greene, N. Y.

The Parcel Post.

The convention adopted a resolution urging the President and the Postmaster General to secure as quickly as possible the reduction of our export parcel post rate to 8 cents a pound or less, and this with a system of insurance up to the full value of the parcel. The following remarkable document also was adopted:

Whereas, in its life of seventy-four years, beginning with the adoption of the uniform 2-cent letter post of Great Britain in 1840, and covering its extension over the United States postal service by Abraham Lincoln and the United States Congress of 1863, and over the business of the International Postal Union in 1874, the modern flat rate postoffice has always and in all circumstances proved itself a wonderful success, and,

Whereas, by its wasteful methods, and its artificial restrictions, the revival of the old discarded zone system in the parcel post service of the United States in 1913 has greatly diminished the benefits of its lower rates and caused needless trouble and expense both to the postoffice and to the public, and,

Whereas, transportation is the basis of our modern civilization, having for its end the elimination of distance and of time, the widening of our opportunities for the enjoyment of life and for getting a living, and,

Whereas, in public transportation, the cost of the service rendered is regardless at once of the distance traversed by any unit of traffic upon the moving machinery, and as to parcels of merchandise or of produce is also regardless of the character of their contents, now, therefore, Be it resolved:

That the public welfare demands the earliest possible consolidation of the entire machinery of public transportation, the transportation of persons, produce and intelligence—railroads, trolley lines, steamboat and steamship lines,—public auto and air lines,—telegraph and telephone lines,—the circulating and nervous system of the body politic—under the public service postoffice with all mail matter in a common class, and with low, uniform, cost-of-the-service rates, door to door everywhere.

Other Resolutions Adopted.

Among the other resolutions adopted were the following: Instructing the committee on crop improvement to take steps toward bringing about of the fullest coöperation between the association and the experiment stations, agricultural college workers and officials and workers of the Department of Agriculture; to keep in touch with the agricultural press in an endeavor to secure more careful editing and consideration of articles affecting the trade; the question of shorter terms of sale on garden seeds to be referred to the new president with the recommendation that he appoint a committee to consider it and report to the next convention; urging members to make persistent use of the disclaimer; continuance of state correspondents for the coming year; urging local seedsmen to establish closer relations with their state seed analysts.

Obituary resolutions were adopted in memory of Wm. Henry Maule, of Philadelphia, and Preston King, of Minneapolis.

SAFETY FIRST

Is a safe, sure and sane rule to follow in the present time of rush and hurry. A well known transcontinental railroad, the pun of many satirical joke fests, has adopted this slogan, and their boast of not losing a life of the hundreds of thousands of passengers they carry each year is further upheld with this policy. The speed mania of the present day American race—the ridicule of the world—not only costs thousands of lives each year, but puts the race in the passe class at the time when man should still be in his prime. Automobiles go racing at breakneck speed on the highways—no train can go fast enough for the average man—work is rushed through in a slipshod manner, having to get finished quickly—and it is a continual rush day in and day out. The strain being too great on the average man, many fall by the wayside, being practically a survival of the fittest. Safety first should be your slogan in buying your bulbs. No cause can bring you greater loss and disappointment than getting poor bulbs and reaping no crop. Horseshoe Brand Bulbs—particularly Lily Bulbs—are without an equal; time, money and labor are spent to standardize them to the top notch quality that is within human power and wisdom to bring them and Horseshoe Brand Bulbs are acknowledged as the best in the world. Buy Horseshoe Brand Bulbs, then you surely will have Safety First.

The Government Experts.

In addition to Congressman Mann, who was heard at the banquet, three of the government seed experts addressed the convention. W. W. Tracy was on the program for one of his always interesting papers, "Trial Grounds; Their Actual and Possible Value." Prof. F. H. Hillman, head of the seed laboratory, explained the work of his office. Edgar Brown, who is in charge of much of the government's work affecting seed trade interests, spoke on selling seeds at retail. In part he said:

"The seed business is an important factor in our agricultural system, but insofar as it is maintained on a strictly merchandising basis, it is not fulfilling the function reasonably to be expected of it. When a farmer goes to one of you to buy seeds that are to be the basis of his crop, he expects the same grade of information about the seeds he is buying as you expect from your architect about your building.

"The seed business of the future," said Mr. Brown, "is going to rest, first, on accurate information furnished the purchaser, and second, on efficiency in handling."

WORK OF THE APHIS.

In sending out a revised price list of winter-flowering Spencer sweet peas, Anton C. Zvolanek, of Lompoc, Cal., says:

"Since sending out our first price list four weeks ago, most of the sweet pea fields in California have been either partly or in many cases totally destroyed by the green aphis. This pest came at the last moment, when we thought that we were going to have a good crop, and came so suddenly and on such a large scale that the fields, then nearly all in full bloom, were ruined in a few days. In many cases we shall be fortunate if we save the stock seed. This disastrous crop condition makes it necessary that we advance our prices, inasmuch as the smallness of the crop necessarily has raised the cost thereof."

BULB IMPORTS.

According to the government statistics the imports of bulbs, bulbous roots or corms cultivated for their flowers or foliage, as the tariff now phrases it, were as follows:

Year	Number	Value
1911	.....	$1,642,274
1912	216,159,000	1,723,354
1913	288,646,000	1,823,307

FREE SEEDS CONTINUE.

When the conference report on the agricultural appropriation bill came up in the House June 25 it provoked a sharp debate with regard to the provision for the free seed distribution. Representative Campbell, of Kansas, said he had received a copy of a circular sent out by an English house advertising that it had received a government contract for some forty tons of seeds and demanded to know why the seeds were not purchased in the United States, at the same time attacking the character of the stock used for the 1914 distribution. Mr. Campbell said a "mess" of stuff has been sent out this year. He said cucumber and cantaloupe seed were mixed indiscriminately, watermelon and pumpkin seed were also mixed, and six kinds of poor lettuce seed in one package. He said the seed sent out this year will cause congressmen trouble and that it furnishes a reason to discontinue the practice of giving seeds away.

Representative Mann, of Illinois, fresh from the banquet the night before of the American Seed Trade Association, said Dr. Tracy, of the Department of Agriculture, had told him there was a shortage of garden seeds in this country and that it would be necessary to buy seed in Europe. Mr. Campbell did not see how it could happen, with the large number of seed growers in this country, that it was necessary to buy seeds abroad. Representative Seldomridge, of Colorado, who said he had had experience in seeds, being engaged in a small way in dealing in seeds, explained that there are certain kinds of garden seeds that cannot be procured in this country of the same quality as from England, Holland and France. Any American dealer in garden seeds, if he were to quote prices on certain varieties, would have to purchase the seeds in Europe, so that the government by dealing direct with the foreign dealer is saving. American dealers are obliged to place their orders with foreign growers for certain varieties in order to supply this market and the department was in line with good business methods in placing contracts with foreign dealers. Mr. Campbell repeated his charge that the seeds sent out this year were a "badly mixed lot of poor seeds," but the conference report was agreed to, and, as announced in last week's issue of The Review, the free seed distribution will continue. P.

SEED IMPORTS.

The government has published the statistics of seed imports for the last three fiscal years. For 1913 they were as follows:

Kind	Quantity	Value
Castor beans or seeds, bus.	887,747	$ 985,598
Clover—
Red, pounds	6,072,842	987,702
Other, pounds	15,151,715	1,508,011
Flaxseed or linseed, bus.	5,294,296	8,127,774
Grass seed, n.e.s., lbs.	25,452,076	1,637,244
Sugar beet, lbs.	14,768,207	1,064,392
Other		3,114,812
Total		$17,425,533

There was a big falling off on clover and flaxseed as compared with the previous years, but the "other" seeds, which include garden and flower seeds, were greater in 1913 than in 1912. Here is the record:

Year	Value
1911	$3,660,125
1912	2,962,817
1913	3,114,812

HARNDEN FILES PROTEST.

The Harnden Seed Co., of Kansas City, with other firms, has complained to the Interstate Commerce Commission against railroad freight rates on Christmas trees. It points out that the railroads have substituted for the through rates a combination of local rates on the trees from points in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota to points in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas and other points that are fifty to 125 per cent higher than those in effect in 1912. The roads have also raised the minimum weight from 20,000 to 30,000 pounds. The complaint asks the commission to fix the minimum weight at 20,000 pounds for 36-foot cars and more in proportion to the length of the car. P.

Thanksgiving Sweet Peas

New Winter-blooming ORCHID-FLOWERED

SWEET PEA ANITA WEHRMAN

A fine, clear lavender, with three to four flowers to stem, and has been grown with 20-inch stems, holding the length longer than is usual with any other winter-flowering variety.

Will bloom from Thanksgiving on, if sown in July.

This variety originated with Mr. Henry Wehrman, of Maywood, Ill., five years ago, and has been grown and selected by him ever since, he now having the type fixed as well as can be in the Spencer variety.

The seed we offer is greenhouse-grown, saved and rogued by the originator, and will be ready for delivery in July, the proper time to sow for Thanksgiving and Christmas bloom.

PRICES:

Trade packet, $5.00 1 oz., $12.00 4 oz., $44.00
8 oz., $80.00 1 lb., $150.00

Quantity limited and early orders are necessary to insure your getting a start with this fine new sort.

NEW WINTER-FLOWERING SWEET PEA

ROSE QUEEN

If you are a grower of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas, you naturally look for the very best strain procurable. The Indianapolis Sweet Pea called "ROSE QUEEN" is without question the finest Sweet Pea introduced for many a year. Orchid-flowering, borne on long stems, extremely free and early and of a pink color most attractive, it is a decided acquisition, and like all meritorious novelties is sure to be in demand wherever grown.

The following letters from men in the trade, well known everywhere, speak for themselves:

Gentlemen:— Indianapolis, Ind., April 14, 1914.
We have handled the pink sweet pea, "Rose Queen," in large quantities for several years, and can heartily recommend it to any grower or retailer as a good keeper and fine seller. It is easily the best sweet pea shown in this market. Respectfully, A. WIEGAND'S SONS CO.

Gentlemen:— Indianapolis, Ind., March 14, 1914.
We take pleasure in conscientiously recommending Mr. A. Pittet's new sweet pea, "Rose Queen." It is the new Orchid type, and has these advantages: They bloom earlier than any other Orchid type on the market are a wonderful producer, and have a clear pink color unsurpassed. We think the price of the seed is a small item. Very truly yours,
BERTERMANN BROS. CO.

Dear Sir:— Richmond, Ind., April 20, 1914.
We are glad to write you a line concerning your beautiful pink Sweet Pea. To our mind it is the most beautiful variety of its color, being large in size, long-stemmed, the tint bright and exceedingly clear and, best of all, the variety is a wonderful keeper. We do not believe there is another sort that will keep, when cut, as finely as this variety. It has been a great favorite in our stores. Yours very truly, THE E. G. HILL CO.

Price: 1 oz., $12.00; 3 oz., $33.00; 8 oz., $80.00; 1 lb., $150.00

BODDINGTON'S "QUALITY" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING

Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

The Sensational Australian Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea, Yarrawa

We have been fortunate to secure a small quantity of this wonderful new Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea from the raiser, Arthur Yates, of Sidney, and now offer it for the first time in America. It is far superior to the prevailing Spencer types—the flowers being exceptionally large and well fluted and waved; in color it is almost a duplicate of Countess Spencer, a delightful light soft rose, which lights up beautifully at night. We offer this original stock till sold at $1.00 per trade packet; three trade packets for $2.75.

THE USE OF PRINTERS' INK.

It should be deeply impressed upon the writer of copy that in every advertisement he prepares for publication the honor of his firm is at stake. It is of supreme importance that every representation made in an announcement to the public should reflect facts. Copy which is not strongly characterized by integrity is unworthy of consideration.

Preparing in Advance.

The up-to-date advertising manager never defers the details of his campaign until the last moment. This department, to be effective, must be down to the minute. Sluggish methods never win out.

No campaign is well planned without the advance preparation of all electros that are required.

The firm that has its advertising well in hand receives more consideration from publishers.

The principles which obtain in farm journal advertising, relating to space, copy, illustrations, frequency of insertion, prices, advance preparation, etc., apply equally to advertising in all other magazines and newspapers.

General Advertising.

With a mail-order seed house the illustrated annual catalogue stands first in the order of importance. Farm journals easily rank second as mediums of advertising. There are, however, many other publications valuable to the seedsmen.

Spasmodic advertising is of little value; continuity is a great essential.

It is increasingly recognized that campaigning along educational lines is a profitable method of advertising.

The use of pictorial hangers is quite popular, particularly with houses engaging in commission box trade. It is my opinion that the returns do not justify the expense.

Liberal use of either calendars or house organs is not to be recommended, for they are seldom more than glanced at.

A discreet use of souvenirs and novelties can be recommended. The reason for this is that this is a form of advertising which is in the nature of a gift, and a gift creates a more lasting mental effect upon the recipient than does a calendar. There is a disadvantage in the excessive cost, but this can be appreciably reduced by proper selection.

The favorite form of outdoor advertising consists of posters. This is a form of publicity that requires comparative density of population.

If I were asked to state in one word what constitutes the outstanding feature of good advertising, I would choose the word individuality. The world has little use for the man who merely imitates somebody else, but the world has a profound admiration for the man who develops his own distinctive traits of character. Give your advertisements an individuality that indubitably stamps them as yours. Also that which signally characterizes your advertisements in 1915, should be different from that which characterizes them in 1914.

Should there be a policy of retrenchment in advertising in times of finan-

July and August for Dollars

THERE is satisfaction and profit the year round to growers of my original Silver Pink Snapdragon, but the greatest returns are to be had from seeds sown in July and August. This gives a long flowering season with maximum results. There is no snapdragon that is so easy to grow nor that will produce the number of blossoms that seedlings of my Silver Pink will. They start quickly and make rapid growth, which means healthy, vigorous plants when ready to bench. Don't compare them with cuttings. My seedlings are a mile ahead. Note what a few customers say:

Quogue, N. Y., June 8,'14.
Mr. G. S. Ramsburg.
Dear Sir: Inclosed find check for $5.00, for which send me 7 packets of S. P. Snap seed. I had a fine lot last season.
Very respectfully,
James S. Fraser.

We inclose check for $5.00 for 7 packets seed of your S. P. Snap. Doing fine with it. Is a grand color and seller.—Raugh Bros., Springfield, Mo.

Inclosed check for $6.00. The seedling plants I got from you last fall have done fine.—Thos. Barson, Johnstown, N. Y.

Please find check for S. P. Snaps, which are certainly grand.—Henry Benthien, Tacoma, Wash.

Find check for $2.50 for seed of S. P. Snap. The color is excellent.—John S. Pfeuffer, Chester Heights, Pa.

Remember that the color of this variety is the abiding shade of SHELL pink, so popular the world over. Don't try to fool the people with anything different. When a customer calls for Daybreak carnations, you know that the Lawson pink won't answer, however much you may desire to substitute. This carnation made the rounds of all of the great shows, but when it reached the people it soon disappeared, as have thousands of other varieties and colors that had been labeled great on the show bench. The people rule, alike in politics and posies. Buy my original SEEDLING Silver Pink and have the cream of all snapdragons. It comes to you with a soil bench record, the one that carries satisfaction and dollars with it. Buy seed today and sow in July and August. If you want fall blossoms, buy plants.

Price of new crop seed ..... $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00
Fine seedling plants now ready at..... $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

PRINCESS

20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 seeds, 25c; 1000, 50c; ¼ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $10.00.

34—Bronze—Brown and copper shades mixed.
36—Fancy—Rich colors, mostly margined.
38—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
44—Black—Almost coal black.
46—Black with bronze center.
48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.
50—Bronze—Beautiful bronze.
52—Bronze with yellow center.
54—Velvet Brown with yellow center.
56—Havana Brown.
58—Havana Brown with yellow center.
60—Cardinal—Curled, bright red, dark blotch.

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

24—KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance; a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.

30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large dark blotches.

NEW SEED NOW READY.

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz., $1.25 per ¼-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25 cents; any 5 pkts., $1.00. Please order by number.

62—Cecily—Steel blue, margined white.
64—Goliath—Large curled yellow blotched.
66—Hero—Curled, deep blue shaded white.
68—Emp. William—Ultramarine blue, violet eye.
70—Eros—Velvety brown, yellow margin.
72—Emp. Franz Joseph—White blotched blue.

Evils in Advertising.

This opportunity should not be allowed to pass without the observation that it is a course of gratification to see the trade tending to higher ideals in advertising. Particularly does this apply to the pernicious offering of premiums and coupons. In both catalogue and journal advertising the prices quoted should be net and show only the exact price at which the goods are sold. The time has come in the history and development of the trade when the seedsman should not demean his business by this method. Let the prices quoted in advertising and catalogues reveal the real facts.

I wish to call attention to the practice of making undignified impersonal references to competitors in advertisements and catalogues. It sometimes happens that in territory where the mail-order business is keenly contested a firm, in a moment of weakness, will debase his otherwise commendable advertising by stooping to make slurring reference to another seedsman or firm. No names are used, but a direct attack is intended, and for this reason the proceeding is all the more undignified. Such competition is unfair and always emanates from a man addicted to lapses from good ethics. The competitor upon whom the attack is made always strengthens his position by absolute silence. The best houses do not condescend to such methods.

In conclusion, I would say that I keenly appreciate how impossible it is to deliver a "patent" on "successful advertising." Every firm is confronted with problems peculiar to itself. Therefore, each should endeavor to blaze a trail of its own. Remember that "in-

ROT ON TOMATO FRUITS.

I am sending some tomatoes in the hope that you will give me the name of the disease, the cause and remedy. These tomatoes are growing on benches in a well ventilated house 20x100, in about five inches of good soil. They have been doing well until quite recently, when this disease developed both on the green and ripe fruit. Many of the fruits also are much deformed. The varieties are June Pink and Earliana. The first bunch of flowers set remarkably well, but the second became blasted, and almost every one dropped off. The third bunch has set better. The house has been well ventilated and a night temperature of 58 to 60 degrees has been kept. They have been watered when necessary. The soil used is what might be termed good garden soil, not poor and not extremely rich. The house runs east and west and the plants are about seventeen inches apart, trained to one stem. The side shoots have been rubbed out from time to time and the large leaves, where necessary, have been trimmed to half. A crop of Grand Rapids lettuce was

BODDINGTON'S GIGANTIC PANSIES

Can be produced only from the giant strains. Our CHALLENGE PANSY seed contains only the giant self-colors, the giant striped and variegated and the giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion. You could not buy better seed if you paid $100 per ounce. Our Challenge Pansy seed during the past season gave unprecedented satisfaction, and every order booked last year was duplicated and increased this year. All the testimonials received mentioned specially the high grade of flowers—color, form and size of the individual blossoms. This year, by adding improved types, intending customers can absolutely rely on a duplication of this season's success with increased satisfaction. Our "mark" for this strain is "Challenge," and it is all the word denotes.

Pansy—Boddington's "Challenge"—All Giants

This mixture contains all the finest Giant strains—of the leading Pansy Specialists in the world—the Giant self-colors, the Giant striped and margined, and the Giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion—the finest that money can buy—the finest your money can buy. grown between the plants in the early stages of growth and the whole was sprayed with To-bak-ine. T. J.

The fruits show that you had the real tomato rot. There have been several treatises written on this trouble and a number of theories as to its probable cause given. But it is a fact, nevertheless, that even under the most perfect climatic conditions it will appear. Your temperature and general treatment seem to have been all right.

Tomatoes under glass are better kept a little on the dry side, at least in winter and spring. They succeed best in a limited rooting space. If they can fill the beds or benches well with roots before the fruits are set, all the better. Top-dressings to keep plenty of live, active roots at work, with an occasional soaking of liquid manure, are what they like. A liberal mulch of cow manure, once the fruit is all set, is beneficial. Remember that they must have a dry atmosphere. Given that, there is little chance for rot to develop. At one time it was believed that the calyx adhering to the fruit caused this rot. I, personally, believe that too much humidity in the air and soil, too much root run and the use of unsuitable forcing varieties are probable causes of the rot. The varieties you name, while good outdoors, are far inferior to such as Comet, Lister's Prolific, Stirling Castle and Best of All for forcing purposes, and, furthermore, you will find that these are peculiarly free from rot. These are all purely forcing tomatoes and, except for a summer crop, they are the only sorts worth growing in America under glass. C. W.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The judges selected for the flower show at the Miller building June 27 were Charles Stiles, of the Stiles Co.; Lon Foster, of the Barteldes Seed Co.; W. O. Church, of the Enterprise Seed Co.; W. E. Ray; H. S. McClenahan, and Dr. W. H. Furrow, of Guthrie.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—William E. Livingston has purchased the George Cunningham property on Robinson road east of Plymouth boulevard. There are about two acres in the tract and the price is said to have been around $9,000. Mr. Cunningham has until August 1 to move the greenhouses and stock.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

A steady run of funeral work during the last week, calling, in some instances, for some big orders, has helped enliven the monotony of an otherwise dull season. A light, steady call for wedding flowers will probably continue throughout the remainder of the month.

Various Notes.

F. L. Ziegler, who grows orchids as a hobby, has been showing some nice plants at his store, on First avenue.

Henry Reimers is another grower who has had good returns from this flower during the last winter.

Growers are busy planting carnations and making needed repairs, while the retailers are occupying their spare time by taking stock, preparatory to their vacations. Miss Johns, of Hoyt Bros. Co., has already left for a several weeks' rest. Miss Doyle, bookkeeper for A. J. Burt, plans to leave July 11 for a six weeks' visit on the coast.

A recent caller was Mr. Gussman, of the Milot-Mills Co., at Wenatchee, Wash. He reports business to have been better this year than heretofore, due, in part, to the reconstructed and enlarged greenhouse plant the company is now operating. L. B. H.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Business was excellent last week, and probably more flowers were sold than in any previous week in the history of the business, outside of the holidays. Sweet peas are at their best. The superb varieties now being grown show a great advance on anything heretofore seen in this market. Asters are coming in fine order; the cool nights and dewy mornings suit these ultra-hardy subjects well. Baby roses are again more plentiful, and gladioli are everywhere in evidence, the varieties being superb. Valley and orchids are plentiful and good. Outdoor flowers are in greater variety than ever. Greens are plentiful.

The early vacationists are already going around with their pockets bulging with railway and steamship folders. Already a few fish stories are filtering through from the lucky advance guard of pleasure seekers. The mountains never looked quite so green and attractive at this season as this year, and the many fine roads reaching almost to the hills will tempt many to make their trips by auto this year.

Various Notes.

A charming and effective ceremony took place in the Roserie flower shop, on Third street, June 20. The occasion was the wedding of Emil Woelfel, the proprietor of the store, and Erna Fisher. It was all that a florist's wedding should be. The office was transformed into a lovely floral bower, strewn with roses, valley, orchids and all the choicest flowers to be had. The bride carried a fine shower bouquet of valley and orchids. All will wish the happy couple a pleasant voyage on the sea of matrimony. Mr. Woelfel has, by his strict business integrity and pleasing yet forceful personality, already made himself many friends in the trade, though he has not long been with us. Everyone wishes him well.

I sold over 35,000 chrysanthemum plants this season on my 1-inch ad in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. Of course that paid me well and I am very pleased. You will hear from me again as soon as I can work up stock.—Frank Wilhelm, R. F. D. No. 6, Los Angeles, Cal., June 13, '14.

An important business change was announced June 27, G. W. Smith retiring from the firm of Howard & Smith. Fred Howard has purchased Mr. Smith's interest. The firm has been established twenty years and does the largest catalogue plant and nursery business in this section, besides handling important landscape contracts, several of which are now in hand. It is felt that it is a pity for good fellows to part company, but the dissolution is a perfectly amicable one all around.

The first asters of the season were noted at the store of S. Murata & Co., and they were of fine color and quality. Reports as to business here are highly satisfactory.

Though possibly of more interest to the nurseryman than the florist, it is worthy of note that work has been started on the 17,000-acre tract recently purchased by an eastern syndicate for a new "millionaires' colony." It is on the Palos Verde hills, with an ocean front of over fifteen miles, and lies between San Pedro and Redondo. Louis F. Horner, well known here as a landscape man and former secretary of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society, is in charge of the work under the Olmstead interests and is preparing large quantities of young stock with a view to laying out the entire tract to fine home sites, an exclusive clubhouse, hotel and many miles of good roads. It is a big thing in every way.

H. Reeve Darling has much of interest to tell of his European trip and he has also brought back with him a thriving mustache. Following his example, H. R. Overstreet, of Darling's Flower Shop, was married June 25 and left immediately for a two weeks' honeymoon trip.

Anyone interested in herbaceous stock should visit Howard & Smith's place frequently, as there is always something new in this department. On a recent visit I specially noted a splendid form of Delphinium Belladonna, some superb gladioli and a number of seedling verbenas that will certainly be a surprise to many.

At the store of the Redondo Floral Co. I found everyone busy. F. Borden says he never knew business better at this time of the year.

C. Dieterich continues to make improvements on his Montebello property. A new potting and packing shed is his latest addition.

At the Main street establishment of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. the nursery and seed business is keeping up exceptionally well for the season. Special sales previous to stock taking have helped materially. At the propagating houses large quantities of stock are being prepared for the new nursery on the Whittier road.

Mr. Sutton, one of the members of the well-known English seed firm of Sutton & Sons, was a visitor here last week. Fred Howard was his pilot.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Midsummer conditions prevail in San Francisco and about the bay. Our flower buyers and flower lovers have retreated to summer haunts. The city folk who have gardens have also a luxuriant supply of garden flowers, so that activity in cut flowers can hardly be expected among the retailers and certainly is not an active factor in the trade at this writing. The greatest demand has been for decorative work and brides' bouquets, with a few late graduations. There has been an unusually active June wedding business. Social functions have not made such a demand on florists as in months heretofore.

We have at this writing as fine a stock of greenhouse-grown flowers as at any time this year. Fine roses are in good quantity. The best rose of the week is Killarney," but My Maryland and President Wilson also are of unusual merit. Good Beauties are easily procurable, but are not a particularly good seller. Carnations are decidedly in oversupply and can be bought cheaply. Fortunately, however, they hold their selling price over the retail counters. There is an unusually large quantity of Cecile Brunner roses; even the street venders have large quantities. Of the commoner flowers, we have yet some fine scabiosas and sweet sultan. The scabiosas are much used for basket work. Good lilies with 4-foot stems may be bought for $2 per dozen. There are some good hydrangeas and spiraeas, but aside from those nothing new in the line of potted plants.

Cattleya cigas and late Mossiæ fill the bill for orchids. Gladiolus America is still the chief and most striking window flower. The spikes of this gladiolus have never been brought to such perfection as they have this year, and they are a good seller. The first of the Winnie Burgle are in evidence this week and are a pleasing change.

Various Notes.

rations were made for the July fete. There is some doubt, at the present writing, whether or not it will be safe to venture in the disastrous pleasure of tug o' war at this annual event, and from present indications the growers and retailers will wage their yearly contest in baseball.

Theo. Nielson, of San Lorenzo, a man new to us along trade lines, has astonished the local trade with the wonderful gladioli he has been sending to San Francisco.

Henry Avansino is relaxing from his usual hard labor by visiting different sections of the state in his machine. The Fairmont Floral Co., of which Mr. Avansino is president, has just purchased a fine big delivery truck. This makes the second car that this concern has purchased and with the two it will undoubtedly be able to handle its rapidly growing business.

Albert O. Stein reports an unusually fine business for the month of June. Mr. Stein has handled a great many large weddings and specializes in decorative work.

Louis Capurro, who was formerly connected with the Mayflower Flower Shop, is about to open a new establishment in O'Farrell street, just below Powell. The location seems to be a good one and it is the wish of everybody connected with the trade that he may have success in his venture.

The Grant Avenue Floral Co., which for the last two years has been doing business at Grant avenue and Sutter streets, decided to close out and the manager is reported to have somewhat surprised the trade by locking his doors and leaving the key for the landlord. It is said he has not been seen since.

Donald McLaren, assistant landscape engineer of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, has returned from a business trip to the southern country, where he is reserving quantities of trees and plants for the fair grounds.

Ralph Stevens, of the University of California, has returned from a trip to the Yosemite valley. Mr. Stevens, in conjunction with Prof. Gregg, recently made an expedition to the Santa Cruz islands to study the native flora. Among those in the party were C. W. Duesner, of Pasadena; P. Reidell, L. George, B. W. Donald and Joseph McDermott, of Santa Barbara, and Walter A. Hofinghoff, of San Francisco. After thoroughly exploiting the island country, Prof. Gregg, Mr. Stevens and Mr. Hofinghoff made a visit to the San Diego exposition and collected a great many photos and interesting data on landscape and nursery work in California.

Daniel MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., has engaged new quarters in San Mateo, where he will spend the summer.

The funerals of several prominent citizens also helped to clean up stock. Roses are of inferior quality at present. Most of the benches have been cleared for new stock. Carnations still are plentiful, but the supply will soon be cut short, as the new plants are ready for benching. There is nothing gained by leaving them in the fields any longer. Gaillardias, delphiniums, coreopsis and peas about make up the variety of garden flowers. Orchids and valley have been scarce this month, with the increased demand.

Various Notes.

Rahn & Herbert Co. is vacating the Pfunder greenhouses, on Mt. Tabor, and moving to their new place, at Clackamas. They have added several new houses this season, making about 50,000 feet of glass. This will be used for palms, ferns and a general line of cut flowers and plants. They recently incorporated, including Niklas & Son, who conduct the retail store on Morrison street.

George Israelson, manager of the Eugene Carnation Farm, at Eugene, Ore., called on the local trade last week. He has about 7,000 feet of glass, devoted to general stock. He recently opened a retail store to dispose of his stock locally.

FREESIA PURITY.

We are contemplating the growing of Freesia Purity, planting it along the edge of carnations, in solid benches. For early flowers, when can the bulbs be planted and about when will they begin to bloom? Are the flowers of the mammoth-sized bulbs enough larger and better than those from the smaller bulbs to warrant double the cost in bulbs?

H. G. C.

The freesia bulbs usually arrive about the middle of July and can be planted at once if desired. In a suitable temperature, 50 to 55 degrees at night, it is possible to get a small proportion of the freesias open for Christmas, but the bulk will flower in January. Succession plantings are necessary to keep up a supply of flowers. The mammoth bulbs produce much fancier spikes and flowers and, if you are selling at wholesale, I believe the largest bulbs will give you the best returns. If, on the other hand, you cater to a retail trade wholly, the smaller bulbs will be the more economical to buy. C. W.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

C. MOLL, a nurseryman from Bombay, India, has purchased two and one-half acres on Ninth street, North Sacramento, Cal., on which he will establish a nursery for rare plants and shrubbery. He has brought with him many seeds and cuttings of plants of southern Asia, which he will attempt to grow in this country.

MINNESOTA nurserymen had an extremely short season for planting a large quantity of stock this spring. The sudden change, in one day, from winter to summer weather, which took place in the latter part of May, was followed by heavy rains, causing a sudden, rapid growth in plants of all kinds. Much stock, it is predicted, will suffer severely next spring unless well matured before killing frosts come.

AN obituary notice in The Review of April 16 was the means by which Oliver Brown, who has a good landscape gardening business at Duluth, Minn., learned the address of his brother, of whom he had not heard for twenty years. Edward James Brown, who died at East Bridgewater, Mass., April 2, came to this country when a young man and established a large vegetable business, but was lost track of by his brother till he read his death notice.

THE CLEVELAND CONVENTION.

[For a full report of the opening days of the annual meeting of the A. A. N., committee reports, papers read, and discussions, see last week's issue of The Review.]

Officers Elected.

At its thirty-ninth annual convention at Cleveland last week Detroit was selected as the place for the fortieth convention, to be held the fourth week in June, 1915. Officers were elected as follows:

President—H. B. Chase, of Chase, Ala.

Vice-president—E. S. Welch, of Shenandoah, Ia.

Treasurer—Peter Youngers, of Geneva, Neb., reëlected.

Secretary—John Hall, of Rochester, N. Y., reëlected. Mr. Hall undertook to resign, but was not permitted to do so. His plea was that he had not the time for the work and it was decided to provide funds for the employment of an assistant until such time as the executive board selects a man to give his entire time to the work of the association as a permanent salaried secretary.

RETAILERS' PROTECTIVE.

The affairs of the American Retail Nurserymen's Protective Association run along so smoothly and satisfactorily that the annual meetings are little love feasts and always result in the reelection of the officers who have served so acceptably for some years. The purpose of the organization is to guard its members against irresponsible and unreliable people, and the membership is fairly constant, as it embraces nearly all the firms in the trade that deal with the public otherwise than locally, either directly or through agents. The officers, who were reëlected again at the Cleveland meeting June 24, are:

President—H. W. Marshall, Arlington, Neb.

Vice-president—B. J. Greening, Monroe, Mich.

Secretary-treasurer—Guy A. Bryant, Princeton, Ill.

THE LAW IN NEW YORK.

[An extract from the report of the committee on legislation east of the Mississippi river, presented at the Cleveland convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, June 24, by the chairman, William Pitkin, of Rochester, N. Y.]

In our report of June, 1913, reference was made to a bill introduced in the New York legislature during the previous winter, but which failed of passage. It was again introduced in the legislature during the session of 1913-14 and was handled by the legislative committee of the New York State Nurserymen's Association, with the coöperation of this committee. The bill was introduced and urged by the representatives of the fruit-growing interests, with whom the nurserymen's committee had numerous conferences, resulting in the formulation of a bill containing no exceedingly serious provisions and applying only to the New York state nurserymen.

The law as passed is an amendment to the existing agricultural law and applies to the grower, wholesaler and retailer. It provides, in substance, that a certificate of inspection shall be attached to each bundle or package, and that a label specifying the name of variety shall be attached to each bundle or package, and in case such bundle or package shall contain trees of different varieties, there must be attached to each tree therein a like label.

Provision for Civil Action.

It provides that any purchaser of fruit-bearing trees who thinks that he has been damaged because the trees have not proved true to name as labeled may have a remedy in a civil action, and that such action may be brought at any time prior to the third bearing year; but, on the other hand, it provides that the purchaser must notify the nurseryman as soon as he has reason to believe that the trees are not true to name, even though the point may not then be definitely determined, so that if there is any suspicion that the trees are untrue to name, the nurseryman may have an equal opportunity with the purchaser for observation and investigation. If such notice is not promptly given to the nurseryman, the purchaser would have no remedy in court.

It provides further that in any action to recover damages "the seller shall have the burden of proof in establishing that any contract not in writing, or any provision of any such contract, exempting the seller from liability or limiting his liability, was fully understood and agreed to by the purchaser;" and further, that this clause must be printed on all contract blanks and a copy of the contract left with the purchaser. The intent of this section is to provide that when, as is frequently the case, the nurseryman proposes to limit his liability, the contract should be plainly expressed in writing, and when so expressed should be conclusive, but should there be no written or printed contract, then the burden of proving that the purchaser fully understood the limited liability feature of the agreement lies with the seller. Under this law the safer plan for both the nurseryman and purchaser is to have a written or printed contract covering the terms of the transactions.

Protection for Nurseryman.

The law further provides that the nurseryman must accompany the shipment of the trees with an itemized list of the same, and if requested by letter or in writing on the contract by the purchaser at the time of purchase, the nurseryman must show on this itemized list the name of the county and state where the trees covered by it were grown and the age of the trees and the name and address of the person for whom the trees were grown.

It is further provided that within five days after the receipt of the trees and list by the purchaser he shall compare and notify the nurseryman promptly of any discrepancy between the list and the labels on the trees. This is a reasonable proposition and intended to give the nurseryman a fair show, so that he may have an opportunity of rectifying any error that has been made.

The law further provides that every nursery agent must carry with him at all times when engaged in selling trees a certificate of agency signed by his employer, showing his authority to act as such agent, and upon request shall exhibit same to the purchaser, and must leave with the purchaser a copy of the contract covering the sale and purchase of the trees.

It is not anticipated that this law will work any serious hardship on the nurserymen of New York state, and it does not apply to nurserymen of any other state. The original draft of the law provided for a license fee to be paid by all foreign nurserymen. This provision was strenuously opposed by the New York state nurserymen and was eliminated at their request.

NASHVILLE.

The Market.

Everyone is tired and ready to be contented with the lack of business this hot weather. There has been a good run of funeral business, and several good weddings. It has been a hard week on the growing stock, however, as the temperature reached the highest mark ever recorded here in June. Roses are not at all plentiful and the quality is not good. There are a few carnations, but they would better have been thrown on the dump some time ago, were it not that there must be something to work up into designs. Peas are gone, or nearly so, and asters have not arrived. The heat and drought have caused the first gladioli to be inferior, if they did not fail to bloom. We never remember having seen the supply of good cut flowers so low in this city.

Various Notes.

Thomas Joy, Jr., is out of the city for a few weeks' vacation. He is camped out on Caney Fork, fishing and hunting. His brother, who has been with Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., getting new ideas on plant culture, is looking after the store in his absence. F. B.

MOTHS IN HANGING BASKETS.

I have a patron who has four hanging baskets on a porch that is lighted by electric lights. When she waters the baskets in the morning the moths fly out by the hundreds and they seem to be damaging the stock in the baskets. What shall I advise her to do to rid the baskets of them? M. G. F. O.

The moths or millers themselves do the plants no harm. They lay eggs, however, which later produce caterpillars, and these are what you must fight. Where there are only a few baskets I should prefer hand-picking as a remedy. A spraying of arsenate of lead, one pound to fifteen gallons of water, will poison any caterpillars. This does not injure the more tender plants, but its white appearance somewhat disfigures them. A spraying with white hellebore would be effective, and this would not mark the leaves like the lead. CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Considering everything, the market is in fair condition. The demand for stock is not quite so active as it was, and consequently prices are rather easy. The supply is about the same as at the last writing. Roses still show the effects of the heat, but the cooler weather during the first part of this week is expected to work a change for the better. Among the better class of offerings are Beauty, Taft and My Maryland, as well as some excellent outdoor roses. Carnations are not a large factor in the week's market. Easter lilies are plentiful enough to take care of all calls. Some fine pond lilies are offered. Sweet peas are deteriorating rapidly and their season is near a close. Gladioli are more plentiful, but a good many from out of town are badly burned. The same is true of Shasta daisies. The supply of valley is rather limited. Some excellent peonies still are to be had. The supply of greens is fully equal to requirements.

HYDRANGEA OTAKSA

Extra large plants in barrels for July and August flowering

We make a specialty of Hydrangeas for late blooming, and have the finest lot of large specimen plants that we have ever seen. Plants are perfect in shape, from 4 to 5 feet in diameter, 3½ to 4 feet high, and are covered with blooms—fine, beautiful, symmetrical plants, ranging from one hundred to two hundred blooms per barrel.

They have been kept backward, and are now just beginning to show color, and will bloom from now on through August. These plants are of exceptionally fine quality and are exceptionally good value. We have a very large stock of these plants in barrels, and can supply them in carload lots at $7.50, $10.00 and $15.00 each. We can supply a more limited stock of smaller plants in tubs at $3.00 each.

WINTER-FLOWERING ROSES

We have a fine stock of winter-flowering roses, especially of the new rose, Killarney Brilliant. We can supply extra fine stock of this valuable variety—extra strong plants out of 4-inch pots, ready for immediate planting; also other standard sorts, such as Lady Hillingdon, Killarney Queen, Pink Killarney, Richmond, American Beauty, Mrs. Charles Russell, Mignon or Sweetheart, etc. Write us for prices, stating varieties and number of each wanted.

DAYTON, O.

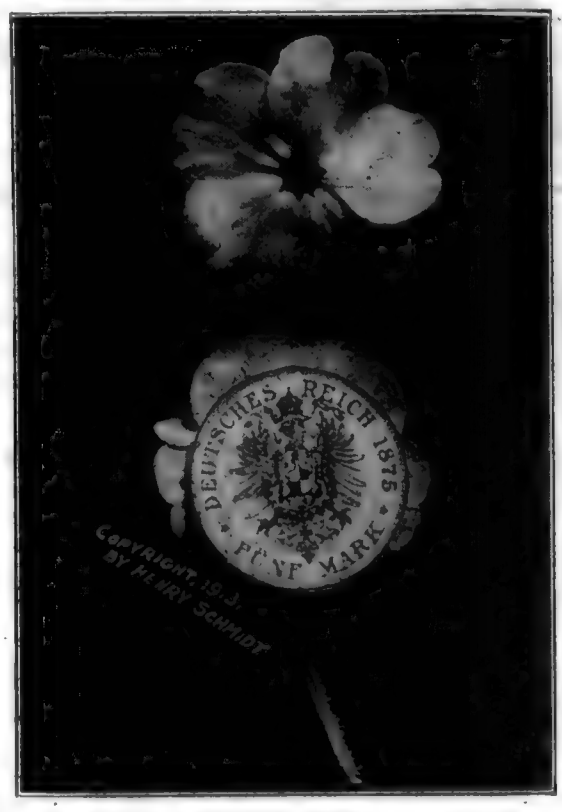
The Market.

Last week ended the June wedding season, which has been fairly good this year. Business at present is rather slow and seems to have settled down into the summer rut. The supply of stock is limited to only a few varieties. Roses are extremely scarce. Carnations seem to stand the heat pretty well, but good ones are hard to get. Easter lilies have been a glut, but at present the supply is just about sufficient to meet the demand. Shasta daisies are in good supply, but sweet peas seem to be on the short side.

Various Notes.

The Heiss Co. is the third among the Dayton florists to purchase an automobile delivery truck this year, the car being an Overland of attractive appearance. This company has had a good many large June weddings.

Mrs. A. I. Brunner, one of the employees of the Miami Floral Co., is in St. Elizabeth's hospital, suffering with a badly fractured shoulder, which she received while at her work last week.



Walter G. Matthews and Sam Kurtz, of the Dayton Floral Co., spent several days at Detroit last week.

Mrs. L. D. Johnson says that June weddings have been numerous and that she has had her share of them.

The Dayton Florists' Club held a special meeting June 23, at the store of J. F. Young, in order to straighten up all unfinished business preparatory to adjourning for the summer.

George Bartholomew is cutting some fine lilies for storage bulbs and finds a good sale for them now that cut flowers are scarce. R. A. L.

Dalton, Pa.—C. M. Streeter, proprietor of the Dalton Greenhouses, will add another house, 26x76 feet, to his present range during the summer.

NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Here are three you ought to know.

ALICE SALOMON—Pure white, larger than Chadwick, easy to grow, ready to cut Oct. 10 to 25. 2½-inch, $17.00 per 100.

GOLDEN SALOMON—A sport of Alice Salomon, the same in every respect except its color, which is as its name implies—a golden yellow. 2½-inch, $22.00 per 100.

CHIEFTAIN—A pink, described by E. G. Hill Co. as a Pink Bonnaffon, ready to cut about 10 days earlier than Enguehard. 2½-inch, $14.00 per 100.

We believe the above mums are valuable addition to the list of commercial varieties, and recommend them as such.

Horticultural Books

We can supply any of the following books at the prices noted, postpaid, and any other book at publishers' price:

Daffodils and How to Grow Them
By A. M. Kirby. All that is really worth while about these most popular of spring bulbs, written from the standpoint of American conditions. $1.50

Hardy Perennials and Old-fashioned Garden Flowers.
By J. Wood. Describing the most desirable plants for borders, shrubberies, etc., foliage and flowering. Illustrated. $2.00

Tomato Culture.
By W. W. Tracy, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. The book deals with every phase of tomato culture and was written for the man who wants the latest and most complete information on the subject. Cloth. 150 pages. Illustrated. 50 cents

The Forcing Book.
By L. H. Bailey. In this work the author has compiled in handy form the cream of all the available information on the subject of forcing vegetables under glass. In addition to this, the experience of many practical growers in different localities is furnished. $1.25

The American Carnation.
By C. W. Ward. Invaluable to the carnation grower. All departments of the business are treated in a thoroughly practical manner. This book is the work of a careful, studious grower of ripe experience. Fully illustrated. $3.50

Celery Culture.
By W. R. Beattie, Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. A practical guide for beginners and a standard reference for those already engaged in celery growing. Cloth. 150 pages. Illustrated. 50 cents

The Florists' Manual.
By Wm. Scott. A practical guide for the florist, covering the successful management of all the usual florists' plants; including many topics, such as greenhouse building, heating and floral decorating, etc. Written so you can understand it and profit by its guidance. Fully illustrated. $5.00

Bulbs and Tuberous Rooted Plants.
By C. L. Allen. A complete history, description, methods of propagation and full directions for the successful culture of bulbs in the garden, dwelling or greenhouse. The illustrations which embellish this work have been drawn from nature, and have been engraved especially for this book. Cloth. $1.50

The Chrysanthemum.
By Arthur Herrington, formerly president of Chrysanthemum Society of America. The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. 50 cents

Cabbage, Cauliflower and Allied Vegetables.
By C. L. Allen. An explanation of the requirements, conditions, cultivation and general management pertaining to the entire cabbage group. The chapter on seed raising is probably the most authoritative treatise on this subject ever published. Insects and fungi are given due attention. Illustrated. 128 pages. Cloth. 50 cents

The History and Culture of Grafted Roses for Forcing.
By Alex. Montgomery, Jr. The most important contribution to the modern literature of the rose. Of much interest to every rose grower and of utmost value to growers of grafted roses. FOUR CHIPS.

The following is from the Gardeners' Chronicle, London:

"Many of our readers will remember the pleasantly written and instructive articles on nursery management and propagation contributed to these columns some years ago by Thomas Bunyard, over the nom de plume 'Experience,' and they will join us in congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Bunyard on the celebration of their golden wedding this month. Of their fourteen children some are settled abroad, but nine were able to be present to celebrate the event. Four of Mr. Bunyard's sons, Messrs. Harry, Percy, Arthur and Alfred Bunyard, have followed in their father's footsteps in making horticulture their profession. Messrs. Harry and Alfred have settled in the United States, the former being the general manager of the T. Boddington, wholesale seedsman, of New York, and the latter a florist in Madison avenue. Percy Bunyard is the London representative of G. H. Richards, of 'XL All' fame. He is interested in ornithology, from the horticultural standpoint, and possesses a fine collection of birds' eggs. Arthur Bunyard is connected with Garden Life and other papers. Thomas Bunyard many years ago was in partnership with his brother, George Bunyard, of the Royal Nurseries, Maidstone, and since those days has filled several appointments with other firms."

THE TEXAS CODE.

At the recent meeting of the Texas State Florists' Association, the following resolution was presented by H. O. Hannah, of Sherman. It prevailed:

"Resolved, that our president and secretary use their best efforts to secure more wholesale growers of cut flowers and plants, and to induce one or more large florists' supply houses to locate in our state, thereby reducing our large expense account, both on freight and express; and, furthermore, we encourage and patronize such wholesale growers and insist that all wholesale growers or firms sell their stock to the trade, their patrons, and not to private individuals or to department stores, thereby diverting and injuring the legitimate trade that should and does belong to the patrons of all wholesale firms."

WHEN TO SOW MIGNONETTE.

When is the best time to sow mignonette in pots in order to have good-sized plants ready to put out in benches in August? J. R.

Sow the mignonette about July 10. Be sure that the seedlings do not become potbound before planting out. If you have benches at disposal, it would be better to sow in them direct and not in the pots. C. W.

APHIS ON ASTER ROOTS.

I am sending an aster plant from a field of plants that have been infested with green flies on the roots. What would you advise me to do to get rid of them? The outside leaves look yellow and the plants do not seem to grow as they should. G. H. R.

Once aster plants get badly attacked by aphis on their roots they may as well be destroyed. I have tried watering with tobacco water and also with soapy solutions, but none of these seems to effect a cure. It takes considerable time and it is some expense to water so that any liquid will reach the roots and even then plants which have been attacked never seem to amount to much. Vermine in liquid form kills this aphis. There are other soil sterilizers which can also be used. C. W.

PINO-LYPTOL
WEED KILLER
THE VERY NEWEST AND QUICKEST METHOD OF DESTROYING WEEDS, GRASS AND OTHER GROWTH IN GARDEN WALKS, GUTTERS, TENNIS COURTS, DRIVEWAYS, ETC.
This fluid absolutely destroys all weeds and other growths wherever applied, and its effect on the ground prevents the growth of fresh ones for a year and thus saves a great deal of time and labor, as no cutting, hoeing or hauling away of the weeds is required.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture.
First volume just off the press. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:
KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.
This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.
SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.
This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.
THE GLOSSARY.
This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.
TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.
In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.
ILLUSTRATIONS.
There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.
This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE COAL MARKET.

During the last three weeks the successive reports of the coal market have been increasingly encouraging, from the coal men's point of view. Though the improvement from week to week has been so slight as to be perceptible only on close scrutiny, the improvement after a lapse of several weeks is evident enough. Even now, however, the change for the better is shown chiefly in the increasing brightness of the prospects rather than in an actual increase of business; or, as the reporters themselves express the idea, the market is in a much better "technical" position.

The improvement of the coal business, both present and prospective, both actual and "technical," is largely due, of course, to the more hopeful outlook in the iron and steel trades and in other manufacturing industries. "There is definite improvement in general business," it is said, "in several market centers this week. Pittsburgh notes that a number of iron and steel companies are increasing production. Birmingham, the secondary steel center, notes an improvement of about the same kind. Trade development there has been sufficient to warrant coal companies in increasing both production and development work. Indianapolis also says that agricultural implement works through Indiana intend to start immediately to work full time. Also, two railroad companies have announced that they will increase the shop force and will work longer hours. Reports of a similar character but of less importance have come from other trade centers. All indications are that business generally is picking up. So far this has brought only inquiries for coal. It is considered, however, as only a matter of a short time until both coal and coke prices will improve.

"The Chicago market," continues the same reporter, "is showing a decidedly better tone, first due to improvement in business; second, due to larger buying by railroads, and third, due to the opening of demand which always accompanies harvesting. In some places this has brought an increase in production, but generally it has cleaned up the market of surplus coal. The major producers are still holding at circular price of $1.25 for mine-run smokeless, though smaller producers have permitted their sales agents to accept $1 per ton."

THE AMERICAN INVASION.

The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a photograph of a carload of boilers that will leave Philadelphia July 4 on the S. S. Roanoke for London, England. They are to be followed, July 18, on the S. S. Westpoint, by two more boilers, making six in all shipped by Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, to Lowe & Shawyer, London, who find The Review so useful that they subscribe for six copies of each issue. Lowe & Shawyer sent to Chicago for two boilers last year, and for four more this season. The boilers are stripped for shipping, all openings plugged and the parts crated in 2-inch lumber. The car goes alongside the steamer and the boilers are transferred by a derrick.

The shipment of boilers from Chicago to London has attracted much attention, but it loses some of its interest when it is learned that the freight is less than from Chicago to the Pacific

FOR FOUR THOUSAND FEET.

I am building two connected greenhouses, each 21 x 75. The houses run east and west, with the boiler house at the west end. The exposed sides of the houses are six feet high, with three feet of glass on a concrete wall below. The east ends are exposed. I will grow carnations in the north house, and will use the south house for miscellaneous pot plants. The boiler pit is six feet below the level of the ground and the ground slopes one foot to seventy-five feet toward the west. I will have two 5-foot benches in the middle and two 3-foot benches on the side in each house. Please tell me how much piping is needed, in Iowa climate, and the proper way to put it in. The boiler is a tubular hot water boiler, nine feet long, fifty-two inches high and forty-two inches wide. I have some 4-inch and some 2-inch pipe on hand. O. C.

For the carnation house one 4-inch flow and twelve 2-inch returns would be sufficient to maintain a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees, but it would be better to substitute two 2½-inch flow pipes for the single 4-inch flow, though the latter is, of course, large enough to supply the returns. In the plant house use three 2½-inch flow pipes and fourteen 2-inch returns. If the 4-inch main is to be used, sixteen returns would be needed. The above radiation is considerably more than will be needed except when the thermometer is lower than 15 degrees below zero, with high winds. Arrange valves to cut out the surplus radiation when not needed.

F. R.

FOR TEN THOUSAND FEET.

I have built two connected greenhouses each 28 x 150 feet, running east and west, on a slope toward the south. The north wall will be six feet high, of concrete blocks. The south wall will have three feet of concrete and thirty inches of glass. The dividing wall will be of wood and an iron gutter will be used. The elevation from the south wall of the lower house to the north wall of the upper house is sixteen feet in fifty-six feet. The lower house will have solid beds and the upper house raised benches. Both gables will have glass. The houses will be heated by a boiler rated to heat 11,500 square feet. Hot water will be used. The boiler shed will be located on the southwest corner. The maximum temperature required will be 60 degrees in zero weather for both houses and we would like to know the best way to pipe the houses to obtain the desired temperature, also the number of flows and returns. Soft coal will be used. H. O.

To heat the houses described to 60 degrees it will be well to use three 3-inch pipes in the lower house, as flows, with fifteen 2-inch return pipes. One flow can be under the ridge and the others on the walls. Five or six of the returns can be on each of the walls, with the others along the sides of the beds or on the posts.

In the upper house use five 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns. Place a flow pipe on each wall and the others along the roof or on posts, according to the construction of the

A GREENHOUSE BOILER THAT FAIRLY SHOT INTO FAME

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler the highest praise.

QUICKEST WATER HEATER IN THE WORLD

The large combustion chamber in the Kroeschell Boiler enables the gases to expand and fully ignite before reaching the tubes or flues. This feature is entirely lacking in firebox boilers and cast iron sectional boilers.

Unlike Cast Iron Boilers, which cannot be depended upon to carry their ratings even when crowded with hard coal, "the Kroeschell" again excels because—every Kroeschell Boiler is honestly rated and guaranteed to carry the glass and pipe capacities stated in our catalogue to 60 degrees at 15 below zero. Any kind of fuel can be used. Our ratings are easily maintained with the cheapest grades of coal.

OVER 1500 CAST IRON BOILERS were replaced by the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler during the past six years. It is a common occurrence for a Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler to replace two to four cast iron boilers at a single place; this is the CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM PLAN, and has saved many florists hundreds of dollars per season in fuel alone, besides a big saving in labor.

Kroeschell Heats Large Office Building

Enclosed please find another order for No. 9 Kroeschell Boiler. This boiler is for a new office building. In reference to the two No. 3 boilers which you furnished for three buildings last year, will say that we are getting excellent results. The No. 13 is doing duty in a six-story building with 208 radiators and the owner is so well pleased with it that he has ordered a No. 10 Kroeschell for another building which he is erecting, also ordered another No. 11 Kroeschell.

Kroeschell Boiler, Generator and Heating System Insure Perfect Results

Having promised you a letter as soon as we have passed through a good fair test, I consider it now most timely. We had the thermometer 18 degrees below and we've just gone through a blizzard bad enough for most any season, and am very well pleased to inform you that our heating system was equal to the occasion. So far as we have gone, am certainly well satisfied with the Kroeschell Boiler, Generator and Heating System. J. E. MATTHEWSON,

Heats Canadian Range Easily and Saves Fuel

I had a flue boiler before I got the Kroeschell, which could hardly heat the glass, although it used more fuel than yours. I also have your Generator, which is giving good satisfaction. I think a Generator would pay for itself in a few weeks.

Heats Up Entire System in 30 Minutes—Kroeschell Boilers Are Fine

It only takes 30 minutes from firing to drive the water entirely through my system, a distance of 200 feet. When heavy firing is necessary, I make 180 degrees in the main returns at the boiler. Your boilers are fine.

Kroeschell Replaces 2 Cast Iron Boilers

The Marysville Floral Co., of Marysville, O., installed a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler in 1905. Previous to this time they used cast iron boilers. The following letter speaks for itself:

"Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! We had two cast iron boilers, but yours proved by far the best. Your boiler has already outlasted the two cast iron boilers by five years, and all the expense that we have been put to was a smoke dome."

In the conflagration that visited Salem June 25 and 26 the following suffered loss:

John Geary, of McGee, Geary & Co., lost all his furniture at the apartment where he lived.

Henry T. Conant, of Conant the Florist, lost his Hancock street dwelling house and all its contents, about $4,000.

Wm. T. Walke, of the Loring Avenue Conservatories, lost a tenement house on Eden street, valued at $3,000.

Wm. J. Quinn lost a dwelling and contents, $2,500.

Bernard J. Nagle lost all his household goods.

Thos. Lawton, employee of W. T. Walke, lost his clothing and personal effects.

E. Stearns, the North Street Greenhouses, had a small fire at greenhouses, loss $75.

These losses are only partially covered by insurance. R. F. C.

June 26 closed the great convention of the International Rotary Club. Several florists were present, among them Chas. P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan.; John Connon, Hamilton, Ont.; Otto Lang, of Dallas; Tom Wolfe, of Waco, and Harry Papworth, of New Orleans, La. The florists held a sectional meeting, which proved of great interest, and this is the beginning of what will be in the future one of the biggest meetings of the florists of the United States. We feel that in the future we will have a large attendance when it is realized what good can be done.

The month of June has been one of good business. All the florists have been kept busy.

There have been several changes in the florists' circles. Mrs. Richards, formerly with H. H. Kuhlmann, is now with Forestdale. Mrs. Hoenke, formerly with Forestdale, will be with Kerr after September 1.

There will be quite a delegation of Texas florists at the convention in Boston, among them R. C. Kerr, John J. Boyle and H. H. Kuhlmann.

The Market.

June has been a quite satisfactory month, all things considered. We have had some of the hottest weather on record for June, but still get some good carnations, and roses are not so bad as one might expect. The new crop of home-grown roses is just coming. Kaiserin does not seem to be much grown, as this variety has not made its appearance this season. There are some fine Beauties, good enough for winter, still coming in, so that the extreme heat did not do so much harm as did the lack of rain for outdoor crops. We had a hard storm June 27, with heavy rain, which continued long enough to soak the ground.

That the month's business will compare well with last year's is the general report. The usual cuts of lilies, gladioli, sweet peas, valley and cornflowers make up the receipts at present. Outdoor flowers, such as peonies, roses and iris, were particularly fine this year.

Various Notes.

The retail stores are beginning to put on that summer look, when they arrange for a water lily pond and use palms and ferns for their window decorations, with every device that will make them look cool. The employees are arranging for their vacations and no doubt from now on things will be quiet; it will be a case of living off the dead.

Mrs. E. A. Williams sailed July 1 on the S. S. Aquitania for Europe, where she will visit all of the prominent cities.

David Hill will spend his vacation in and around New York and Atlantic City.

Edward Ashcraft, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., won $100 as a prize in the song and story contest in the Pittsburgh Dispatch, which will help pay the expenses of his vacation.

George McCallum, of the McCallum Co., has purchased a Saxon runabout. The boys have named it the Tinner's Dream. George and John Sisley drove it from Detroit to Pittsburgh.

Randolph & McClements had the decoration last week for one of the largest weddings in Youngstown, O., in years.

Walter Breitenstein, now that the season is over, has retired to his country place at Logan's Ferry, for the summer.

Herman Zieger, of the Zieger Co., reports that they have had a good season. He is not active in the business, as his home is at Cheswick, Pa., where he spends his time growing such things as he can cultivate outdoors.

William G. Duff, who for some years was connected with the cut flower business in this city, died June 25, and was buried from the home of his niece in Crafton. Mr. Duff was 74 years of age, and was the last of his generation.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

The Market.

Business last week was excellent. All the florists report a good trade for commencements, notwithstanding that it was generally known that flowers were not to be sent to the commencement exercises. Friends, however, sent the flowers to the homes of the graduates. The hot weather made most of the roses somewhat poor, but there were a few excellent flowers. A few new roses have been seen here. Cardinal bids fair to be a favorite among red roses. Indiana, a deep pink with fine foliage and firm stem, also is good. It resembles Mrs. Russell. Cincinnati is another promising red. This is too new, however, to know its keeping qualities and its good points. Carnations are showing the effects of the hot weather and have been decidedly sleepy for a few days. They are cheap. Candidum lilies of good quality are coming into the market. Larkspurs in two shades of blue are good sellers. Water lilies are seen in some of the stores. American Beauties were used by some of the graduating classes and they brought a good price. Sweet peas are fairly good, but the indoor ones will soon be at an end.

Various Notes.

Charles Felton has gone to Cleveland to spend part of the summer.

Charles Sandiford, head gardener for J. J. Albright, has resigned his position and will open a store in connection with the greenhouses at the corner of Main and Amherst streets, which he purchased from L. A. Elbers.

Joseph Connon is in Philadelphia. He also will visit Atlantic City and Wilkes-Barre.

Stephen J. Mahoney has gone on a lecturing tour for the summer.

Ed. Stroh reports that business has been good, there being considerable wedding work.

Frank J. Mahoney has gone to Rochester for a week's vacation.

Miss Tillie Stroh leaves for Conesus lake July 3, to attend a house party.

Joseph Sangster and wife have taken a house at Crystal Beach for the summer.

Jerry Brookins, of Orchard Park, is cutting the last of his crop of indoor peas.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

With the school exercises and weddings, business last week was good. Roses are small and of summer quality; the supply is large. The supply of carnations is becoming limited, as the growers are already replanting. Carnations show the effects of the heat. Indoor sweet peas are past; some outdoor peas are seen in the market.

Various Notes.

The barn at Elizabeth park was destroyed by fire June 24. The damage is estimated at $5,000, which is covered by insurance. The greenhouses were threatened, but as a result of hard work on the part of volunteers they escaped with a little cracked glass and scorched woodwork.

June 21 was rose day at Elizabeth park; 20,000 people visited the rose gardens on that day. The interest of the public was shown by the many notebooks and pencils. Almost as many visitors are expected June 28, when the ramblers will be at their best.

Albert Brodrib has completed planting out. He undoubtedly has the largest bedding trade in the city. Ronald Chinquin, formerly with A. N. Pierson, Inc., has joined the Brodrib force.

Walter Miller has resigned his position as foreman of the retail department of A. N. Pierson, Inc., to accept the position of head gardener on the estate of Dr. Williams, of Prospect street.

The Connecticut Horticultural Society held its regular meeting June 26. It was perennial night.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, has carnation planting well under way. This has been a banner year for shipments of young stock; express cars loaded entirely with young stock left Cromwell daily during the height of the shipping season. Building operations were delayed by the lateness of spring, but are now well under way. The dimensions of the new range have increased; the rose houses will be five 33x500, one 50x500, and one 40x500, instead of 33x 300, as first planned and mentioned in The Review. R. C. S.

Everybody Knows

In yesterday's mail there were two letters, both from well known florists, whose ability no one questions.

One of these said:

> "We have been using the Skinner System of Irrigation for growing carnations in the greenhouse. For planting time alone it will pay for itself every year. We would not be without it."

The other letter said:

> "We would not be without the Skinner System of Irrigation for our outdoor carnations, but everybody knows that carnations in the greenhouse cannot be watered overhead, so we have not attempted it inside."

One man was doing what, according to the other man, "everybody knew" couldn't be done. And both men were leaders in their line.

This same thing has happened on all sorts of crops, indoors and out. Men are doing successfully, with the Skinner System, the very things that other men with experience in other kinds of watering say cannot be done.

The reason for this is that there is something different in the watering results from the Skinner System. The only basis for judgment is experience with the Skinner System itself.

No wonder that another large florist thanks us for "pestering" him with letters until he tried the Skinner System and found what it really would do.

For the man who wants to know, with the least risk on a complete line ready to assemble, and the least effort, we make the following special proposition. All we urge is that he try the Skinner System in a small way.

Special Proposition—Complete Line

We will furnish, ready to connect to the water, one 50-foot Skinner System sprinkling line, with pipe cut to length, holes drilled, nozzles, a union fitting for turning the line, a valve, and drain cock and roller-bearing supports to be put on the top of posts—everything ready to go together, complete, except posts. Each joint of pipe is fitted with our new quick-acting coupling, so that the line can be assembled and taken apart quickly and correctly. It cannot go together wrong. Price complete, $11.75, f. o. b. Troy, Ohio. Additional lengths up to 150 feet for 25 cents per foot extra. If money accompanies order, freight will be allowed east of Mississippi River.

In ordering, specify water pressure or height of tank, whether line is for greenhouse or outdoors, and whether line will be supported on pipe or wooden posts, or suspended from roof in greenhouse lines.

Many of the most enthusiastic Skinner System users are men whom we "pestered" into trying it. The special proposition makes it easy for you to find out what the Skinner System will do for you.

Graduations are over. Although the school committees placed a ban on flowers in the public schools, the many parochial schools in this vicinity used flowers to a great extent. June weddings also are about over, but although these were numerous, at only a few of them were flowers largely used. There seems to be plenty of funeral work, but aside from that and outside work, there is but little business. Fathers' day, which was to be celebrated June 21, was not observed to any extent here, perhaps on account of its being new as a flower day.

Cutworms have become so numerous and destructive that Assistant State Entomologist C. W. Loveland has issued a bulletin which describes the most approved methods of their control. Florists have commenced to remodel their greenhouses and several are contemplating building.

Various Notes.

A shed belonging to James Patterson, of Ashton, proprietor of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, and containing tools and supplies, was threatened with destruction by fire recently, and it was only through the quick work of the firemen that his range of houses was saved. The shed was badly burned. The origin of the fire is unknown.

At the last meeting of the Cumberland Town Council, Neil Ward, of Lonsdale, was appointed tree warden to succeed W. Sword, of Valley Falls, who has held the office for two years.

William Hoffman has sold about all of his potted plants. He had his annual contract with the city, which called for 12,000 plants.

M. J. Leach & Sons had an exceedingly busy week with bouquets and funeral work.

Howard W. Vose, of the Flower Shop, at Attleboro, Mass., was busy last week with graduation work.

Caretaker Devaney, of Jenks park, Central Falls, who has showed great skill in the arrangement and care of the flower beds in the park, has been awarded the contract for the grading and laying out of the lawn at the new city hall.

The President Offers to Help You on Shipments That Have Gone Astray.

WHEN shipments of your materials go astray between our factory and your freight station, you can just bet your bottom dollar we will do everything possible to trace them for you. Most concerns feel that it is not up to them to hunt up goods that they have delivered in good condition and good faith to the railroads. But, nevertheless, we have a high salaried man who does nothing but haunt the railroads for the lost, strayed or stolen materials.

If anyone can get action on locating a lost shipment, this special man of ours can.

You can depend on depending on Hitchings to do their part—and a little more. "We go anywhere for business."

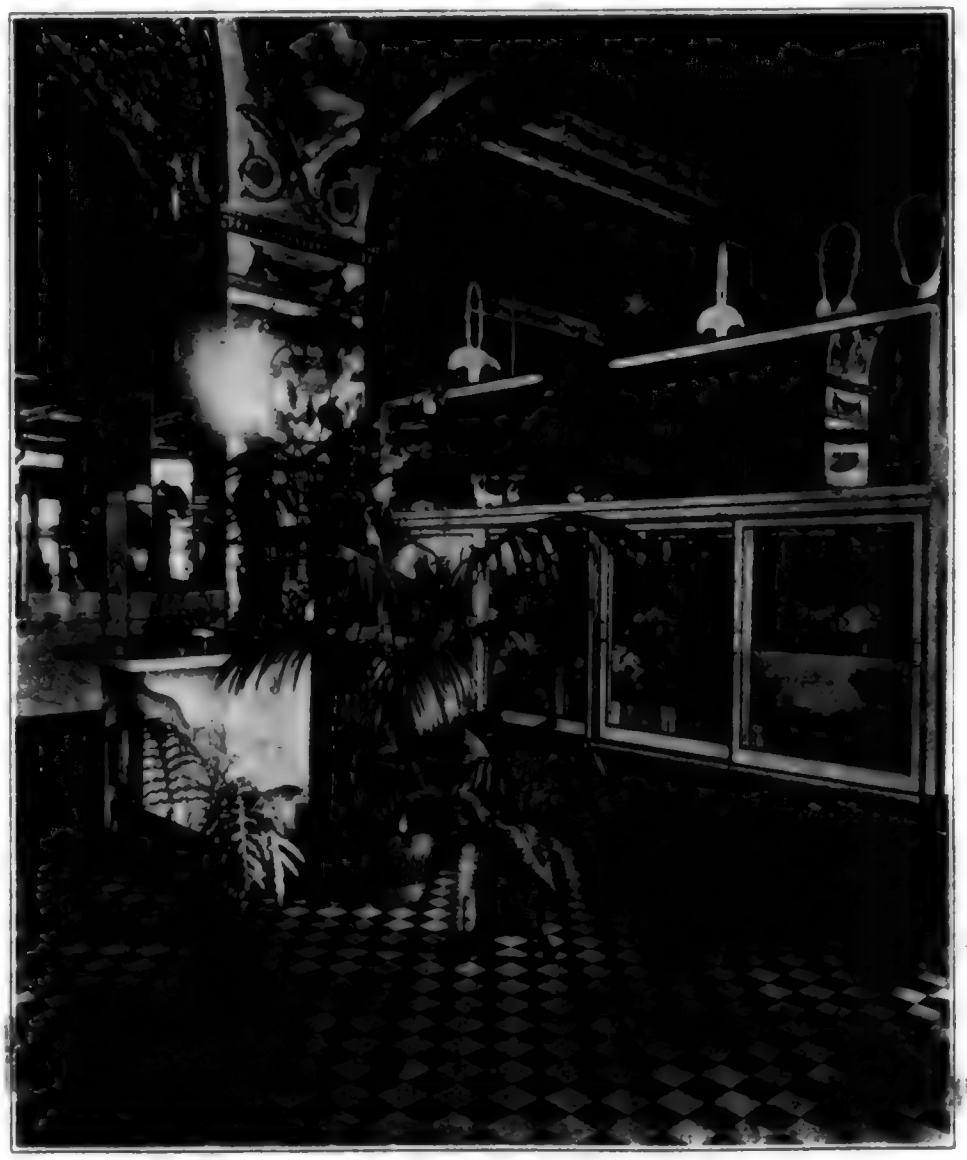
FANCY FLOORS FOR FLORISTS' STORES

The Retail Florist who is remodeling his store can add greatly to its appearance, at small extra cost, by putting in an up-to-date floor

AS SUMMER approaches, the thoughts of the florist who has a store turn to redecorations, alterations and improvements to be completed before the next season opens. Perhaps he will go so far as to build a new store; or he may only add a few touches to make his shop more attractive than it was last year. In either case he puts his mind at work to find something that will make his store a little better than the ordinary—something to give it a distinctive air all its own.



This is the reason why it is so much more a pleasure to go into a florist's store than any other kind of a shop. There is nearly always something that makes it a little different. Take, for instance, the matter of floors. Have you ever noticed—of course, the retail store men have—how many different kinds of floors there are in florists' stores? That is because the owners are all trying to get something new, something a little less common than plain hard maple, or linoleum.

The Why of It.

For the ordinary shop, whether it be a grocer's or a dry goods store, the common hardwood floor is good enough. But the florist, from the nature of his business and because he holds his line on a little higher plane, must put a covering on the floor. At first linoleum seemed to fill the bill, but it was soon found that this did not prevent the wood underneath from warping and buckling on account of the ever present moisture. Nor could these floors, in the long run, be kept free from a muddy appearance that detracted from the looks of the store. The only way to avoid these troubles was through frequent refinishing and recovering of the floors.

Then the idea came, why not take all the money spent from time to time for refinishing and recovering, and, by paying it out in a lump sum, put in a high-class floor that would be lasting? Therefore tile, mosaic and terrazzo floors came into use in flower stores. These, when they do not crack on account of the settling of the building, are lasting and, when the cement does not wash out as a result of the continual wetting, present a good appearance. Employees, however, find these unyielding floors hard on the feet; even one's patrons notice the difference in comfort. These floors are also dangerous when water has been dripped here and there, and to prevent employees and customers slipping and falling on the wet spots, as treacherous as though oiled, rubber mats must be strewn about the floor, in front of refrigerators, at the door and wherever water is liable to fall. This has created a big demand for rubber mats for florists' stores, but has not solved the floor problem. There are almost as many complaints against these floors as against the old kind.

Of late the storemen who are on the lookout for a better floor have noticed something new in this line and have begun to ask questions about them. These composition floors, as they are called, are new to most of us, though well known in the building trades. You may have seen such a floor in a florist's store and asked the owner about it, with an eye to your floor of the future. The answers to many of your questions you will find in this article, prepared for The Review after a careful study of floors for florists.

A Floor that Gives a Distinctive Tone to the Store.

Cost Considered.

One of the first things that the shrewd store owner asks about is, of course, the cost. But in laying a floor, as in building a greenhouse, the cost varies, and the only sure way to know what the bill will be is to submit specifications. There is always present the question of quality, as well as of the freight rate, building conditions, the presence of expert workmen, etc., all of which change the figures one way or the other.

For the purpose of comparison, however, approximate figures can be given. The hard maple floors, formerly found in most flower stores, cost from 12 to 15 cents per square foot at the start; finishing and annual upkeep raise these figures. Linoleum, also largely used, averages 20 cents per square foot for high-grade material, although department store linoleum, like department store flowers, can be had at a lower price.

Jumping from the lowest to the highest figures, we find at the other extreme tile and mosaic floors. Of these there are many kinds, at many prices, but 40 to 60 cents per square foot covers ordinary quotations. Local dealers handle these floors, as a rule.

Composition Floors.

Combining a larger number of good qualities than any of these, and of a medium price, composition floors are rapidly coming into favor. Although these are not at present generally well known to those outside of the building trades, they are being used more and more. Already some of them have found places in florists' stores, and have given complete satisfaction. They combine the elasticity and comfort of wood floors with the durability of tile, and in price strike a medium between the two, the approximate cost being 30 cents per square foot; some run slightly more. They show no effects if splashed with water, are not slippery, and can be easily cleaned. The cost for upkeep is practically nothing.

Combine Many Features.

These floors are, as their name implies, formed of a composition of materials, which include a substance, such as cork, to give the elastic quality that is essential for the comfort of clerks' and customers' feet. Asbestos is a principal component of several floorings, such as Asbestone, Asbestolith and Fama-Stonewood, and, with a special treatment, makes the material fireproof and lasting.

A strong advantage of floors of this kind is that they can be laid on any sort of a foundation, even on an old floor. To guard against defects in the under-floor, if of wood, each floor maker usually puts in a covering of some kind, commonly a steel lath, on which the new floor is laid. Most of the composition floors are in plastic form and are laid somewhat like cement, although the materials of which they are composed prevent their being hard and unyielding like cement. They are about one-half inch thick and weigh from one to three pounds per square foot. Ordinarily the floor is ready for use twenty-four hours after being laid, but the longer it is allowed to harden and settle the better the result will be. To some of these floors a finish is applied like that given to hardwood floors.

Harmonious in Color.

A point that is not to be overlooked by those who consider the artistic appearance and harmonious effect of the store interior is that these floors can be laid in various colors and patterns. This is of great value in a flower store, where a bad looking or dismal colored floor may detract much from the display of flowers and plants. A floor that by color and tone adds to the effect of the display has that much greater value.

This same effect may be obtained whether the floor is laid in a plastic form or in tiles. Of the latter there are two kinds, cork and rubber. The interlocking rubber tiling is laid in small, interlocking squares, held the more firmly by the application of a liquid cement. The cork floors, such as Dreadnought Interlocked Sectional Flooring and Everlastic Tiling, are laid in the same way; the latter is also laid in larger squares and oblongs not interlocked, but, through the manner of laying and application of cement, fully as durable and sanitary as the other form.

In Chicago Store.

A floor of Everlastic Tiling, shown in the accompanying illustrations, was laid in the store of the Fleischman Floral Co., in the Railway Exchange building, Chicago, by the makers, over a white ceramic tile floor. It is composed of alternate squares of green and white, each 4x4 inches; the tiles are five-sixteenths of an inch thick. The cork of which it is composed makes it noiseless, elastic and comfortable to the feet; it is also sanitary, non-absorbent and wears well, and adds much to the appearance of the store. This, like practically all the other floors mentioned here, is laid by expert workmen under the direction of the maker.

A list of various makes of floors of the kinds described here, together with the manufacturers and, in some cases, the names of florists' stores in which these floors have been laid, is given herewith:

THE MODERN FUNERAL.

"What a change there has been in funerals!" said C. S. Harrison, of York, Neb., in an address on "The Mission of Beauty" at the nurserymen's recent convention. "Sixty years ago death was treated as a defeat. The room was filled with the odor of paint and varnish of the home-made coffin. No flowers, no adornment. Now a funeral is the celebration of a victory. Flowers everywhere in the room and on the casket, and by the modern process of lowering the remains so that they slowly vanish amid banks of flowers, the impression obtains that our departed have gone to the land 'where everlasting spring abides, and never-withering flowers.'"

THE VALUE OF ARRANGEMENT.

How much is due to careful and painstaking arrangement in the making up of a floral piece, rather than to extraordinary material, is illustrated by the wreath shown herewith. The stock used is all of everyday character, lilies, Killarney roses, Asparagus Sprengeri and cycas and magnolia leaves; the effect is gained entirely by the arrangement of this material. The wreath came from the establishment of Thomas Salveson, of Petersburg, Ill. While it was a rather elaborate piece, it sold for $20 and John L. Bryant, the designer of the wreath, is of the opinion that it could command twice this sum in a metropolitan store.

AT A VIRGINIA WEDDING.

Though the bride and bridegroom have left the scene, the essential features of the event, so far as the florist is concerned, are shown in the illustration on this page, which shows the decorations and some of the bouquets used in a recent wedding at Newport News, Va. Grandy the Florist, of Norfolk, Va., furnished the bouquets and put up the decoration. In the view shown herewith the maid of honor, matron of honor, flower girl, ring bearer and one of the ushers are ranged in the foreground. In the row at the back are the three remaining ushers and the bridesmaids. These latter carried silver staff baskets filled with sweet peas and adiantum, which are almost obscured by the palms in front of them. This is unfortunate, as these were a distinctive feature of the wedding and a source of pride to J. W. Grandy, Jr.

INDIANA OUTING.

The annual outing of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will take place at Winona Lake, Ind., July 15 and 16. Secretary O. E. Steinkamp announces that the business meeting will be held at 2:30 p. m. on the first day, followed by a steamer ride on the lake and a dinner at 6:30. The second day will be devoted wholly to recreation, beginning with a ball game at 9 a. m. The location affords every facility for games, boating, fishing, swimming, etc., and a large attendance is expected.

NEW RANGE AT AMES.

The contract has been let for a new range of houses at the Iowa State College, at Ames, Ia. The establishment is to be designated as the Plant Propagation Laboratories and is to be used exclusively for educational work. The contract calls for a palm house 38x50 and two extensions each 25x50, all with curved eaves, and ten growing houses each 25x75, all iron frame. These are to be erected in connection with some well built and well equipped service buildings. The contract for the greenhouses was awarded to the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, and work is to proceed with expedition.

MIGNONETTE UNDER GLASS.

Will you please tell us the best varieties of mignonette to grow under glass, how to handle them, and the proper time to plant? H. H.

Sow in solid beds of rich soil or in deep benches which have no heating pipes below them, about the end of July. Thin out the plants so as to leave not more than three to a hill. The hills should be twelve inches apart each way. Let the plants run up to show flowers; then pinch back. This will give you a first crop of flowers early in October and, by careful watering and judicious feeding, the same plants will flower continuously until Memorial day. One point to remember is that mignonette must have a low temperature; 40 to 42 degrees at night is about right, and be sure never to fumigate it heavily.

LUMINOSA BEGONIAS.

At what time should Begonia luminosa seed be sown in order to have 4-inch plants for Christmas; also, what time should seed be sown to have plants for Memorial day? C. L. H.

For Memorial day trade sow the begonias from the middle to the end of January. For Christmas trade it would be better to use cuttings, taking them in May. The seeds do not germinate so well in hot weather. C. W.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

A HARDY CANNA.

There is now growing against the south wall of my greenhouse a bronze-leaved canna, which has not been out of the ground for at least five years. No care has been taken to protect it during the winter, yet it comes up with more abundant foliage each year, and the leaves are now taller than the plants grown in the house. It grows fully six feet tall and makes a handsome bunch of leaves. The flowers I should call a cherry red. They are not much to brag about and as I have had better bloomers, I have never lifted the plant. But it comes up and smiles at me each year, and so I have left it to grow in its own sweet way. I did not know cannas were ever hardy.

Lou Hardman.

WHEN TO PLANT THE IRIS.

A reader of The Review asks, in a recent issue of the paper, when is the best time to plant irises. It may be helpful to state first when not to plant them. When not to plant them is when they are just ready to bloom; to move them then is too severe a shock for them. Some growers wait till late in the spring and then wonder why their plants die. When the ground was in just the right condition, we have planted them immediately after their blooming period, and with good results. This can be done if you can change from one row to another. But they cannot be safely shipped at this stage.

The best time of all is in August. In that month they have been shipped from the Atlantic to the Pacific in safety, but they must be packed dry. If the roots are extra long, cut them back a little. If packed in wet moss, they will rot. A florist in Aberdeen, S. D., wrote to us saying that he planted in the fall and always lost the plants. We advised him to try planting his next season's stock in August; he did so and was greatly pleased with the outcome. Planted then, if the ground is in good condition, they get well rooted before winter.

Of course they can be set out any time in the fall if the location is not too far north, or the work can be done early in the spring, but the results will not be so satisfactory as from August planting.

C. S. Harrison.

ONE FORM OF ADVERTISING.

The problem of getting the public to patronize florists more liberally is one of the vital problems we all must try to solve to the best of our ability. Past efforts and their results might teach us a great deal if only we knew more of what is being done throughout the country along this line. For this reason I wish to state what I have done for the welfare of the trade and my firm especially during the great rose festival at Portland, Ore.

The annual celebration in honor of Portland's roses is taking on greater proportions each year, and this year, instead of holding the district rose exhibits in the Armory, two blocks of Sixth street were reserved for flower exhibits, and the support of professionals was solicited. While no prizes were offered for florists' exhibits by the festival management, it was suggested that the advertising returns would prove better rewards than prizes could be. Deciding to test the advertising value of a good exhibit, we grew small batches of our different petunias and French hydrangeas, as well as a number of more uncommon plants, such as Gerbera Jamesoni, ismene, Hoya carnosa, bougainvillea and Aristolochia elegans, flowers of which were also exhibited and added much interest.

All the street exhibits were arranged in a natural garden scene closed in on all sides by neat fencing. Among trade exhibitors were J. B. Pilkington, H. Weed, of the Beaverton Nursery, Rahn & Herbert Co., Crout & Wilson and the Swiss Floral Co.

Judging from the interest the crowds seemed to take in the newer flowers, especially the petunias and French hydrangeas, Mont Rose and Mme. Mouillere, the flower growing industry has glowing prospects for the future. The neat souvenir memorandum booklets given out by the Swiss Floral Co. appeared to make a hit, as nearly 10,000 of them were carried home by visitors, not strewn about the streets, as is frequently seen done with ordinary advertising matter. It is impossible to judge the number of visitors to these flower displays, but 125,000 must be a conservative estimate for the four days of the rose festival.

We have booked orders from all over the United States, showing that the rose festival draws visitors from far as well as near. Financially we feel that the expense incurred for this advertising is money well spent, and we hope to see others follow in our steps.

ROSES

BEAUTIES NEED WATER.

Our American Beauties were planted in heavy clay soil, of which one-third was cow manure, in which they made a splendid growth. The second summer, after the plants were rested four weeks and the wood was in a ripe condition, I pruned them, after which I removed two inches of soil, and replaced it with a heavy mulch, consisting of two-thirds soil and one-third cow manure, bone meal and lime being added. I then gave them a heavy watering. They started to break within two days, but the breaks were soft. We have now lost about seventy-five per cent of our plants. I examined the roots, finding scarcely any root action. Kindly advise me what my trouble is.

C. B.

It is well said that ninety-nine times out of 100 if there is something wrong with roses, it is caused by lack of water, and no doubt this case is one of the ninety-nine. When roses planted in heavy clay soil have been rested four weeks by withholding the water the soil gets hard and dry and it takes steady watering for three or four days and even longer to get it again in the condition that it should be to dissolve the food that the plants require and take from the soil. Unless the soil is brought back to this condition the plants will only make a little water growth and will not make any roots. Consequently they will take no nourishment from the soil and in a short while will die.

In starting up old plants after they have been rested, they should be gone over with water for at least two days, several times a day, before any soil is taken off the benches, to soften the old soil. Then, after the old soil is taken off, it is well to water the benches at least once before putting in new soil. The benches should again be gone over for two or three days, until you are positive that every particle of the old soil is saturated. After that the plants need a dampening down occasionally to induce them to break, but don't allow the old soil around the plants to become dry and hard again after the plants have started to make new growth, for if you do, they will surely die.

W. J. K.

PLANTING GRAFTED ROSES.

In June of last year we planted 150 roses of the varieties Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and Lady Hillingdon. They produced a fine first crop in the fall, but did poorly all winter, perhaps partly on account of overwatering. Now they are in fine crop. They are grafted roses and we set the graft above the soil. We have made a mistake, we believe, and think the graft should go below the soil. Would you advise that we replant them with the graft below the soil? If so, when should we dry them down and reset them? They are in solid benches, in two feet of soil. Should we prune them at the time of resetting? We wish to carry them over another season. L. G. S. & F. C.

In planting grafted rose plants they should always be set with the graft below the ground, to prevent the plants from being broken off at the graft through the necessarily heavy syringing, and also to give the plants a chance to make roots above the graft, which helps the plants materially, especially in winter, when the Manetti is not as active as the roots of cultivated roses. That fact may partly account for your roses not doing so well during the winter.

If the plants have not made a large growth during the year and if they have plenty of head room, they can easily be run over another year without resting, by cleaning off the top of the bed and then giving the bed a top-dressing of bone meal at the rate of about twenty-five pounds to 100 square feet of bench, and on top of this about three inches of good compost containing at least one-third manure, preferably cattle manure. If the sides of the beds are of boards and are not high enough to take this top-dressing, a 1x2 strip can be nailed along the top edge of the board to give the necessary height. By this treatment the graft will be covered without disturbing the plants and they will make new roots and should make a good growth during the summer and fall. This should keep the plants in good shape through the winter, besides giving a good cut right along without losing the time which would be lost by resting the plants and checking them through replanting. No pruning will be necessary, as the roses mentioned make practically no blind wood and therefore they receive all the pruning they require through cutting the flowers. W. J. K.

CONTRIBUTE TO TEST GARDENS.

In addition to the excellent rose garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., and the new testing grounds being established at Washington, D. C., the rose plots at Ithaca, N. Y., on the grounds of Cornell University, are of importance to the trade and are being stanchly supported by nurserymen. Possibly 3,000 rose plants, said Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., in his address before the nurserymen's convention at Cleveland, were planted out at Ithaca this spring and came as contributions from the following concerns:

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

A BIG ORDER FOR GLASS.

There is a big order for glass looking for somebody to take it—the largest single order that ever has come on the market out of the greenhouse trade. The W. B. Davis Co., of Terre Haute, Ind., wants 10,000 boxes of 16x24 d. s. a. for its new establishment. Mr. Davis has asked quotations from all the sources of supply with which he is acquainted and, as indicating the state of the market, it is interesting that at last report he had found only one concern that was prepared to quote on the whole order for immediate shipment; all the rest want deliveries to run along into the new fire.

WEATHER HURTS JASMINE CROP.

In spite of the apparently excellent prospects in May for the cape jasmine crop at Alvin, Tex., at the end of the season the returns proved to be not up to expectations. How good these prospects were may be seen from the accompanying illustration, which shows part of the field of cape jasmines at the farm of the Alvin Cape Jessamine & Floral Co. In this field were 400,000 buds; in this part of the field, also, is shown the foreman of the packing crew, on whose shoulders rests the major part of the responsibility of the buds reaching the customers in good shape.

For the poor season the weather is blamed; W. L. Heller, manager of the Alvin Cape Jessamine & Floral Co., expresses the idea with the statement that the growers were "weather trapped." About May 1 the crop appeared to be a few days late, but during the next twelve days the weather was so favorable that the growers commenced to look for a heavy shipping season. Just when some of the buds seemed ready for shipment, May 13 or 14, cold weather, accompanied by rain and wind, set in for the week following.

As long as this weather continued the growers knew there would be but little picking, but as soon as sunshine appeared, the buds were certain to break rapidly. Every mail brought large orders for buds for immediate shipment, which could be filled only at the whims of the weather. Sunshine meant buds; no sunshine, no buds.

The buds matured late and the first days of June were heavy shipping days, but the total crops fell short of previous records. The Alvin Cape Jessamine & Floral Co., for instance, failed to harvest its total crop by at least 350,000 buds, it is stated. Next year the growers hope to have weather a little more dependable and crops a little more regular.

THE LABELS ON INSECTICIDES.

The federal insecticide act has been amended by the adoption of a regulation abolishing the use of serial numbers on insecticides and fungicides and also prohibiting the use of the legend, "Guaranteed by [name of guarantor] under the insecticide act of 1910," or similar phrases, on the labels of the packages. The reason given for thus amending the act is that such legend and serial number have proved misleading, inducing the public to believe that the articles to which they relate have been examined and approved by the government. The amendment provides that any manufacturer or jobber who wishes to guarantee his goods, so as to protect the dealer from prosecution, may attach a guaranty to the bill of sale or other schedule, since "the protection of the dealer and not a guaranty to the consumer was the original purpose of the legend."

The new regulation is to become effective on and after May 1, 1916. In the case of products packed and labeled in accordance with the insecticide act and in conformance with the rules and regulations, prior to May 1, 1916, the amendment will become effective on and after November 1, 1916. Manufacturers, however, need not wait until May 1, 1916, to change their labels, but are free to make them conform to the new regulation at any time.

FERTILIZER FOR SNAPDRAGON.

Which would be the best fertilizer for snapdragon, liquid manure or sheep manure raked in? Is nitrate of soda or any of the commercial fertilizers as good? C. D. J.

Both are useful, but I have had better results with liquid manure. If you use sheep manure, mix it with twice its bulk of somewhat moist, screened loam. Nitrate of soda I would not use at all. Fine bone is good. C. W.

A NORTH CAROLINA RANGE.

A little over two years ago S. A. Starr, then one of the proprietors of the Starr-Denmark Floral Co., at Goldsboro, N. C., leased the range in the center of the town from J. L. O'Quinn & Co., of Raleigh, N. C., and H. C. Smith, of Goldsboro, and since that time has run this establishment under the name of the Goldsboro Floral Co. The two years have been spent in building up a good business locally, and the range in the center of town, a bird's-eye view of which is given herewith, now takes care of the business of the 10,000 inhabitants of Goldsboro and ships stock to Raleigh.

The two interior views of the range, one of the carnation house and the other of the house of chrysanthemums last fall, show what care is taken not only with the stock but also to keep the houses in the best possible condition. In this range is used the Skinner irrigating system, and a Kroeschell hot-water boiler heats the houses. Not only cut flowers, but also pot plants and bedding plants of the leading kinds are grown. In the view of the chrysanthemum house may be seen the proprietor, S. A. Starr, and his wife.

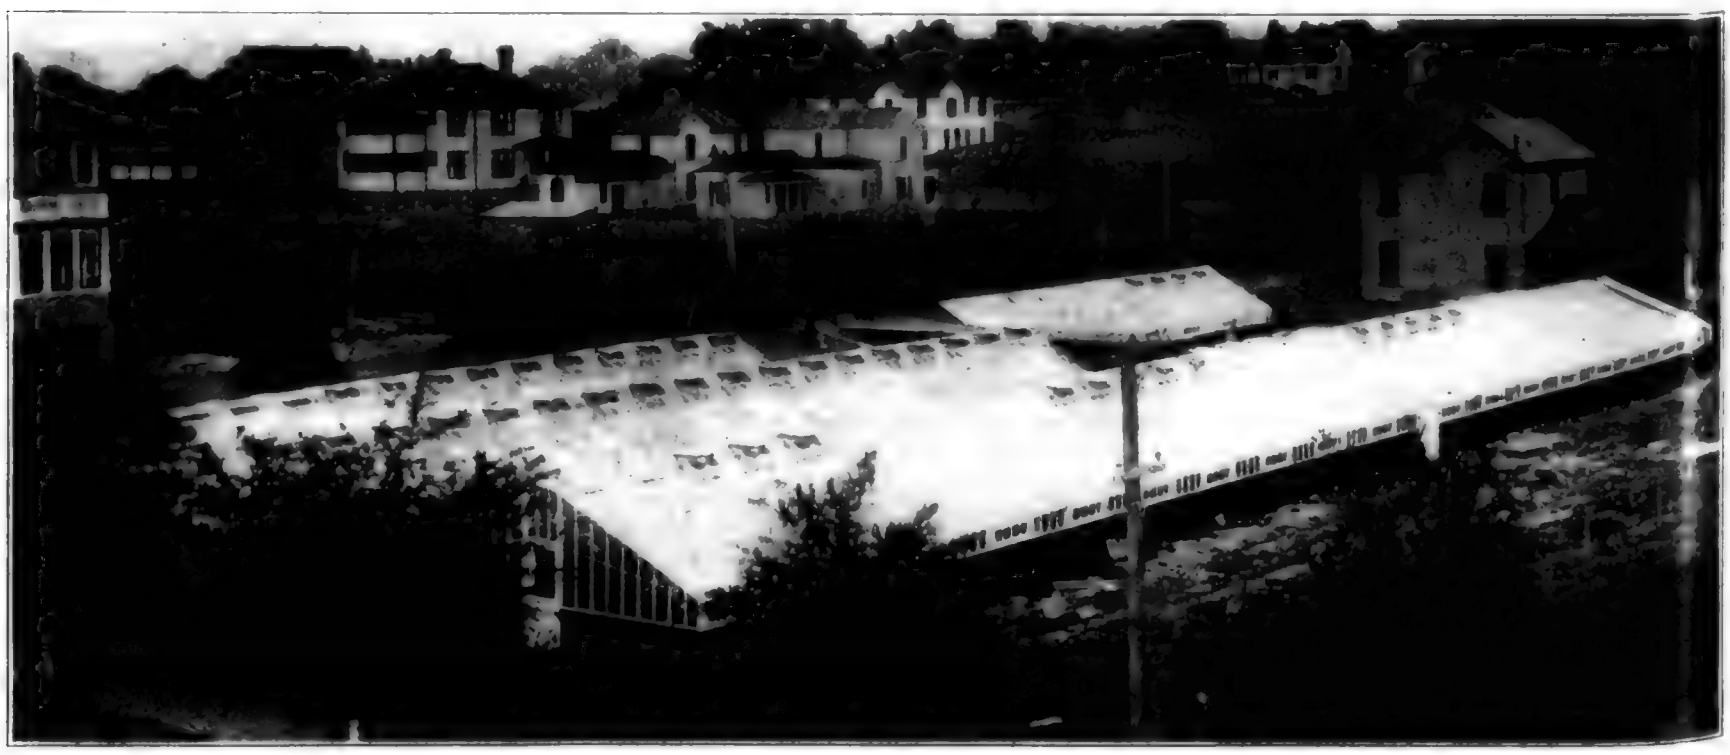
BENCHING THE PLANTS.

Moderation in Shading.

Having filled the beds with soil, you are ready to get in the plants and set them in their winter quarters, but before you begin digging, it will be well to see that everything is in readiness to take the best of care of the plants after they have been lifted.

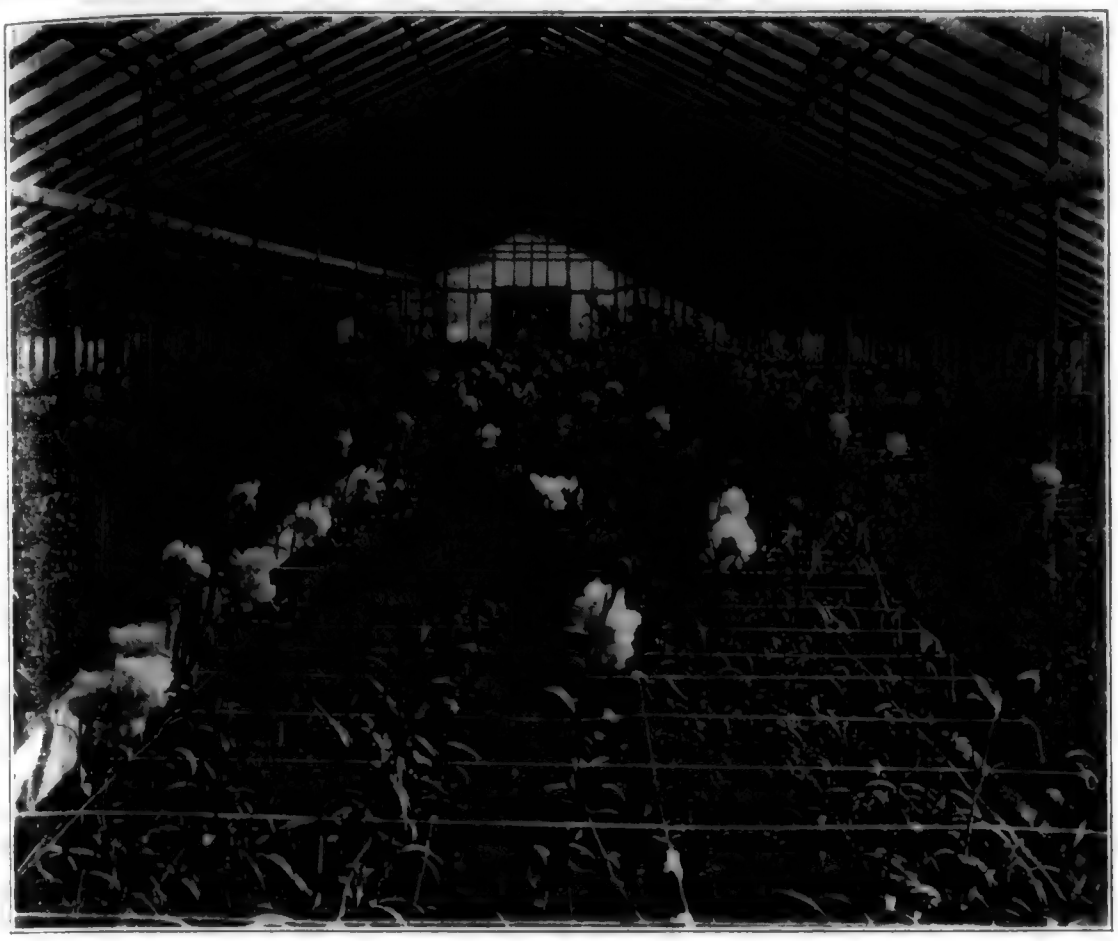
Years ago we sprayed a heavy mud shade on the glass, to darken the house and prevent wilting. This was never entirely satisfactory, because, while it prevented wilting, it also caused the plants to become soft unless it was removed carefully and gradually after root action started. Now we put on practically no extra shade, beyond what was put on while the blooming stock was in the benches. If that was taken off by the rain, then we replace it about as heavily as was considered right for the blooming plants. Instead of using clay or lime for shading, we now use whiting. Mix the whiting with water, making it about like thick cream. Let it stand a day and dilute it further with water, adding a 3-inch pot-ful of linseed oil to each three gallons of the finished liquid. We spray this on with a hand syringe, producing on the glass countless little spots of various sizes. A little practice will enable you to distribute it evenly over the glass, and when the work is well done we consider it a better job than could possibly be done with a brush and in one-tenth of the time.

Moistening and Marking the Soil.



If the soil has dried out somewhat after the beds were filled, it should be moistened to the proper state before any plants are set. Have it in just about the same state as you prefer it for potting. Plants set in dry soil will suffer a great deal more than when set in soil that is moist enough to keep the roots fresh. We do not mix in any fertilizer before planting. Years ago, we invariably raked into the soil a good dressing of ground bone, but experiments have proved that this is not beneficial and so we discontinued it entirely for carnations. Now we supply what food is needed after the plants have resumed their growth.

Many growers use a marker to set the plants by. Heavy nails are driven through a board at the distance they wish to space the rows. This is dragged across the soil both ways, marking off the bed in squares. We stretch a line down the center of the bed to indicate where the center row should be set. A long pole, properly notched, is used to indicate the distances between the plants. The rest of the plants are set according to those in the center row. We find this a convenient and satisfactory method. Either way is good.



We always have a man planting on each side, so as to bring the planting of the entire bed right along. The advantages of this are numerous, but perhaps the greatest benefit is that you can follow more closely with the watering. If the day is bright and warm, you must follow with the watering pretty closely, watering each plant separately, rather than soaking the whole bed. Then wet down the walks heavily and spray the plants overhead frequently to prevent wilting. The more sharply you look after this during the first week, the better will it be for your plants.

The Spacing of the Plants.

The distance apart to plant may depend largely on the variety being planted, but growers differ somewhat in opinion even in regard to the same varieties. More beds are built five feet wide than perhaps any other width; so we will use that width as a basis on which to calculate. We set seven plants of Enchantress across a bed of that width. If the plants are extremely large we space the rows twelve inches apart, but if they are of medium size we space the rows ten inches apart. We find that a bed 5x120 feet, containing 600 square feet, will hold just 1,001 plants. That would be 86.4 inches to the plant, or about 8½x10 inches. Such varieties as Victory and Gloriosa can be planted a trifle more closely without crowding them in the least, unless you get larger plants than most of us do of these varieties. We do not like the practice of putting two or three plants together, as a rule. We do it sometimes, if the plants run unevenly, but if they run uniformly small we prefer to cut down the distance between the rows somewhat.

Bird's-eye View of the Range of the Goldsboro Floral Co., Goldsboro, N. C.

Carnation House of the Goldsboro Floral Co., Goldsboro, N. C.

This spacing of the plants is a matter of dollars and cents and is not so easily solved as one might think. If you space too far apart, you will add to the quality and perhaps add some to the number of blooms per plant, but you will cut down the number of blooms per square foot of bench space. If you set too closely, you will add to the number of blooms per square foot of space, but the quality will suffer. Of the two extremes we would most certainly prefer the former, but to avoid either is our aim and that is the point not always easily attained.

Digging and Housing.

Now you are ready to begin getting in the plants. To carry in the plants we use trays made of glass boxes. They are of a convenient size for one man to handle and are made of material that is found ready at hand on almost any growing establishment. Have one man digging and two gathering the plants as fast as they are dug. Have another take them right into the houses to the planters and do not allow them to stand out in the sun uncovered. We throw burlap over them while they are waiting to be planted, to prevent wilting. If the burlap is kept moist, all the better.

The digger will lift a great deal more soil than you want to carry into the house, so the gatherers will reduce the ball of soil to about the size of your fist. If it all crumbles off, no great harm is done, but we prefer to have that much soil with the roots.

A week or ten days before you are ready to plant in, go over the plants and top everything that will need topping before the plants are taken in. It will help to shape up the plants and a lot of eyes will swell and be ready to break out as soon as the plants resume growth. There is perhaps nothing more provoking than a lot of top-heavy plants for benching and when the plants are being lifted is not the proper time for topping.

IF STABLE MANURE IS SCARCE.

Stable manure is getting scarce here. What would you advise us to use as a substitute for it, in preparing soil for carnations and chrysanthemums? Would you recommend the manure in sacks or a commercial fertilizer, and in what proportions?

H. E. H.

The grower who is unable to secure an ample supply of stable manure does not, as a consequence, need to quit business, although he is surely up against more or less serious inconvenience at times. A certain proportion of manure I consider absolutely necessary under the present-day methods of growing, but it is unquestionably true, also, that elegant stock can be grown with far less manure than most of us use, providing the soil is sufficiently well prepared.

I would suggest that you select a plot of soil that is in fairly good shape. Plow it in early August and sow down to cowpeas. After the early frosts, plow these under and sow down again to rye, which should again be turned under in the spring, when it has reached a height of about fifteen inches. This should put the soil in fairly good shape to use that summer, but it can be made much better with another year's preparation if you will put on, instead of the rye crop, a light coat of stable manure during the winter, following that with plowing and sowing a crop of red clover in the early spring. If you can get no stable manure at all, you might put on a dressing of the shredded cattle manure just before plowing in the spring. Use about two tons to a plot 100x100 feet. This ought to give you a fairly good soil to start with, and after the plants are established you should find no difficulty in keeping them in good growing condition with the aid of judicious feeding.

The foregoing suggestions may be modified to suit your particular soil, as various soils need different treatment.

Some day we may learn to grow flowers without stable manure. In fact, a few growers I know have advanced so far in the use of chemical manures as to use only a little stable manure. A great deal of study and a great deal of care are required, however, in the use of the chemical preparations, as they are all extremely concentrated and serious damage may result from the least carelessness or ignorance. They are safe only in the hands of an expert.

IN THE WINNING CLASS.

After a careful, critical survey of the many fine assortments of sweet peas exhibited at the annual show in New York, I have selected the following thirty-two varieties as standing in a class by themselves, the finest in their respective colors and shades:

Empress Eugenie, light gray and lavender.

Illuminator, orange salmon.

King White, all that the name implies.

Wedgwood, delicate blue.

Afterglow, bicolor, violet blue and amethyst.

Barbara, probably the most distinct orange salmon variety.

Mrs. J. Emmett, light apricot-pink.

Constance Hinton, fine white.

Red Chief Improved, mahogany, shaded orange.

Charm, white and lavender.

Carene (?), orange.

Countess Spencer, still a fine pink.

Hercules, one of the best pinks.

Inspector, one of the best orange shades.

Florence Nightingale, lavender.

Margaret Atlee, salmon pink.

May Campbell, cream, marbled crimson.

Margaret Madison, sky blue.

Mrs. Routzahn Spencer, creamy pink, in evidence in all winning collections.

Mrs. C. W. Breadmore, cream, with pink edge.

Nora Unwin, white.

Loyalty, white ground, lavender stripes.

Nubian, one of the finest maroons.

Orchid, rich lavender.

Snowdon, a winning white.

Scarlet Emperor, probably the best scarlet.

Stirling Stent, orange pink.

Mrs. Stevenson, orange scarlet.

Etta Dyke, still a good white.

Queen Victoria, probably the best sulphur yellow.

Melba, orange.

Helen Lewis, rich orange pink. The greatest improvement seems to have been made in the sweet peas in the orange shades, but Helen Lewis is still much in evidence and can be counted on as a reliable variety.

STEVENS' NEW SWEET PEA.

I have been reading the article on sweet peas in The Review of June 11 and thought I would tell you of a new sweet pea I found last year among my Christmas Pink. It came into bloom about two weeks later than the other peas in the bed, but showed such a distinct type and such unusual vigor that I sowed all the seed the plant produced. The plant reached a height of about six feet. The flowers were the color of Christmas Pink, but much larger, the plant commonly producing four blossoms on stems from twelve to fifteen inches long, some being even as long as eighteen inches.

Some of the seed was planted outside in the spring, but we found it was strictly a greenhouse sweet pea and if planted outdoors became short, small and poor as the heat of summer came on. In August we planted some of the seed inside and found it the most vigorous grower we have ever seen. The seed was sown directly in a solid bed, which was rather heavily manured. Other varieties damped off badly, but this came on splendidly and began to bloom at Christmas, although there was an occasional bloom much earlier.

We cut peas continually from this planting until after Memorial day, and today it stands thirteen feet high, close up to the glass, and is still covered with blooms and seed pods. Of course, the blooms are now much affected by the heat. To my disappointment, this year only about one-third, perhaps not that many, produced four blooms to a stem, but three was the rule until the plants were much exhausted and the heat of summer came on.

There came three colors, that of the parent, a red and one lighter than the parent. This might have been due to the fact that there were other peas in the same house last year, but we protected the plant from the time the others, which were late, came into bloom. Everyone who has seen this sweet pea says it is more vigorous than any other he has ever seen. The accompanying illustration shows a man cutting the blooms from a scaffold higher than a man's head. A man standing in the aisle just below him does not show in the picture.

Mrs. O. B. Stevens.

SWEET PEAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

Will you kindly tell me what is the best variety of sweet peas for forcing for the Christmas trade? I mean one of the Spencer varieties. B. L.

The Christmas Pink and Christmas White Spencers are as fine as any you can get for the Christmas trade. The grandiflora varieties, while prolific, are not profitable to grow now, as they do not command over half the price of the Spencers. C. W.

SNAPS AND SWEET PEAS.

We shall grow snapdragons and sweet peas in the benches, using the same soil in which we grew carnations this year. We want to sweeten it with lime, but do not know how much to put on. Should it be slaked? Also, what shall I put in the ground to make my chrysanthemum stems stiffer. The soil is sandy loam, enriched with stable manure. A. L. H.

I would not advise you to use old carnation soil for the crops named, if you can obtain fresh compost. Sweet peas must have a rich soil, one containing humus, and well rotted cow manure cannot be beaten as a fertilizer. If you do not have this manure, well decayed horse manure will answer, or, failing that, a liberal dressing of pulverized sheep manure and fine bone. To sweeten soil, the lime used should be slaked. Use a bushel on a bench 4x100, but do not use manure at the same time or much of the nitrogen will be released into the atmosphere.

A top-dressing of lime during the growing season will help the stems on your chrysanthemums. Give abundant ventilation and feed freely as soon as the buds show. A mulch of well rotted stable manure will also be found advantageous. C. W.

DAISIES AND OTHER FLOWERS.

Will you please give me the name of the best yellow daisy for the market; also the name of other good marketable hardy flowers that go well with daisies, in this Illinois climate? I intend to put in a good bed of them. J. C. W.

The yellow marguerite mostly grown is botanically named Chrysanthemum frutescens Etoile d'Or. One or two other forms on the market carry larger flowers, but these bloom less freely. Other flowers suitable for planting in beds or benches are snapdragons, in which pink is the best seller; sweet peas, stocks, best as a spring crop; double feverfew, and annual flowers, such as calendulas, cornflowers and larkspurs. Probably the pink snapdragons would be as good a crop as you could grow; they would do well in the same temperature as the marguerites. C. W.

TO EXTERMINATE MOLES.

Can you tell me how to get rid of ground moles? We have two kinds of traps, but do not seem to be able to catch them. They are destroying the privet and rose bushes, and some of the flower beds as well. Can they be poisoned? G. L. A.

I have found the Reddick mole trap by far the best for exterminating these little animals. If properly set in the runs, this trap will never fail to catch the little pests. There are several other mole traps on the market, but I have found the Reddick decidedly the best. There are various other ways of killing moles, including poisoning and stabbing them, but the trap named beats all other methods of extermination. C. W.

B. Eschner and Mrs. Eschner in Front of their Home at Elkins Park, Pa., July 4.

HYDRANGEA OTAKSA.

We have purchased a number of Hydrangea Otaksa in 3-inch pots. Should these be planted out in the open ground or kept in pots? They are wanted for bloom next spring. W. M. R. & S.

For early flowering it would be much better to keep the hydrangeas in pots. A good plan would be to plunge them in coal ashes in a coldframe where water is convenient. Plants well established in pots, carefully watered and fed when well rooted in the pots, will ripen their wood earlier than such as are planted out and can be flowered several weeks ahead of the lifted stock. Be sure to grow them in an open, sunny place. C. W.

THE HARDY PERENNIAL GARDEN.

As It Looks in Early July.

While June may be said to be the month of the year when the hardy flower border looks at its best, before the coarser late summer varieties have grown too tall and before the drought and heat, usually characteristic of July, have caused many plants to have a faded appearance, there is, nevertheless, a splendid assortment of plants now in flower, and if the soil is of good depth and is kept freely stirred, if water is given to the more moisture-loving subjects, if seeds are cut away from varieties which have finished blooming, thus in many cases insuring a succession crop, and if supports are given where necessary, the July flower border is exceedingly attractive.

Delphiniums, or Larkspurs.

With the passing of the late peonies, the most strikingly beautiful perennials now are the delphiniums, or hardy larkspurs. What a wonderful variation in coloring is to be found here! Practically every shade of blue is to be found, and vigorous plants in good soil easily attain a height of seven to eight feet, and what can be finer for cut flower purposes? A florist's store window arranged with delphiniums looks beautiful at this season. Use a low tray of pond lilies and a sloping background of the larkspurs and you get a combination which will at once rivet attention, though all the best grown carnations and roses may be passed unnoticed.

I would make a plea for the use of more of the new and strikingly beautiful named delphiniums. A few of these are J. S. Brunton, of the same blue shade as the well known Belladonna; Mœrheimi, a vigorous, pure white variety; Progression, nearly pure white; Rev. E. Lascelles, with large, double, deep blue flowers. Among the better known varieties are Amos Perry, semi-double, rich mauve, shaded sky blue with a prominent white eye, named in honor of England's greatest delphinium hybridizer; Queen Wilhelmina, soft lavender; King of Delphiniums, semi-double, dark blue, a vigorous sort; Belladonna, sky blue, a popular sort; formosum, deep blue; formosum cœlestinum, sky blue; Lizzie, azure blue; Duke of Connaught, velvety blue, lavender within. The Chinese larkspur, D. Chinense, gentian blue, should always be included; it blooms in three months from seed; also its pure white variety.

For anyone who wants to raise larkspurs in quantity, and who may not have sown the seed yet, there still is time to raise strong plants before fall. Many named varieties are now purchasable from seedsmen, and come pretty true. By sowing seed from a first-class strain of mixed hybrids many wonderful shades can be had, and in some cases the varieties will equal the best named sorts. After delphiniums have flowered they should be cut down and a second crop will come out to bloom in August and September.

Aquilegias, or Columbines.

The beautiful and graceful spurred aquilegias now are getting past the best, but where the ground is moist they persist until well into July. They are easily raised from seed and are so fine for cutting that every country florist should have a good bed of them. It is best to raise a good batch each year, for, while they are classed as perennials, they do not in many cases live over two years. The old forms, especially the doubles, will persist indefinitely, but the beautiful blue and white cœrulea, or Rocky Mountain columbine; Californica, chrysantha, Skinneri, Haylodgensis and the mixed spurred hybrids often disappear, even under the best treatment, after a couple of years. They are, however, so easily raised from seed that no one need be without them. The common American columbine, A. Canadensis, with red and yellow flowers, is one of the best subjects we have for naturalizing in poor ground; in the rock garden, planted in a mixture of shale and loam, it is perfectly happy.

Spiræas, or Astilbes.

Some of the spiræas, or astilbes, are fine border plants, particularly where they can be kept moist at the root. In addition to the old varieties, like Japonica, Gladstone, astilboides, etc., and such more recent sorts as Peach Blossom and Queen Alexandra, the new hybrids of Davidii crossed with some of the old sorts have given us some beautiful varieties, possessing great vigor and mostly growing three to four feet high. Of these the following are extra good: Vesta, lilac, graceful; Ceres, delicate rose; Juno, violet rose; White Pearl, silvery white, and Salmon Queen, salmon pink. They are vigorous growers, fine for pot culture as well as the hardy border. All these were in flower the first week in July. To flower later we have Astilbe Davidii, with rich violet rose flowers growing six feet high, and A. grandis, white. Each of these should have moist ground, to be seen at its best.

I have not mentioned Spiræa Aruncus, or Aaron's beard, just on the wane, which is fine either in the border or as an individual specimen in grass; E. palmata, with rosy crimson flowers, and S. Filipendula flore pleno, all of which are good garden plants of unquestioned hardiness.

CORNFLOWERS UNDER GLASS.

Kindly advise how to handle cornflowers under glass. What are the best varieties to handle and when is the proper time to plant the seed?

H. H.

Cornflowers need similar soil and temperature to snapdragons—a minimum temperature of 45 to 48 degrees. Sow them in rows and thin out the seedlings where too thick. For an early crop sow in August; for a spring crop, in January. The double blue is the most popular variety. C. W.

PROPAGATION OF JUSTICIAS.

Will you please tell me how to propagate the justicia, or Brazilian plume plant? I have been successful in growing a fine specimen, but have failed to propagate many cuttings. Should the green flower heads be removed before the cuttings are struck? O. A. K.

The plant referred to is probably Justicia magnifica, or its sub-variety, carnea, now often listed with such old-time favorites as libonias and sericographis under the name of jacobinia, although the old name persists in spite of the botanists. Justicias are easily propagated in the late winter. The present is not a suitable time to strike cuttings. The green flower heads must, of course, be removed, but earlier in the year, before they appear, is the time to root them in a cutting bench such as will strike carnations or roses. They do not need a high temperature, but require cool greenhouse treatment all the time. Old plants are not worth carrying over; it is better to root young stock annually. C. W.

CLEANED UP.

No grower need see surplus stock—good stock—go to waste. If the local demand does not call for it, sell it through the Classified ads in The Review. Like this:

Please stop my mum ad and send statement of account. I sold every plant through the use of The Review.—A. L. Ambrose, Lexington, Ill., July 6, 1914.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Despite the lateness of the season, business continues to keep up well. Stock is gradually deteriorating in both quality and quantity. Roses of the better grades are exceptionally scarce, although plenty of short stemmed flowers are to be had at a low price, for which the demand is limited. Good white roses are in the best demand, for which a limited supply of Kaiserin is available. White Killarney is also coming in, but, owing to its open habit, is not of much value other than for immediate use. Maryland is the best pink at this time, but is not seen in large quantities. Carnations are selling fairly well, only a few good ones finding their way to the market. Peas are now about over; few good ones are seen. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and the demand about as usual. A large amount of funeral work used up quantities of what would otherwise have been surplus stock.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Boone, who was injured while riding on a motorcycle with Mr. Boone on the Hillen road recently, is slowly recovering after having been confined to her bed for over three weeks. She is now able to get about again without assistance.

John Nuth, at Belair road and Franklin avenue, is going to erect a house, 28x130, work on which will begin at once. A field of carnations on his place is looking better than the majority around the city, due to its being watered during the recent dry spell.

Hugo Grahl, of Violetville, is cutting some good sweet peas, which are in good demand.

Peirce & Co. have purchased the lease on the store at Charles and Twentieth streets, now occupied by Krouse Bros. This property will be remodeled during the summer and reopened under the new management about September 1. Their new store, at 2118 Madison avenue, is almost ready for occupancy; it is expected to be opened about July 15. Their last purchase brings four stores under the management of this firm, the main store, at 509 North Charles street, and three branches, located in different sections of the city.

The outing committee of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club visited Buell's Middle River park Wednesday, July 1, to make the necessary arrangements for the annual outing of the club. The park is an ideal one for the purpose. A large pavilion and dance floor are there, besides bowling alleys and numerous other amusement devices. Good bathing, boating and fishing are also to be had. It was decided to hold the affair Monday, July 20.

We have had a number of rains during the last week, averaging a shower a day, which have considerably helped outdoor stock, and with another week of such weather, the stock will have gained its normal growth. W. F. E.

Columbus, O.—The Columbus Hothouse Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000 to conduct a general vegetable and fruit business. The incorporators are J. F. Sultzbaugh, R. J. Dunkley, M. G. Sultzbaugh, Jennie Dunkley and J. P. Eagleson.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business, as a general thing, was satisfactory during the last week, several commencements calling for considerable cut stock for bouquets and baskets. Growers are showing much concern at the small amount of rain; unless a good soaking comes soon, great damage will result. Sweet peas are of excellent quality and gladioli are becoming more and more popular. Carnations are scarce and poor, but roses are holding well.

Various Notes.

Walter Sword, of Valley Falls, reports an exceptionally good trade in bedding plants this spring, having handled more than 5,000 geraniums and 3,500 salvias.

S. J. Reuter & Son, of Westerly, who have maintained a herd of upward of fifty head of cattle, principally for the fertilizer, have sold the entire number, having substituted other fertilizers.

Woodrow & Marketos, of New York, have opened a branch store at Narragansett Pier for the season.

E. E. Howard is building a new greenhouse, 14x132 feet, at his place in Auburn.

The large collection of palms from the greenhouses of R. H. I. Goddard, at Potowomut, East Greenwich, has been purchased by T. J. Johnston & Co., Ed Brooke, proprietor.

Albert L. Warner, who is hale, hearty and actively engaged at the head of a lucrative florists' business in Pawtucket, will celebrate his eightieth birthday July 28.

Johnston Bros. had one of the most attractive window displays for July 4. American flags, tricolor streamers and cut flowers and decorative plants were artistically intermingled.

Four new greenhouses have just been completed at the establishment of J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., at Auburn, and another is to be erected at once, to be devoted to American Beauty roses. From 10,000 to 15,000 roses are shipped daily to the Boston market.

Timothy L. O'Connor and family have gone to Narragansett Pier for the summer.

The two new houses that Olney Williams is erecting on Hartford avenue are now being glazed and will be ready for benching early in August.

The flower stand in Dimond's department store, that Hazard & Pierson have been conducting all winter, has been discontinued for the summer.

Frederick Davis has been granted permission to erect a one-story office and greenhouse costing $1,200 on Pleasant street, Pawtucket.

Maenair has adopted the billboard method of advertising and with fifty in different parts of the west side of the city he leads as the first florist in Providence to use them. W. H. M.

Sheldon, Ia.—Frank Christiany, proprietor of the Sheldon Greenhouses, will erect two greenhouses this season, comprising 10,000 square feet of glass, one-third larger than the old buildings, in which several thousand feet of glass was broken in the recent hail storm. Following this destruction was deemed a good time to rebuild, as the old houses have long been too small to carry the growing business.

...NEWS NOTES...

Council Bluffs, Ia.—J. F. Wilcox & Sons have purchased an Oakland "Six."

New Castle, Ind.—Myer Heller has returned from an interesting and profitable trip to the rose growing centers of Europe.

Stoneham, Mass.—J. L. White has purchased the greenhouses on Wright street court and is now repairing and renovating them in preparation for their use.

New Castle, Pa.—Broseheit & Son placed an order with the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for an iron-frame greenhouse 60x300, with steam heating plant complete.

Westboro, Mass.—Edward Thorne, for the last twenty-two years head grower at the Westboro State Hospital, has resigned and plans to go into business for himself.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—Jacob Schmid has leased the Fourth Street Greenhouse Co. range from Leon E. Sawicki for a term of three years. Mr. Sawicki recently moved to Forest Grove, Ore.

Lost Springs, Kan.—Flag day and Children's day recently were celebrated here as one day. J. A. Gordon decorated the Evangelican church without charge and was accorded much praise for his good work.

Flint, Mich.—Walter Hasselbring's car was completely destroyed by fire and he has several injuries as a result of a collision with another machine June 27, when he turned out to pass an automobile on the Trenton road.

Fargo, N. D.—W. B. Shotwell, of the Shotwell Floral Co., July 1 sold his interest in the Grand Forks Floral Co., of Grand Forks, N. D., to E. G. Lemke, who has been manager for Mr. Shotwell for the last year and a half.

Great Falls, Mont.—Actual construction work has been begun on the store of the Electric City Conservatory, at 1409 Fifth avenue, which is to be one of the finest shops in the state. The firm recently filed articles of incorporation. Stockholders are Charles A. Burrell, J. W. Hallow, Archie Burrell and Isabelle M. Burrell. The capital stock is $10,000.

South Lyon, Mich.—George M. Wilson has bought out his partner, Mr. Challis, in the firm of Challis & Wilson, proprietors of the South Lyon Greenhouses & Gardens. Shortly after the transaction Mr. Wilson suffered a heavy loss as the result of a wind storm June 27, which broke over 2,000 panes of glass in his houses and inflicted other damage.

Moline, Ill.—For the third time since June 4 the greenhouses of J. Staack & Sons were flooded June 25, as the result of a heavy rain. Paving work allowed the water to collect in such quantities that the drains, which are imperfect, could not carry it off. The damage amounts to hundreds of dollars, as the water was ten feet deep in the lower levels and the boilers were completely submerged.

Convention City Hotels

THE hotel committee for the Boston convention has sent out a circular letter containing the list of hotels which is here appended, with prices and other particulars. The committee has made comprehensive arrangements and in most cases can hold reservations until August 15. It will be best to write direct to the hotel for reservations, but the committee suggests that intending visitors send duplicate announcements to the office of the general secretary, 120 Boylston street, Boston, Room 702, as a record, as it is the desire to help members in every way. Besides the hotels below, there are a number of other excellent family hotels in the vicinity of the garden and hall and innumerable first-class furnished rooming houses and reasonably priced restaurants.

People intending to stay at Back Bay hotels, the Somerset, Nottingham, Thorndike, Westminster, Lenox, Victoria, Canterbury, Hemingway, Vendome or Carleton, or to look for furnished rooms, should leave trains via N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and Boston & Albany R. R. at the Back Bay stations of the roads, all others at the South Station terminal. Patrick Welch, 226 Devonshire street, Boston, is chairman of the hotel committee.

The Copley Plaza hotel, in Copley Square, has been chosen as official headquarters of the convention. It is one block from the Back Bay and Huntington avenue railroad stations. To reach this hotel, leave the train at the Back Bay station. Check your baggage to the Back Bay and Huntington avenue stations, as it will be transferred to and from the hotel without charge.

OBITUARY

Julian Hanft.

Julian Hanft died suddenly July 2 of heart failure at his home in New York. He was 84 years of age. Mr. Hanft came to this country from Germany in the year 1849, about the time of the gold fever, and took up his trade as custom tailor. He worked for Brooks Bros., in Catherine street, New York, until about 1865, when his eyesight failed and he went with his brothers into the flower business at 693 Broadway. He remained with them until 1878, when he ventured into business with his son, under the firm name of Hanft & Son, at 793 Broadway, opposite Grace church. This firm was unsuccessful and Mr. Hanft shortly returned to his brothers, with whom he remained until about three years ago, when his nephews gave him a pension up to the time of his death. He leaves a son, W. A. Hanft, who is with Young & Nugent, New York, and three married daughters.

W. H. Tincher.

News comes of the death of W. H. Tincher, who conducted a nursery business at Decatur, Ill., for fifteen years. He was 68 years old and had suffered from paralysis for a year. At Decatur he did a big business, especially in shade trees, specializing in Carolina poplars. Ten years ago he drew a claim in a land opening in Oklahoma and went to live at Lawton, Okla., where he died.

Mr. Tincher was a G. A. R. veteran and an active member of the Decatur post while there. He is survived by his widow.

James Eastwell.

James Eastwell, well known in the trade at Cleveland and Painesville, O., died Thursday, June 25, in the hospital at Painesville, where he had been in the employ of the Carl Hagenburger Co. Death was probably due to an overdose of medicine taken for an illness from which he had been suffering for several days. Upon examination by a physician he was removed to the hospital, where he died in a few minutes. Mr. Eastwell was widely known and was at one time employed by the Smith & Fetters Co., at Cleveland. He is survived by his mother.

Patrick Dwyer.

Patrick Dwyer, a florist for thirty years and a resident of Brooklyn since 1854, died Saturday, June 27, in St. Peter's hospital, Brooklyn, after a brief illness. He was born in Brooklyn, was a member of the Holy Name Society and the Church of St. Mary Star of the Sea, and is survived by three sons and three sisters. The funeral was held June 30 from the establishment of M. McMahon, at 124 Summit street.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Eli Cross moved July 1 from the Wonderly building to the Morton House block.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE early advertiser of field-grown carnation plants is the one who is getting the quick action. Later, stock will not be so scarce as at one time seemed likely.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

ENORMOUS quantities of chrysanthemums have been planted—more than ever before—and the specialists in young stock report the call still excellent. If things do not go radically wrong there surely will be two months this autumn when the mum will crowd everything else into the background.

L. MERTON GAGE, of Wellesley, Mass., secretary of the American Gladiolus Society, has issued the preliminary schedule for the exhibition to be held at Boston, August 18 to 20, during the S. A. F. convention. It is expected the show will be much larger than any yet held by the society, Boston being favorably located for this result.

THE demand for pink roses so far exceeds the call for white, and the number of good pink forcing sorts so far exceeds the number of whites, that the big growers now give only a fraction of their glass to white roses. The result is that when there comes a time that other white flowers are scarce, white roses, too, are almost unobtainable.

IF one reads republican newspapers he comes inevitably to the conclusion that the florists' business this season has been much better than other lines. How much of the depression in general lines is actual, how much is psychological, as the President puts it, and how much is political it is impossible to determine, but the fact appears to be that florists are complaining less than most other business men.

PERMANENT BUSINESS.

The Review sells its space on its merits—no cut prices, no bonus in circulars, no trading stamps; nothing but service—and it is of course a gratification that the business has grown faster in the first six months of 1914 than in any other period since the paper was established. The satisfaction is all the greater for the evidence that the paper is building permanent, profitable business for so many of its patrons. The steady increase in the advertising shows it, but there are other evidences:

We are sorry we do not have anything we need to advertise regularly. Since our advertising in The Review some years ago, offering rubbers, we have always so many orders on hand that it is impossible to supply the demand. That is a good sign of the value of your paper, and of course we send you a little ad whenever we have a surplus in any other line.—A. C. Oelschig & Sons, Savannah, Ga., June 29, 1914.

In reply to your letter regarding the non-arrival of our pansy seed ad, our old customers are taking all our crop this year. Thanks to The Review, our production is rather behind demand, but we hope soon to be in shape to make all-the-year-around use of The Review.—Wm. Toole & Son, Baraboo, Wis., July 6, 1914.

DUPLICATION.

"The editor who duplicates his editorials does not attract much attention from his readers."—A. E. McKenzie, seedsman, in an address on advertising.

Mr. McKenzie advises against duplicating advertising copy where publications of overlapping circulation are used.

Yet many trade advertisers not only duplicate their paid copy, but also duplicate everything of a news nature they have the opportunity to send out, encouraged by editors, not blessed with Mr. McKenzie's perspicacity, who fail to realize that "the editor who duplicates does not attract much attention from his readers."

Editors and advertisers should have exactly the same object—to get their stuff read.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Considering that last week contained the nation's birthday, proverbially the poorest flower day in the year, business has not been so bad. True, there is no great amount of insistence in the demand, but if the summer continues as good as the week that contained the last days of June and the first days of July, there will be little cause for complaint. The present week started hot; it naturally cut down the business, while increasing the supply, but the out-of-town call for flowers is fair.

There is no shortage of stock of any important character. Probably the feature of the week is the increase in the supply of roses. There now is a large crop of practically all varieties except White Killarney. Kaiserin has practically disappeared and the growers appear to have planted only a small fraction as many white roses as of pink. Mrs. Russell is the finest rose in the market. A number of growers are cutting moderate quantities. There is a great deal of difference in the quality of the flowers, some growers doing it much better than others. Shawyer is in excellent shape and selling better than any other pink rose. Killarney Brilliant is good, but yet not in large supply. A few Hadley are seen. Both Richmond and Milady are abundant, the latter much the better. Mrs. Ward, not a hot weather rose, still is seen in good shape, but Sunburst is so much the best yellow that it commands the bulk of the business in this color. While roses are abundant, prices seem to be all that the growers could expect at this season of the year. Beauties are not so overplentiful as was the case in the latter part of June. While some growers still cut heavily, the crops of others have passed the peak. Average prices are better.

Carnations are disappearing, and asters, while a few are received, are not yet in large supply. This undoubtedly helps the sale of roses. Gladioli are arriving much more plentifully this week. The southern crops have been a disappointment, due to dry weather, but probably there will be an abundance from now on. Easter lilies have become good property and rubrums are offered and sold in greater quantities than ever before. Auratums have made their appearance, but candidums have passed. The special demand for valley has subsided. No large supplies of cattleyas are needed and there is plenty of fine stock. One grower still has a quantity of peonies, from which the market now draws its only supply. Sweet peas have been in larger supply the last few days, due to more favorable weather conditions last week. The garden flowers all are abundant. It is difficult to clean up, but large quantities are sold at moderate prices.

There is an abundance of all kinds of greens and the demand is not active.

Not all the buyers have been heedful of the fact that the wholesale houses now close at 5 p. m. Orders have been coming late. It would be well to remember that the market is closing one hour earlier during the summer.

Shorter Hours.

In discussing the proposition to shorten business hours, George Asmus says that the hours a retail store is open must always depend on the location of the store and the nature of the business done. He says that a large part of the business done at both the Schiller stores is in the evening and on Sunday. Sunday often turns out the best day of the week. So important is the evening and Sunday business that special arrangements are made for handling it. The employees are not asked to work more than six days a week, or more than ordinary business hours. While the store is kept open until 10 p. m., the salesmen who come at the opening hour in the morning go off duty at supper time, while those who remain until the closing hour are not required to report in the morning until time to relieve the morning force for luncheon. Those who work Sunday are off Monday. Of course the business is much lighter in summer than in winter, but hours are not changed; simply a part of the force is let off for vacation.

There is a strong demand, all through the trade, for shorter hours, but it is a demand each florist will have to meet in his own way. Where the business is large enough the solution is easy, by dividing into shifts, but where there are only one or two people at work the difficulty is greater.

Various Notes.

The physicians have diagnosed E. E. Pieser's case as sclerosis of the blood vessels of the right foot.

Mrs. Sarah Lindon, who does business as the Temple Floral Shop, at 108 East Fifty-first street, is preparing to open another store, at 828 East Forty-seventh street, corner of Drexel boulevard, one of the best locations in the city. The store itself is excellent, the floor and windows being tiled, the walls paneled in waxed fumed oak. The refrigerator, tables and wall cases will be built to order by Orr & Lockett. Miss Mattie C. Lindon, daughter of the proprietor, will be in charge and it is expected the opening will take place by August 15.

There was a celebration at Morton Grove July 4, all right, for on that day the stork brought a little daughter to the home of Guy W. French, president of the Chicago Florists' Club. It is the third child in the family. Mrs. French and Mrs. J. W. Poehlmann are sisters.

That the autumn season will be better than usual in merchandise lines is the belief of A. L. Randall, who bases his opinion on the crop prospects in the west. He says the supply business is a little slow at present, but that cut flower sales are showing a fair gain over last year, due to local conditions.

While the Chapin brothers, of Lincoln, Neb., were in town recently they placed an order with the Foley Mfg. Co. for three semi-iron-frame houses, one 29x150, one 27x150 and one 8x150. The Foley iron gutter will be used.

tions. He says his retail sales are showing a gain of twenty per cent since opening the new store.

Sailing from Southampton July 15, Oscar Leistner will call on the trade on his way from New York to Chicago, completing his annual European trip. Mr. Leistner will be a strong factor in the basket business this season.

O. W. Frese reports that Reimers Bros., of Rapid City, S. D., lost all their carnation plants in the field, and most of their mums in frames, in a hail storm last week.

Peter Heirens, in Rogers Park, who heretofore has grown carnations, will try roses this season, planting four houses to Richmond and the Killarneys. He also will have three houses of carnations and one of mums.

John Zech identifies, as Pink Beauty, the bright pink gladiolus that has come on the market in considerable quantity this week. It is not listed in many seed catalogues and has not been offered in quantity as a cut flower, but was advertised in the classified columns of The Review last winter. The buyers like it as well as the growers appear to.

Henry Wehrman, at Maywood, is disappointed with his crop of seed of the new Anita Wehrman sweet peas; it is not much over half the quantity that was expected. The shortage is due to the small number of seeds found per pod. Three seeds was good, and many had only two or even one. John Michelsen says the stock was locked up in the safe deposit vault of the Oak Park State Bank July 6.

Emil Reichling reports that field-grown carnation plants have been selling splendidly with Peter Reinberg. Mrs. Felix Reichling, wife of the manager of the Reinberg store, will be in Augustana hospital for some time, but is recuperating nicely after her operation June 29.

When John Poehlmann says Mrs. Russell rose looks to him like the best of recent acquisitions the statement has value because of that gentleman's well known conservatism. He says that if it grows as easily as it sells it will be a winner, Mrs. Russell having recently brought considerably better prices than Beauties. The keeping quality is one of its strong points, Mr. Poehlmann thinks.

The monthly meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club is to be held July 9. The place of meeting is changed to the Bismarck hotel, 175 West Randolph street. With the call for the meeting Secretary Foley sent each member a ticket of admission to the club's picnic grounds at Morton Grove July 19. The committee is preparing an interesting program.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, spent the Fourth in Chicago.

One of the week's visitors was F. A. Brockman, of Fort Smith, Ark., on his way to and from Battle Creek, Mich., where he spent the Fourth with a sister. At home Mr. Brockman looks after the greenhouses while his father runs the store.

President N. P. Miller, of the Cook County Florists' Association, has sold ten tickets to the lake trip July 12 to members of his family. He says if every member of the association does as well it will crowd the Theodore Roosevelt.

George Arendt, a lad of 19 years, was laid off July 4 at Winterson's Seed Store, where he had been employed for some months, and proceeded at once to get himself mixed up with the police over the drowning of a girl with whom he had been keeping company. At Winterson's it is thought the boy did what he could to save the girl.

Stomach trouble still keeps Fred Klingel, of Erne & Klingel, away from the store one or two days a week.

At 3743 North Clark street Adolph Malchow has had a fine spring season. It was the best bedding plant season on record; he cleaned out everything. A big electric sign installed last month by the American Sign Co. has pleased him greatly. "It has brought more customers than I had expected," he says. Mr. Malchow also is much pleased with a new display refrigerator, 4x9x8, installed for him last week by the United Refrigerator & Ice Machine Co., of Kenosha.

That this market is overbuilt enough to supply the normal growth of the legitimate retail flower trade for several years is the belief of John P. Risch, who says the only possible result is the indefinite continuation and probable increase of the department store cheap sales.

One of the interesting changes is the increasing use of the miscellaneous flowers, like calendulas, lupines, cornflowers, shrub blooms, etc. Until recently this class of stock has had little sale in the Chicago market, where dozens of buyers still say they can sell little else than carnations and roses. But now some of the leading stores are selling hardly any carnations and are using more and more of the miscellaneous flowers, especially in spring. The E. Wienhoeber Co., the Fleischman Floral Co. and O. J. Friedman have been the leaders in the use of what some call the "novelty" flowers, but many others now are carrying them regularly.

T. E. Waters this week employed a novel idea in sending out some circular matter for the supply department of Poehlmann Bros. Co. The envelopes were addressed on the addressograph and inside was an order blank with the customer's name and address filled in by the same machine. The post-office accepted them at the rate for circulars.

The average daily sunshine in June was eleven hours and forty-eight minutes, which was seventy-six per cent of the possible and five per cent more than the average. The precipitation was more than three times that of June in 1913.

In the Insurance Exchange building Ben Zalinger and his brother-in-law, Mr. Hirsch, have done a perfectly satisfactory business since their opening in February. They do not expect to do much during July and August, but anticipate a good season for 1914-15.

At the meeting of the stockholders of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, July 6, the same officers were reëlected for the coming year: President, Edward Meuret; vice-president and treasurer, Charles McCauley; secretary, George C. Weiland. Rudolph Ellsworth was added to the board of directors. The work of Paul R. Klingsporn was complimented by the officers.

John Sinner and N. J. Wietor left July 7 for a two weeks' fishing trip to Hazelhurst, Wis.

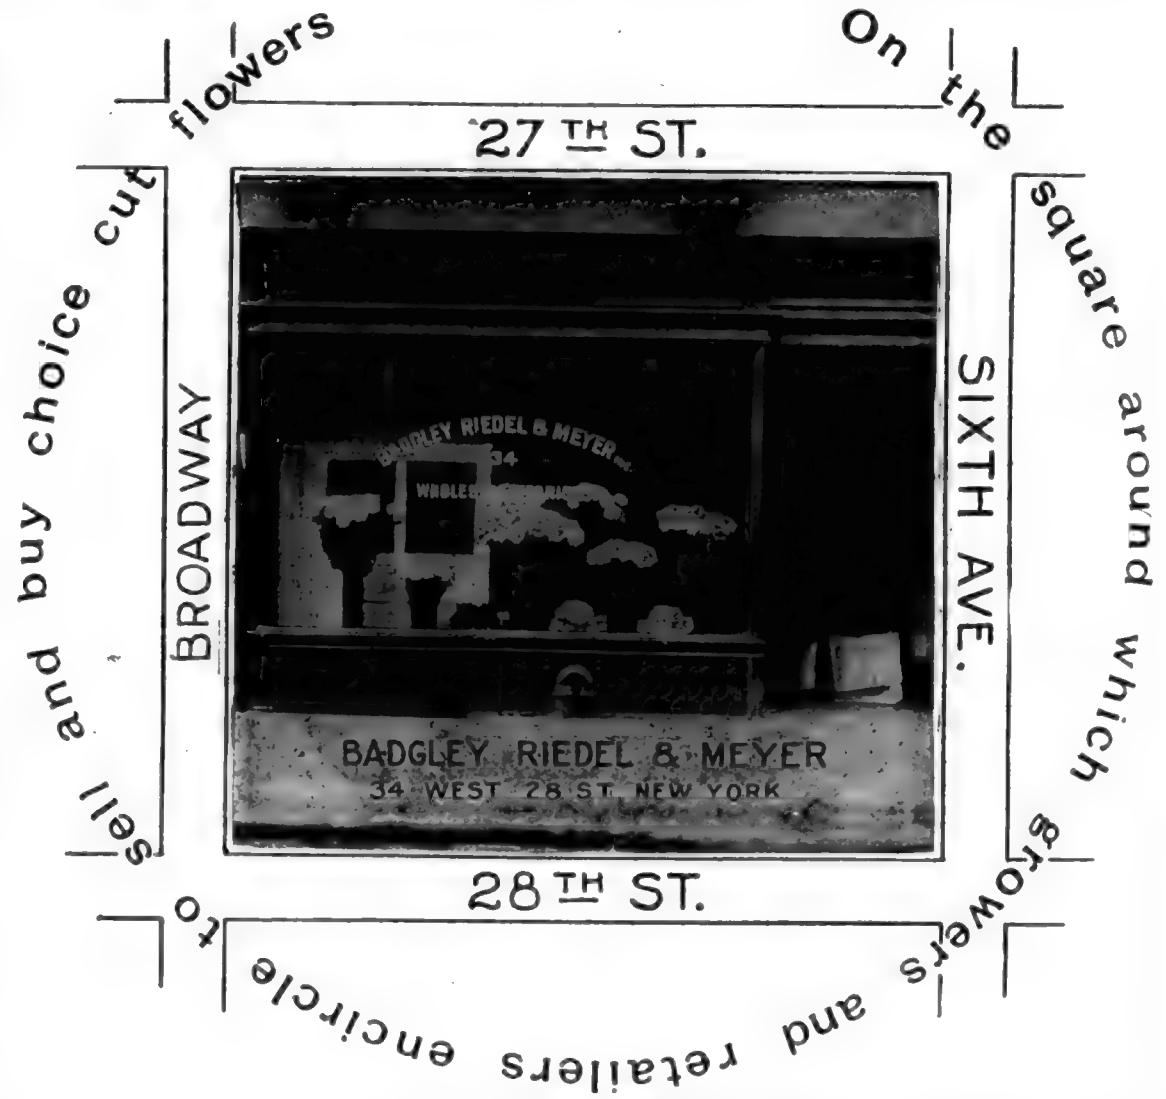
J. Nelson, 1749 West Huron street, reports he was unusually busy with funeral work last week.



Monday evening, July 6, the monthly meeting of the Retail Florists' Association was held at 170 West Jackson boulevard. On account of the warm weather only about fifteen or twenty members were present. The meeting was called to order at 9 p. m. by President Stollery, at which time all those not bearing cards of membership were asked to leave the room.

George Willens, of the Willens Construction Co., has been spending his summer vacation superintending the construction of L. Buckendorf's greenhouses in Norfolk, Neb. The Willens Construction Co. has the complete contract for these houses and expects the greenhouses to be completed within the next few days. Mr. Willens' object in personally supervising the erection of the greenhouses was to ascertain by actual experience the defects, if any, in their construction, or improvements which this experience might suggest.

In order that their employees may attend the Cook County Florists' Association outing at Michigan City, Bassett & Washburn will close all day Sunday, July 12.

A large sign, announcing the opening about September 1 of the store of Ronsley, Florist, attracts attention as one passes the Westminster building on the Dearborn street side. The proprietor is Fred Ronsley, at present with J. L. Raske, 170 West Jackson boulevard, and his associate will be Miss Mary Winzeler, formerly with Raske and Lang. The store is in one of Chicago's newest buildings and will be complete in every detail, with a workroom in the basement. O. B. Marienthal is the architect who is planning the interior.

J. F. Kidwell is building four greenhouses at Downers Grove, containing 35,000 feet of glass, three to be 26½x250 and one 48x112. Pot plants will be grown to supply the retail store at 3530 South Michigan avenue.

George Sykes, western manager for Lord & Burnham Co., says he considers it remarkable the way business holds up in the florists' trade in view of what people in other lines report. The western branch of the Lord & Burnham Co. has shown an increase each year since the office was opened here and Mr. Sykes says the general business of the company is this year the largest on record. Even the New England office is showing a gain, in spite of the acute financial depression in that section.

It is reported that the oak foliage being cut around Hammond and Gary, Ind., by Ove Gnat, for the manufacture of prepared oak sprays is much heavier leaved than ever before. For fear that worms might attack and ruin much of the crop, an early cut is being made, which may have something to do with the improved coloring.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business in general is quiet now, as the trade is again experiencing the beginning of the dull summer season. Taken as a whole, the season just closed has been a most satisfactory one. The usual complaints are missing this year. Florists can now safely take their vacations, as most of the establishments do not need the force which has been a necessity during the season behind us.

The supply of carnations has shortened up considerably and the quality has greatly improved. Consequently the prices on this stock have advanced and sales are more satisfactory. Roses are fairly plentiful. Some exceptionally fine Russell, Taft and Ward are being shown. White Killarney is scarce. There are some fine Beauties, which are moving well. Lilies are still abundant and fine. There has been a big demand for valley and the cut has been easily disposed of. Quantities of outdoor stock are seen. This looks fairly good and is selling as well as can be expected.

Various Notes.

Gustav Pohl is bringing in Butterfly sweet peas that are extra fine for this time of the year. The cut is being cleaned up daily.

F. H. Holton, state vice-president of the S. A. F., is making a strong effort to interest the trade in the society and is making a plea for members to attend the annual convention at Boston. We believe, with him, that Wisconsin should send a large delegation.

Miss Edith Webster, who has been seriously ill for some time, is sufficiently recovered to be about again. Miss Webster will go to the country to complete her convalescence.

W. C. Zimmermann has returned from an extended trip and is again in the harness.

H. V. Hunkel was away last week on a short business trip.

Currie Bros Co. has a new Ford delivery car.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club will hold its annual picnic July 19, at Keipper's park, on the Cedarburg road. A fine program is being planned and all who participate will be assured a glorious time. H. J. S.

C. C. Pollworth and guide have left for the northern woods and lakes, taking with them an Evenrude motor and substantial equipment, to look up some new rivers or lakes of doubt, and will cruise for about ten days, picking up an occasional musky, bass or trout, whichever suits the appetite. There will be no telephone connections, so Mr. Pollworth will get a needed rest.

Pine Bluff, Ark.—The Bluff City Seed & Floral Co. surrendered its charter June 22.

Yankton, S. D.—Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Gurney Greenhouse Co., with a capitalization of $2,500. The incorporators are E. R. Gurney, D. B. Gurney and A. C. Topp. The first two named are officers of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

While the first week in July is usually looked upon as the low water mark of production, the market is better supplied now than is usual at this season. This is particularly true of roses. The poorer stock is being daily weeded out; while it will, of course, always be with us, the quantity is perceptibly less than for a long time past. There are some really good roses in addition to the three varieties named last week, Mock, Russell and Double White Killarney. We have Maryland of excellent color, foliage and stem, Kaiserin, a few Radiance, some Ward and down-eastern Beauties.

Carnations here and there are of good quality, though in much smaller numbers than the roses. Sweet peas are on the down grade. They have been reinforced by New York state stock, which is fine. Valley is a little less scarce than it has been, due to lighter demand rather than increased supply. Easter lilies are coming back into their old-time summer glory; the market is firm at fair prices, the thing that has not been said of them for a long, long time. Most of the gladioli coming in are America and they sell well at moderate prices. There is a noticeable increase in the receipts of asters, with a tendency to improvement in quality.

The Glorious Fourth.

There are two exactly opposite views that are worth noting, regarding the relation of our great national holiday toward our business:

The first view is that we get few holidays and should have more; that to elevate our chosen calling and to make the world respect us we should aim for shorter hours and do our best while at work. Those holding this view closed on the Fourth of July, keeping their places of business out of commission, so to speak, from closing time on Friday until Monday morning.

Those holding the opposite view believe that flowers are a necessity quite as much as bread and butter. They opened their places of business on the Fourth of July for a short time in the morning and by so doing filled a large number of small orders. They further argue that this brief opening on the holidays enables them to market stock for the producer that might otherwise be lost, at a small sacrifice of time and effort.

Which is the correct view?

lowing day devoted to the annual outing. Boston is famous for its hospitality, its horticultural interests, and is easily reached from this city. It is hoped that every Philadelphia florist who can will arrange to accompany our Florists' Club to Boston the third week in August, where a cordial welcome and an interesting visit are assured.

Various Notes.

H. Bayersdorfer arrived from Europe July 4, on the Vaterland. He spent the following day at Atlantic City, visited his store July 6, going over to New York that afternoon with his son, Sydney H. Bayersdorfer, who sailed on the return trip of the Vaterland July 7.

John P. Habermehl is at Ocean City, N. J.

W. Gammage, of J. Gammage & Son, London, Ont., was here a few days ago.

Joseph G. Neidinger returned from Europe July 4. He was amazed at the extent of his new building, he said, but feels sure that the stock he had secured in Europe would make all the space in it a necessity before long. Mr. Neidinger thinks that the floral artists of America lead the world; for them he has secured the best European ideas.

Joseph Towill, brother of the celebrated Teddy, who is in charge of R. C. Whitmer's Ellenwood Greenhouses, at Hatboro, is adding a Lord & Burnham house this season.

H. W. Jones, of the Bellevue-Stratford, aptly describes drooping ferns as "hangovers."

Samuel S. Pennock moved his family to Ocean City July 3. One son is at a farm in Maine, another at a camp in Pennsylvania, both learning to rough it.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, held July 7, was largely devoted to convention matters.

Henry F. Michell reports the arrival of the first California freesias in good condition.

Stuart H. Miller is away on his vacation.

Alvah R. Jones and C. U. Liggitt visited Hartford and Cromwell, Conn., recently to see the rose gardens at Elizabeth park, in the former city, and, of course, the Pierson place at Cromwell, where they spent a most interesting afternoon. Mr. Jones says the stock was in fine shape.

D. Fuerstenberg is away on a vacation. The mammoth house at North Wales is producing roses once more.

Arthur Zirkman returned from his vacation at Cresswell, Pa., July 6, after a fine motoring and trout fishing trip.

J. Berger spent the Fourth, and the day following, at sea.

Edward Reid considers Mock the greatest pink rose for summer.

William C. Harvey is away on his vacation.

The Market.

The Glorious Fourth was a good Saturday from the patriotic standpoint, but it closed a week of lamentable dullness in the wholesale cut flower market. Of last week's market and its prices there is nothing new to add to the quotations of a week ago. A big surplus of the unsalable accumulations is carted away daily, the department stores are continuing their educational distribution at attractive prices, and the supply of outdoor blooms of roses and seasonable flowers is unlimited.

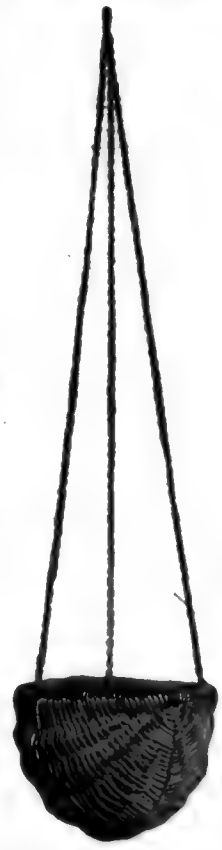
Of roses, special American Beauties are in short supply and prices for these are firm and likely to continue so. The ocean travelers and Newport and other popular summer resorts absorb all shipments of this variety daily. The summer Beauties are small and unpopular. The hot weather played havoc with the teas and few of them brought satisfactory returns. The supply is rapidly increasing, and accurate quotations are impossible. First-class carnations are few. Most of the arrivals have been asleep. From a top of $1.50 down to "the depths" expresses the present condition of the carnation market.



The north, which means upper New England and Canada, surprised us with big shipments of peonies last week, many of them of superb quality, but the demand was limited. The orchid market is well supplied and prices continue at the same level as during June, $35 per hundred for the best of the gigas down to $10 per hundred for the smaller flowers, with no stable quotations for the novelties.

Valley weakened with the weddings and the tendency is still downward. Lilies do not advance and plenty of candidums are added to the general supply. Quality must be perfect to bring the top quotation. The sweet pea arrivals have been enormous, with only the selects selling at fair prices and many thousands in the discard.

For gladioli, daisies, rambler roses and the long list of outdoor flowers there is no satisfactory outlet except the expressman and the outgoing tide. The cool wave of the last of the week helped some, but its chief advantage was the facility it afforded for the enjoyment of the national holiday.

Club Outing.

The annual outing of the New York Florists' Club was held Wednesday, July 1, at Glen Island, one of the most beautiful picnic resorts in the vicinity of New York. The weather was unfavorable, keeping the attendance below 300 and interfering with the program of sports. The rain prevented the ball game and there was little time for dancing. The club provided liberally for the lunch on the boat returning, and with the exception of the usual tumbles in the races, no accident marred the enjoyment of the occasion. It is many years since the club had a sunless outing. The opinion prevailed that facilities for general enjoyment are more numerous at the resort selected in other years and doubtless it will be Wetzel's grove again in 1915.

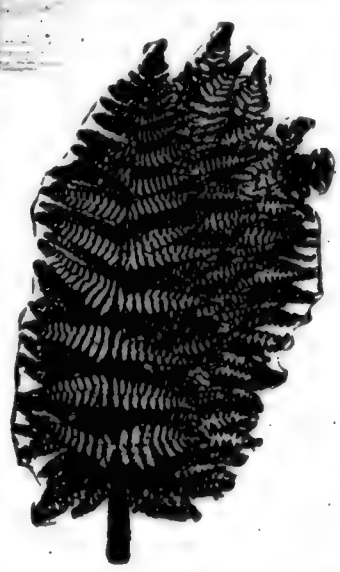
Chairman Marshall and his committee were indefatigable in their efforts to make the occasion a success. The workers were W. E. Marshall, Emil Schloss, A. E. Wheeler, R. J. Irwin, L. Schmutz, Jr., G. H. Mustoe and A. Schultheis, Jr.

E. Vincent, Jr., and Mrs. Vincent, of White Marsh, Md., journeyed all the way from Maryland to be present at the outing. Walter Mott, of Newburgh, N. Y., with B. F. Hammond, of Beacon, N. J., was also a visitor.

In the press bowling match M. C. Ebel and Walter Mott, who made the highest scores, were disqualified by the judges because one made his bread and butter out of Aphine and other insecticides, and the other out of Slug Shot and putty, with their press work a side issue only.



The awards of prizes were as follows:

Girls' race (under 5 years), 100 feet—Anna Wagner, first; Helen McManus, second.

The Market.

The last week has been a good one, considering the season of the year, for a number of funerals of important persons brought considerable business to the trade. This called for large quantities of orchids and valley. Roses are not so plentiful as they have been and there has been little improvement in quality, but they are in better demand. Carnations are still plentiful but undesirable. Asters formed a welcome addition to the market last week and those brought in met with a good demand, although having short stems. There is some demand for gladioli at from $6 to $8 per hundred and fair sales were made of Peace gladioli at from $12 to $15. There was a better movement of American Beauty roses last week at $1.50 and $2 per dozen. Sweet peas, indoor grown, while plentiful, are not being received in sufficient quantities to supply the demand. There is little call for Easter lilies and but small quantities are being received in the market.

Various Notes.

Mystery surrounds the theft of $965 from the safe in the office of the Washington Florists' Exchange, 1214 H street, northwest. Manager Schnell had told the police that the money was missing Friday, June 26, but when he opened the safe on the following Sunday morning he found that the cash had been returned.

Two of the employees of the Gude Bros. Co. last week joined the ranks of the benedicts. One of these, Frederick D. Burch, is in charge of the rose section at the Mount Olivet plant, while the other, John Carroll, is in charge of the American Beauty section at the Anacostia houses. The former was married June 30, to Miss Effie J. Adams at St. Dominic's church. Mr. Carroll started in at the Anacostia houses about two years ago as a helper, at the age of 19 years, and proved himself so efficient as to be given charge of a section.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind., and James Heacock, of Wyncote, Pa., were visitors here last week.

Joseph Goudy has been making his regular visit to the local stores.

Dr. B. T. Galloway, assistant secretary of agriculture, has finished his duties in this city and has left for a vacation trip, which will not terminate until August 1, on which date he becomes dean of the agricultural college of Cornell University. He was recently tendered a farewell reception at the National Museum by several hundred officials and employees of the department, many of whom expressed regret at his resignation as assistant secretary.

The severe storms with which this city and the surrounding country have been visited almost daily for the last two weeks are doing considerable damage to outdoor stock. The heavy rains beat down the plants and even wash them out, while the lightning is working havoc all along the line. One of these storms was accompanied by hail and some glass was broken. C. L. L.

DABIDIE, TRINIDAD.

Cyril Larsen, who came here from the Kew Gardens eighteen months ago, is the manager of the Trinidad Plant Co. One of the concern's specialties is dracæna for shipments of canes to the United States. At the present time there are some fine specimens among the seedlings from improved varieties. Aspidistras, amaryllis, cycas and palms of all kinds are also grown.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

With the most delightful summer weather one could imagine, and little going on in the trade, there is nothing for the florist to do but take things easy, and that is what most of the retailers are doing. They seem to enjoy it so well that there is little talk of vacations. There is enough good stock of all kinds coming in to satisfy the demands and the wholesalers seem quite pleased with conditions and, like the retailers, are taking it easy.

Among the growers one can see more hard work. There is great activity, but only in putting the houses in shape, not in building. Some remodeling is being done.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club met July 7 for the last time until fall.

I cannot find anyone who is sure of going to the convention, although the ocean trip appeals to a great many and, as there will probably be another hot spell before that time, there will be a representation of some kind from this city.

James Higgins says his back door opens on the park and that he could not find anything prettier if he went to look for it, so he and the baby probably will summer in Hiland park.

Samuel McClements is so busy seeing that things are in shape for fall that he cannot consider leaving Stanton avenue for more than a day's run in his machine.

Fred Burki and family propose leaving in a few days in their Packard car for a trip to Buffalo, Detroit and other points of interest.

Earl Tipton, with the A. W. Smith Co., has gone to the Canfield, O., place for the summer, where he hopes to add to his avoirdupois and learn more of floriculture. His family went with him. William Hale, of the same firm, now that the seed season is over, takes the cut flower purchasing end of the business for the summer.

T. P. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is busy making sketches for the new building, which they hope to make one of the most complete in the country.

Miss McKinley, with Randolph & McClements, is back from a short vacation in the east.

Miss King, with the Wm. Turner store, Wilkinsburg, is arranging for Plants of Mile-high Quality

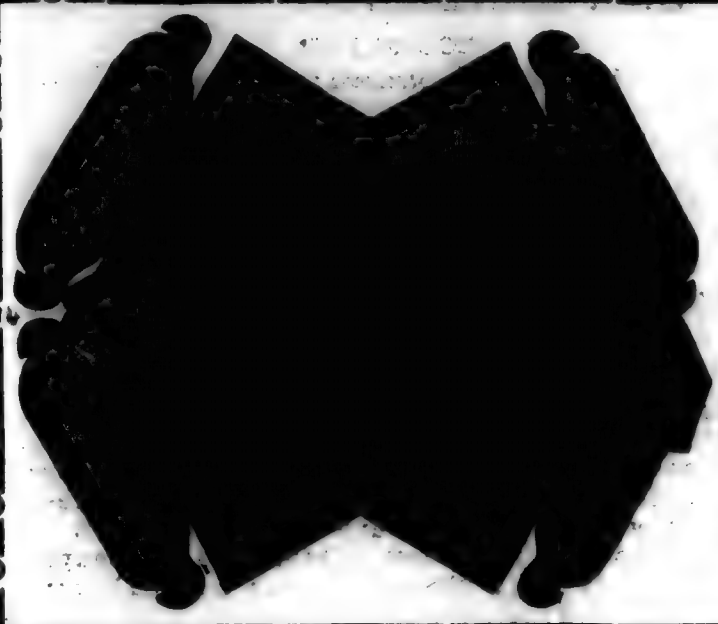
EMPTY bench space earns nothing, but your expenses keep on growing. Now is the time to buy Cyclamen, Begonias and Primulas in small sizes. They can be easily grown into five-inch and six-inch plants for Christmas.

OUR CYCLAMEN seed was sown in June, 1913, and the Begonias were propagated a month later. About October we sowed the Primula seed. Even a grower of limited experience can now take them with perfect confidence that they will grow and thrive.

THE CYCLAMEN in four-inch pots have about fifteen leaves, and should wholesale at Christmas, out of five- and six-inch pots, at 50c to 75c each. We offer them now for 20c, and the three-inch size for 8c. Separate colors, red, pink, salmon, white, and white with pink eye. We have a surplus of light colors with pink eye that we have not potted. These have been twice transplanted, and are the kind of plants most generally offered at this season. While they last we will sell them at $3.00 per 100.

LORRAINE BEGONIAS are now in two-and-a-half- and three-inch pots, ready to shift at once. They are all from leaf cuttings, and are well branched and sturdy. Just now we offer you the two-and-a-half-inch at 15c and the three-inch at 25c, and we assure you they are dandy stock and well worth the money.



PRIMULA OBCONICA we offer in two-inch at 4c or two-and-a-half-inch at 5c. We have weeded out objectionable colors by years of selection, and you will find no better strain anywhere, and few as good.

All of the above plants will be carefully shipped in paper pots. They will suffer no check by shipment, no matter what the distance.

See the color plate on the reverse of this sheet. It is worth cutting out and preserving, and shows what we mean by "Mile High" quality. We grew the plants; a Denver artist painted them, and a Denver concern made the plates and did the printing.

SMALL GODFREY CALLA PLANTS.

Will you give me some advice as to the care of Godfrey callas? I have some that are 2 years old and that have never flowered. Do you dry them off the same as the callas? They are now in 4-inch pots. C. C.

Do not dry off these small callas. Plant outdoors in rich soil, dig up and pot in September and they will be vigorous plants of blooming size. Once you get really large roots, the Godfrey plants resting just the same as the old Ethiopica. C. W.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,
J. J. Beneke

The Southwestern Market.

There is hardly anything new regarding the local wholesale market; the conditions remain about the same as those of last week. We have had some rain, but not nearly enough to freshen up the outdoor stock. In looking over the market, a large quantity of stock is seen, but of such poor quality that it is hardly salable. Gladiolus spikes are of poor quality, with the tips brown. America and Chicago White are in demand and are among the best coming in. For the best $6 per hundred is asked. Some short-stemmed roses from new stock are coming in. Most of them are Killarney and Ward.

Carnations are plentiful, but short in stem and small flowered. Everblooming tuberoses should be coming in soon in large quantities, unless the dry weather has killed them off. Lilies, Shasta daisies and valley hold up well. There are plenty of greens. Fancy ferns are down to $1 per thousand. Asparagus has a good demand.

Various Notes.

The County Growers' Association held its first picnic June 30 at Studt's grove, and from reports it was a great success. The crowd numbered nearly seventy-five persons, not including the children. The day was fine and everybody had a good time. It was voted to make it an annual event.

Frank Windler, chairman of the club trustees, reports that a number of retailers have offered special prizes for the picnic. The seed houses, as usual, are in with specials. Anyone wishing to offer a special prize can do so by calling up any of the trustees of the Florists' Club.

The majority of the retailers and all the wholesalers showed their patriotism by closing a half day July 4. Only a few kept open until midnight, as usual.

John Mortiz, head of the greenhouses at Forest park, reports that the continuous dry weather has played havoc with the fine flower beds in the different parks throughout the city and that all the young shrubs will have to be replaced this fall. Both Mr. Mortiz and Superintendent Strehle have been connected with the park department for a number of years and have never had this experience before.

David Geddis, of Vandervoort's flower department, is contemplating an eastern trip the latter part of the month, which will end at Boston in convention week. He will combine business with pleasure on this trip.

The subject of Sunday all-day closing among the florists seems to have died out, as little has been heard of it of late. This matter will come up for discussion at the Florists' Club meeting this week, when a report of a committee will be heard.

John Kalisch, with his wife and mother, left last week for a northern trip of a few weeks. Mrs. Edward Kalisch will follow this week. Edward Kalisch, the head of the firm, will remain at home this summer.

John Barnard, well known in local trade circles, who disappeared a month ago with $200 in money belonging to the O'Leary Floral Co., was arrested last week in this city and is charged with embezzlement. Mr. O'Leary says

A. L. Kammerer, B. M. Dugger and H. Von Schrenck, all connected with the Missouri Botanical Garden, have leased an old brewery plant on the north side, which has three large caves, in which they will grow mushrooms. The company will be known as the St. Louis Mushroom Gardens.

The Steinmesch Seed Co., at Thirteenth and Walnut streets, East St. Louis, Ill., had an almost complete loss by fire Thursday night, July 2, when $5,000 worth of fireworks exploded in an express company's office in the same building. Their loss is estimated at nearly $10,000.

Dr. George T. Moore, head of the Missouri Botanical Garden, will spend most of the summer months in Woods Hole, Mass., at the marine biological laboratory. Mr. Dugger, also of the Garden, contemplates a few weeks' stay at the same place.

Philip L. McKee, representing the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, spent a few days in the city, giving estimates to some of the growers who contemplate building this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Smith left last week for a two weeks' vacation trip, to be spent at Hahatonka, Mo., where the fishing is good in the cascade. They will be home in time for the florists' picnic.

Henry Berning says that owing to the long sick spell of Mrs. Berning he will not be able to attend the S. A. F. convention this year. Miss Emma Bruenig, his sister-in-law, who was his bookkeeper, will spend the summer months in Chicago for a much needed rest.

C. E. Critchell, chairman of the sports committee for the S. A. F. convention at Boston, would do well, when selecting his baseball team to play the Bostons, to look through the retail florists' advertisements in The Review, where he will find such baseball celebrities as Matthewson, Johnson, Coombs and Russell, for pitchers; Myers and Clarke, for catchers; Zimmermann, third base; Olson, shortstop; Howard, first base; Smith, second base; Murray, Wilson and Johnston, substitutes. CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Good Easter lilies, and plenty of them, fine valley, a few good roses and a few carnations, with a fair sprinkling of outdoor flowers, compose the market offerings at this writing. Last week the demand was good, owing to several large funerals. Asters soon are to arrive and gladioli will follow. A few extra early asters are seen and find ready sale.

Various Notes.

W. J. Kramer, of Rocky River, is again the first on this market with asters. His Pink Perfection and White Perfection, seedlings of his own raising, are to be seen daily at the store of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., which handles his entire output.

Carl Hagenburger is destined to become the snapdragon king of this locality if his new seedling lives up to last season's promises. His Mrs. Newell, a beautiful deep pink, darker in color than Silver Pink, and stronger in stem, is the leader. September Morn is the exact color of Aaron Ward rose. He is now cutting from plants in the field and the quality is of the best.

The executive committee of the Ohio Gladiolus Society met a committee from the Florists' Club here July 6 to talk over plans for the exhibition to be held here early in August. It is planned to hold a show that will be of interest to both the growers and the public. Gladioli will be used in table decorations, in baskets, in corsages and in other arrangements. H. P. Merrick, who came here from New York a few weeks ago to open a sales office for the Lord & Burnham Co., in the Swetland building, opposite Hotel Statler, is busy making the acquaintance of local greenhouse men. He is an interesting talker, as he has had wide experience with greenhouse building in the east, and sees in this territory the opportunity for much business the next few years.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Midsummer dullness now rules in the markets; prices are low and, except for occasional little spurts which clean up special flowers, there is little to chronicle. Conditions are considered bad, but are no worse than, if as bad as, those in July a year ago. Last week was remarkably cold for the season, the temperature being down in the fifties each day. The night before the Fourth was the coldest in the history of the weather bureau. Fireworks were few, persons seen wore overcoats and about the only sound heard was the chattering of people's teeth. The cool weather has helped to keep up the quality of flowers, and the writer never saw roses and carnations of finer quality on Independence day than this year.

Roses are selling moderately, whites moving better than colored ones. Carnations are a veritable glut, and it is a pity to see really good flowers sold at almost unquotable prices. Sweet peas from indoors still arrive, but are nearly over; outdoor ones are not yet of good quality. Lilies are a glut. Of gladioli, Mrs. Francis King is mostly seen, but prices are low. Fewer gladioli are grown now. A year ago buyers "soured" on America and wanted King; now they are all asking for America again.

Gypsophila, cornflowers, stocks, English iris and a variety of miscellaneous flowers meet with an uncertain demand. The call for asparagus and adiantum is light.

At Ellis, Mass.

Peter Fisher has several benches of his new carnation, Alice, to be introduced next season, which, when the writer called at Ellis last week, were a veritable sheet of flowers of good size and fine color. These plants gave a heavy crop of flowers as long ago as last September and October, at a time when Pink Delight was producing hardly a flower. The flowers are somewhat smaller than those of Enchantress, but are of a much better color. The salmon seen in Pink Delight is lacking, the shade being that of a pale Gloriosa. In habit, stem and calyx, as well as floriferousness, the newcomer is perfect. Advance orders already reach 70,000, and Mr. Fisher will be prepared to supply 250,000, as he will fill two houses, 40x300, with it.

In the field I saw 60,000 plants, which were in splendid condition. Of these, 40,000 were Alice, others represented being Gorgeous, White Enchantress, which succeeds better with Mr. Fisher than White Wonder; Benora and Beacon. There were also a considerable number of seedlings. Houses were being emptied and refilled, and benching commences this week. The Skinner irrigation system is used for the outdoor stock, and accounts, in some measure, for the splendid condition of the plants.

The Convention Garden.

The writer paid a visit to the convention garden in the Back Bay fens July 1 and was agreeably surprised to find what splendid headway had been made there. Nearly all the beds are now planted, and some have made considerable growth. It is a pity that some of the large growers of evergreens are not yet represented, and I hope they will send contributions before convention week. The garden is charmingly located and has had so much publicity already that thousands of people are talking about it and I believe those firms which have contributed will find it pays them handsomely in added business.

The aquatic displays of H. A. Dreer, Inc., and Wm. Tricker are going to be fine. A. N. Pierson, Inc., fills a number of beds; so does W. A. Manda, Farquhar & Co., Eastern Nurseries, Knight & Struck Co., A. T. Boddington and others. Conard & Jones Co. has several large canna beds, which are making excellent growth. The city of Boston is putting in some excellent subtropical and carpet beds. Farquhar & Co. are going to add some unique features before the opening.

Of the local florists, W. W. Edgar & Co. and F. E. Palmer have fine beds. S. J. Goddard, H. R. Comley, B. Hammond Tracy and others are also represented. Kenneth Finlayson and John F. Murphy, of the park department, are doing all the planting carefully. The garden is located within five minutes' walk of Horticultural hall.

Showing that interest in the convention garden is more than local, the writer had a letter last week from a well known Holland firm, which had read in The Review of the garden and offered to send a large shipment of choice tulips to plant. If various foreign and home firms planted beds of hyacinths, narcissi, early and late tulips, etc., it would attract tens of thousands of visitors next spring and go far towards further popularizing bulbs. If it is possible to continue the garden in this way, I hope it will be done.

Various Notes.

N. E. Boyle, of Malden, continues to get a good summer cut of Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and Hillingdon roses. He is busy rebuilding one house, 35x125, at present.

A. M. Davenport, of Watertown, has been busy the last few days sending out plants of his new begonia, Florence Davenport. Over 7,000 were delivered last week and orders still arrive.

W. C. Rust, superintendent of the Weld estate, Brookline, has just received word of the death of his father, Robert Rust, for the last fifteen years superintendent of Western cemetery, Arbroath, Scotland. The deceased gentleman was known over a large part of Scotland for his ability as a gardener.

guenay river, and had a delightful trip. Mr. and Mrs. William Penn left last week for a month's vacation, to be spent at Passaconaway Inn, Yorkcliffs, Me. Several of the clerical force also started on their vacations last week.

W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton, is sending in fine shipments of sweet peas, calendulas and bachelor's buttons at present.

B. A. McGinty, the popular salesman at the Boston Coöperative Market, was all smiles July 3. It was an 8-pound boy, and mother and baby are doing well.

H. A. Stevens, of Dedham, is much pleased with his new light pink carnation, Eleanor, which is a persistent bloomer, gives few splits and is in great demand.

F. J. Dolansky still is cutting some Cattleya Mossiæ, and in addition has a splendid lot of C. Gaskelliana.

William J. Patterson, of Wollaston, has the sympathy of many friends in the death of his 2-days-old baby boy, July 2.

Thomas Capers can produce as fine summer carnations as any grower in this section. His Beacon, White Enchantress and White Wonder are still in size equal to winter quality, as are the Beacon, Pink Delight and White Wonder of J. W. Foote, of Reading.

J. M. Cohen, of the Boston Coöperative Market, has rented a cottage on the shores of Lake Assawampsett, Lakeville, Mass., and will spend his vacation and week-ends there.

Three large Atlantic liners, the Amerika, Cymric and Carmania, left Boston July 1 and more flowers were delivered to the passengers than on any previous sailing day in Boston's history. The addition of a number of big liners to this port, which lies 250 miles nearer Liverpool than New York does, should help the florists' business considerably at the dull season, and it behooves local retailers to cater to it in every legitimate way.

E. J. Shaylor, of Auburndale, one of our noted peony specialists, says he has a number of new seedlings which should be fine in 1915, and he proposes to write the Gardeners' and Florists' Club to hold a field day with him next June to see them. W. N. Craig.

...THE...

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

THE little 3-line ad in The Review sold us over 9,000 2-inch Rex begonias, making $350 for about $6 worth of advertising.—Hartford City (Ind.) Floral Co.

WE have disposed of nearly 100,000 carnation plants this spring. Please discontinue the ad in The Review. The plants were fine, but we think much of the success in moving so many of them was due to your valuable paper.—The Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa.

NEWS OF THE SEED TRADE

THERE are said to be some good pieces of sweet peas in California, but we don't know whose they are. To hear the growers tell it, things are pretty bad.

W. W. BARNARD, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, left July 3 for Salt Lake City, from which point he will start on an extensive automobile trip through the different pea fields of Idaho and Utah.

IT has been a great year for beans. Not only has the demand cleaned up the short supply after a fashion not known in years, but growers have taken hold in good shape for the 1914 crop. Planting has been going on steadily all through June.

ABOUT July 15 the Empire Seed Co. will open for business at 144 Clinton street, Schenectady, N. Y. Wholesale and retail seeds and poultry supplies will be carried. Harry N. Stevens and C. D. Filkins will be connected with the seed department, and Harry J. Fuller, secretary of the Schenectady Poultry Fanciers' Association, will be general salesman of the poultry department.

SEED TRADE CUSTOMS UPHELD.

An Unusually Broad Decision.

Although the validity of the seed trade's disclaimer previously has been upheld by the courts in Wisconsin, probably no more interesting case ever has been decided than that of Ross vs. Northrup, King & Co., recently passed upon by the Wisconsin Supreme court. While in its main feature it is a straight disclaimer case, embodying a broad recognition of the binding force of the trade custom, it also includes a number of special features never before passed upon by a court of last resort. The opinion of the court is of such wide general interest in the trade that it is given here in full:

Summary of Points Covered.

1. Principal and Agent; Creation of Agency.—Where a seed company issued advertisements containing a blank coupon to be used in ordering its catalogue, in which there was a blank space for the insertion of the name of the local dealer of the prospective customer, that did not render the customer's local dealer the agent of the seed company.

2. Principal and Agent; Undisclosed Principal.—Where plaintiff had a local dealer purchase seeds for him from defendant, plaintiff's rights against defendant, because of the unfitness of the seeds for the purpose ordered, must be measured by those of the dealer, plaintiff at most being only an undisclosed principal.

3. Sales; Warranties; Implied Warranty.—Where a certain variety of seed is ordered and the seller furnishes seed in response to the order, there is an implied warranty that it is true to description, unless the seller advises the purchaser that the sale is made without warranty.

4. Sales; Warranties.—By express declaration, a seller may relieve itself of the implied warranty that the article sold fits the description of the goods ordered.

5. Sales; Warranties; Relief from Express Warranty.—Where the catalogue of a seed company contained a printed disclaimer of any warranty, and the shipping tag also declared the same fact as did the invoice of the shipment, which recited that, if the purchaser would not accept the goods on those terms, they might be returned, and the money refunded, a purchaser of seed is bound by the disclaimers, and cannot recover on an implied warranty that the seed furnished should be of the kind ordered, for the law requires men, in their dealings with each other, to exercise proper vigilance and apply their attention to those matters that may be supposed to be within the reach of their observation.

6. Sales; Duty of Purchaser.—Where a purchaser is put upon inquiry as to the quality of the thing offered for sale, he is bound to know what is discoverable in regard thereto by the exercise of ordinary care.

7. Contracts; Obligation of Contracts; Relief.—A man cannot relieve himself from the obligation of a written agreement by showing that he did not read it when he signed it, or did not know what it contained.

8. Carriers; Bill of Lading; Delivery; Presumptions.—The delivery and acceptance of a bill of lading and invoice raises a presumption that the party receiving it assented to its terms.

9. Customs and Usages; Construction; General Custom.—Ignorance of a general custom will not relieve a party from the effect of it, and hence, where there was a general custom among seedsmen not to warrant their seeds, a purchaser is bound by the custom, although he was not familiar with it.

10. Principal and Agent; Duty of Agent.—Where a local dealer was the agent both for plaintiff, the purchaser of seed, and defendant, the seller of seed, the local dealer is bound to communicate to plaintiff the knowledge with which he is chargeable, and, where he was chargeable with knowledge that there was no warranty, plaintiff cannot recover for a breach of the implied warranty that the seed was of the kind ordered.

11. Customs and Usages; Warranties; General Custom.—Where there is a gen-

A PAT ON THE BACK

The other morning on opening our mail, right off the reel the first letter opened read: "The first case of Cold Storage Giganteum I had shipped is about to bloom, and I can say they are the best box of Lily Bulbs ever received and no loss." This was from a well known grower up in Rhode Island, and it pleased us to receive the testimonial. In these times of every one for himself we rarely give credit where credit is due—still double blame when one is at fault. We go about our life unconcerned—many of the opinion that the world owes them a living—credit our own efforts for the success in carrying out our achievements—and even forgetting to give thanks to Him—giver of all good things—for shielding us from all harm and evils of the day. The Anglo-Saxon race—cold and distant—is unlike the Latin race. One need but note the greetings of the two—the Latin embrace, and when commending for a good deed, the friendly pat on the back is there—not for show—but for the deep appreciative feeling. The success this grower has with Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs is in the grasp of all. Our claim that Horseshoe Brand Bulbs are the best to be had is no idle talk, but facts prove this by actual experience. Why take the chance when you can get the best? Buy Horseshoe Brand Bulbs, which will give you the results, and you'll pat yourself on the back for doing so, even though you may not wish to admit to us and give us our deserved credit. A catalogue with prices on request.

eral custom that seed is not warranted, it is unnecessary for the seller to notify the purchaser that he does not warrant the article by placing disclaimers on the packages and invoices.

Text of the Court's Opinion.

Appeal from Circuit Court, Vernon County; action by Samuel C. Ross against Northrup, King & Co.

The defendant is a wholesale dealer in garden and field seeds. It advertised its seeds quite extensively; such advertisements suggesting to prospective purchasers of seeds that they send for defendant's catalogue, and also advise it of the name of the prospective purchaser's local dealer. The plaintiff is a farmer, who, in the spring of 1911, was intending to plant about twenty acres of tobacco. He saw one of defendant's catalogues in which was advertised "Comstock Spanish Tobacco Seed." He desired to raise the variety of tobacco produced from this seed, and called on three local dealers in Viroqua in the spring of 1911 to purchase the same. None of these dealers had any of this seed in stock, so he called on a fourth dealer, one Morton, who also advised him that he did not have any of this seed on hand. The plaintiff then stated that he would himself order the seed from the defendant. Morton then informed him that he was handling some seeds of the defendant, and would send and get the tobacco seed for him, and it was finally arranged between them that Morton should order one pound of this variety of tobacco seed. The order was dated March 27. When the order was received, the defendant did not have any of this particular variety of seed on hand, and sent to Virginia for it. This order apparently was promptly filled, except that the tobacco seed which was sent in response thereto was not Comstock Spanish tobacco seed. It was not possible to tell from an examination of the seed itself that it was not of the variety ordered. The defendant shipped this seed to Morton April 8, 1911, who thereafter notified the plaintiff of its arrival. The seed was taken by the plaintiff and planted by him, and proved to be an inferior variety of tobacco, or one which was not adapted to the soil in which it was planted. The defendant did not know of the circumstances under which the seed was ordered, and so sold the same to Morton in the ordinary course of business. Plaintiff brought action against the defendant to recover damages for breach of warranty. Other facts essential to an understanding of the issues in the case will be found in the opinion.

The jury returned the following special verdict:

"Question 1: Was the sale of the package of tobacco seed in question sold by the defendants to the plaintiff? Answer: Yes.

"Question 2: Was there at the time of said sale a general custom in the northwest, including Wisconsin, among seedsmen such as the defendants, to refuse to warrant seeds? Answer: Yes.

"Question 3: If you answer question 2 'Yes,' then did the plaintiff have knowledge of the same at the time he purchased said seed? Answer: No.

"Question 4: Was there a disclaimer printed upon the bag in which the seed was delivered to the plaintiff? Answer: No.

"Question 5: Was the seed in question 'Comstock Spanish' tobacco seed? Answer: No.

"Question 6: Did the plaintiff at or before the time of purchase of the seed in question have knowledge or information of the disclaimer printed in the defendant's catalogue or upon any of its literature or packages? Answer: No.

"Question 7: If you answer question 5 'Yes,' then what would have been the reasonable and probable value of plaintiff's 1911 crop, had the seed in question been Comstock Spanish tobacco seed? Answer: $2,000.

"Question 8: What was the reasonable value of plaintiff's 1911 crop as raised? Answer: $985."

Judgment was entered on this verdict in favor of the plaintiff, and defendant appeals therefrom.

Barnes, J. (after stating the facts as above): The appellant argues at length that the relation of buyer and seller existed between the defendant and the storekeeper Morton, and also between the plaintiff and Morton, and that there was no privity of contract between the plaintiff and the defendant, and, there being no contract relation between them, there was no contract to breach, and of course no right of action for a breach.

The respondent contends (1) that Morton acted as the agent of both parties to the transaction, and (2), if this be not so that he acted as the agent of the plaintiff, and that plaintiff as an undisclosed principal has the same right of action against the defendant that Morton would have had, had he himself planted the seed.

(1) The facts relied on by the plaintiff to show that Morton acted as the agent of the defendant in the transaction are wholly inadequate to show that the relation of principal and agent existed between those parties. The defendant advertised its seeds in the Wisconsin Agriculturist and other papers. Such advertisements requested prospective purchasers to send for its catalogue. A blank coupon to be used in ordering the catalogue was included in the advertisement. In the coupon there was a blank space in which was to be inserted the "local dealer's name," and in the advertisement proper this sentence was used: "Use the coupon or write us a postal, giving the name of your dealer, and sign at the bottom of the card with your own name." The language used advised the prospective purchaser that defendant sold its seeds to retail dealers, from whom they might be purchased by those desiring to plant them. We think it is too plain to warrant discussion that this advertisement did not make every retail dealer in seeds in the United States the agent of the defendant. Inasmuch as the plaintiff must contend in order to recover that the storekeeper acted as his agent, it is not very material for the purposes of the case whether or not it be said that he also acted as the agent of the defendant, because we think the same result would follow in either case.

In disposing of the case we will assume that the evidence was sufficient to warrant a court or jury in finding that the relation of buyer and seller did not exist between the plaintiff and Morton, and that Morton acted as the agent of the plaintiff, an undisclosed principal, in ordering the goods. This is the most favorable view for the plaintiff that the evidence will warrant.

(2) It is apparent that the material question in the case is whether the tobacco seed was sold to Morton with or without a warranty that it was true to description. Defendant knew nothing of the plaintiff in the transaction. Plaintiff's rights against the defendant are no greater than Morton's would be if he had been the real instead of the ostensible principal. This is frankly conceded by respondent in the brief filed, and advisedly so.

(3-5) Leaving any question of custom out of consideration, where a certain variety of seed is called for, and seed is furnished in response to such call, there is a warranty that it is true to description, unless the seller advises the purchaser that the sale is made without warranty. Hoffman v. Dixon, 105 Wis. 315, 81 N. W. 491, 76 Am. St. Rep. 916. There is no doubt that the vendor may sell without warranty. Leonard Seed Co. v. Crary Packing Co., 147 Wis. 166, 132 N. W. 902, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 79, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1077. Were the goods so sold to Morton? He had the defendant's catalogue before him when he placed the order and ordered from it. He so testifies. The defendant knew that he ordered from the catalogue, because one of the two items called for was ordered by the catalogue number. Between the cover and the first page of

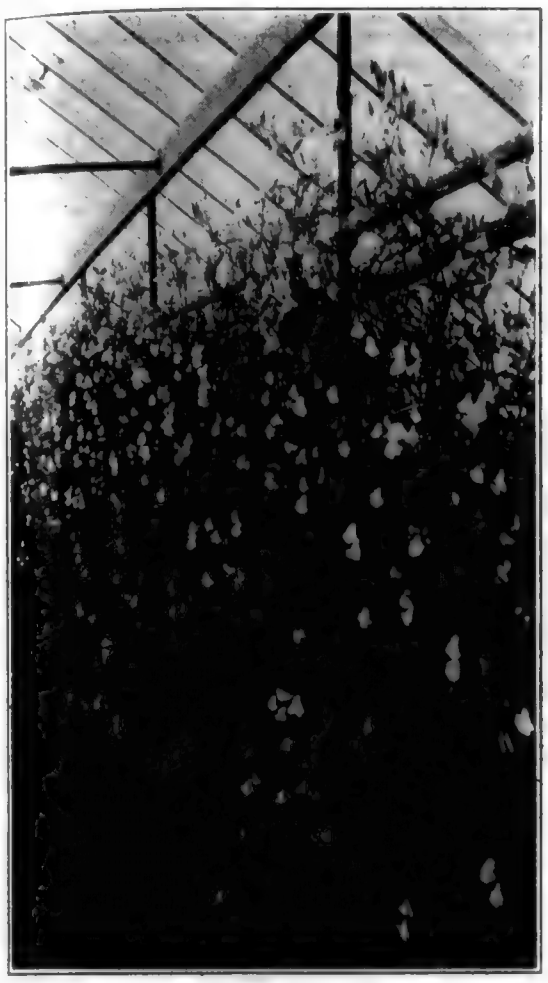
ROSE QUEEN

If you are a grower of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas, you naturally look for the very best strain procurable. The Indianapolis Sweet Pea called "ROSE QUEEN" is without question the finest Sweet Pea introduced for many a year. Orchid-flowering, borne on long stems, extremely free and early and of a pink color most attractive, it is a decided acquisition, and like all meritorious novelties is sure to be in demand wherever grown.

The following letters from men in the trade, well known everywhere, speak for themselves:

Gentlemen:— Indianapolis, Ind., April 14, 1914.
We have handled the pink sweet pea, "Rose Queen," in large quantities for several years, and can heartily recommend it to any grower or retailer as a good keeper and fine seller. It is easily the best sweet pea shown in this market. Respectfully, A. WIEGAND'S SONS CO.

Gentlemen:— Indianapolis, Ind., March 14, 1914.
We take pleasure in conscientiously recommending Mr. A. Pittet's new sweet pea, "Rose Queen." It is the new Orchid type, and has these advantages: They bloom earlier than any other Orchid type on the market are a wonderful producer, and have a clear pink color unsurpassed. We think the price of the seed is a small item. Very truly yours,
BERTERMANN BROS. CO.



Dear Sir:— Richmond, Ind., April 20, 1914.
We are glad to write you a line concerning your beautiful pink Sweet Pea. To our mind it is the most beautiful variety of its color, being large in size, long-stemmed, the tint bright and exceedingly clear and, best of all, the variety is a wonderful keeper. We do not believe there is another sort that will keep, when cut, as finely as this variety. It has been a great favorite in our stores. Yours very truly, THE E. G. HILL CO.

Price: 1 oz., $12.00; 3 oz., $33.00; 8 oz., $80.00; 1 lb., $150.00

BODDINGTON'S "QUALITY" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING

Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

The Sensational Australian Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea, Yarrawa

We have been fortunate to secure a small quantity of this wonderful new Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea from the raiser, Arthur Yates, of Sidney, and now offer it for the first time in America. It is far superior to the prevailing Spencer types—the flowers being exceptionally large and well fluted and waved; in color it is almost a duplicate of Countess Spencer, a delightful light soft rose, which lights up beautifully at night. We offer this original stock till sold at $1.00 per trade packet; three trade packets for $2.75.

the catalogue there was a blank order sheet for customers to detach and use in ordering seeds. Immediately above the blank spaces in which the order was to be written was a printed statement to the effect that defendant gave "no warranty, express or implied, as to description, quality, productiveness, or any other matter of any seeds * * they send out, and will not be in any way responsible for the crop."

On the first page of the catalogue proper there was printed in large type the words: "General Suggestions to Customers." There were a dozen such suggestions made; the first word or words in each instance, indicating the nature of the suggestion, being printed in large, heavy type. One of these headings consisted of the word "Disclaimer" so printed, and immediately following it was a statement substantially like the one quoted above.

The two packages ordered from the defendant were wrapped in one bundle, and shipped by express. One side of the shipping tag contained the name and address of the consignee. On the reverse side there was printed in red ink and in conspicuous type the following words, which were underscored as indicated by italics: "Northrup, King & Co. do not give, and their agents are forbidden to give, any warranty, express or implied, as to description, quality, productiveness, or any other matter of any seeds, bulbs or plants they send out, and will not be in any way responsible for the crop. If the purchaser does not accept the goods on these terms, they are at once to be returned, and money paid for same will be promptly refunded."

The goods were shipped April 8, and were followed by an invoice two days later. There was printed near the head of the invoice a statement like that contained in the catalogue, to the effect that the goods were sold without warranty. In reference to this invoice, the respondent claims that it was not received until after the seed had actually been delivered to the plaintiff. There is some testimony given by Morton to the effect that the invoice was not received until the day after the seed was delivered, and some testimony which would indicate that the seed had not been delivered when the invoice came. We accept the statement that there had been an actual delivery before receipt of the invoice. But what of it? It is not claimed that any m had been made of the seed in the mea time. The relation of principal an agent existed between the plaintiff an

PRINCESS

20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 seeds, 25c; 1000, 50c; ¼ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $10.00.

34—Bronze—Brown and copper shades mixed.
36—Fancy—Rich colors, mostly margined.
38—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
44—Black—Almost coal black.
46—Black with bronze center.
48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.
50—Bronze—Beautiful bronze.
52—Bronze with yellow center.
54—Velvet Brown with yellow center.
56—Havana Brown.
58—Havana Brown with yellow center.
60—Cardinal—Curled, bright red, dark blotch.

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

24—KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance; a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.

30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large dark blotches.

NEW SEED NOW READY.

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz., $1.25 per ¼-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25 cents; any 5 pkts., $1.00. Please order by number.

62—Cecily—Steel blue, margined white.
64—Goliath—Large curled yellow blotched.
66—Hero—Curled, deep blue shaded white.

Morton. The latter could communicate with the former by telephone; at least he testified that he telephoned plaintiff when the seed arrived. The invoice was retained without objection; so was the seed, and the seed was thereafter paid for in the usual course of business. Morton testified that he did not read or pay any attention to any of these nonwarranty provisions. If Morton had observed the conditions printed on the invoice, it would certainly have been his duty to inform his principal of them.

The defendant having the right to sell without warranty, it seems clear that it did all that could in reason be required of it to advise the purchaser of the condition upon which the seed was sold. Of course it is easy to imagine other things which it might have done which would be better calculated to give notice; but, if those things had been done, and had proved inefficacious, still other things might be suggested which would surely acquaint Morton with the conditions of sale. The business was transacted by mail. Where the book from which the order was given, the shipping tag, and the invoice, all stated these conditions, it would seem to be unreasonable to hold that any blame attached to the defendant, if Morton failed to observe all of these things. The evidence is quite convincing to show that there was a disclaimer of warranty printed on the bag containing the tobacco seed also; but there was a sufficient conflict in the evidence on this point to make the question one for the jury, and it found that there was none.

Mr. Morton could not close his eyes to the information that was literally staring him in the face, and then hold the defendant liable because he did so. In matters of contract one must observe what he has reasonable means of knowing. The law for the protection of persons even against fraud will not be extended to those who, "having the means in their own hands, neglect to protect themselves. * * * The law requires men, in their dealings with each other, to exercise proper vigilance, and apply their attention to those particulars which may be supposed to be within reach of their observation and judgment, and not close their eyes to the means of information which are accessible to them." Mamlock v. Fairbanks, 46 Wis. 415, 417, 418, 1 N. W. 167, 169, 32 Am. Rep. 716; Bostwick v. Insurance Co., 116 Wis. 392, 400, 89 N. W. 538, 92 N. W. 246, 67 L. R. A. 705.

(6) And where a purchaser is put upon inquiry as to the quality of the thing offered for sale, he is bound to know what is discoverable in regard thereto by the exercise of ordinary care, and he cannot "close his eyes to defects which are before him, or to information which is at hand." Warner v. Benjamin, 89 Wis. 290, 62 N. W. 179.

(7) In the absence of fraud, "a man cannot relieve himself from the obligation of a written agreement by saying he did not read it when he signed it, or did not know what it contained." Deering v. (8) The presumption arises from the delivery and acceptance of a bill of lading that the party receiving it assented to its terms. Ignorance of its contents "arising from failure to read it, or to make some reasonable effort to obtain information in that regard, in the absence of any evidence of fraud, * * * or of the use of any means to deter the shipper from fully understanding the contract, is not sufficient to overcome it." There are numerous authorities.

(9) There is still another insurmountable difficulty in the way of plaintiff's recovery. The jury found that at the time of the sale there was "a general custom in the northwest,

SIM'S GOLD MEDAL MIXTURE

Was awarded the First Prize and Gold Medal at the International Horticultural Exhibition, held at the Grand Central Palace, New York City, April, 1913. This splendid mixture is the result of years of painstaking selecting on the part of Mr. William Sim (renowned for Sweet Peas), Cliftondale, Mass., and we are offering seed from the originator for the first time.
Trade pkt., 75c; 3 pkts. for $2.00; ⅛ oz., $3.50.

Boddington's Quality "English" Pansy

A superb strain of highly-colored flowers in great variety and immense size.

Our Mr. Bunyard, while visiting the Royal International Exhibition in London, was much impressed with these blooms, and strongly recommends this mixture to florists.
Trade pkt. (500 seeds), $1.00; ½ trade pkt. (250 seeds), 50c; ¼ oz., $2.25; ½ oz., $4.25; oz., $8.00.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Since the school exercises were finished trade has dropped off considerably, funeral work being the principal outlet for flowers. A few weddings and small social affairs have occurred, but the summer dullness may be said to have started in good earnest and vacation talk is frequent. Roses, both outdoor and greenhouse grown, keep up well in quality, but there is a falling off in carnations. Good pinks are scarce and thrips is getting its work in on the red varieties. The demand for valley has dropped off more than fifty per cent, though it is still wanted for corsage bouquets and some is used in the better class of funeral work. Orchids are not much in demand, nor is the supply large. Boston ferns and small coleus are fairly good sellers and there is a considerable demand for hanging baskets, preferably those with a few bright bits of color in them. Greens are plentiful, especially Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri.

Club Outing.

A "big, brilliant success" best describes the picnic of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society, held at the Howard & Smith nursery June 28. It was impossible to get the exact number, but probably considerably over 400 sat down to lunch in the big lath house. The setting was fine for the purpose, great kentias and other palms being used, or rather the tables were spread in the middle of the forest of kentias grown in the lath house. They were also liberally embellished with flowers and the good cheer that Fred Howard so well knows how to provide. It was a brilliant spectacle when Jacob Dieterich, as master of ceremonies, ascended his throne and sounded the gong for order preparatory to the speech of the day by Herbert Goudge. Mr. Goudge has the gift of oratory finely developed and his speech was listened to with the attention such a one merits. Various other speakers, including the presidents of the two societies, Pasadena and Los Angeles, filled in between the excellent musical numbers by Miss Elsa Grosser, Miss Viola Dieterich, Chas. Winsel and others.

Afterwards the tug of war took place on an elevation back of the lath house, but although we know which way the rope went, it is undecided who won. Los Angeles county is a big place, even when Pasadena is taken out of it, and there are many big men in it—physically. One thing is certain, everyone had a good time and there was not a dissentient note in the chorus of enjoyment. Among the prominent men in the trade who were present I noticed A. F. Borden, resplendent in a white suit, the three Bodger "boys," father and two sons; Chas. E. Morton, Fred Sperry, Fred Hills, Marc Germain, J. Reeves, H. W. Turner, Anton Soethout, W. Pegg, John Blake, J. Menasco, John Gordon, Walter Garbett, Wm. Grosser, Harry Bailey, J. M. Teague, J. Aggeler and many others, most of them with their wives and families. Practically every private gardener for miles around was there and all agreed that it was the most successful picnic that has ever been held in this section. Hats off to the Howard boys, to Mrs. F. Howard and to the Los Angeles Horticultural Society!

I sold over 35,000 chrysanthemum plants this season on my 1-inch ad in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. Of course that paid me well and I am very pleased. You will hear from me again as soon as I can work up stock.—Frank Wilhelm, R. F. D. No. 6, Los Angeles, Cal., June 13, '14.

Various Notes.

C. A. Brunger, of Monrovia, is working up stock of an elegant purple sweet pea that he has been growing here for cut flowers for some time. It grows from four to six feet high and produces, from the ground up, long-stemmed flowers, five or six on a stem. The leading retailers think highly of it and he has named it Monrovia.

L. W. Coulter, of the D. M. Ferry Co., Detroit, has been calling on the trade here.

The Redondo Floral Co. reports the biggest week for a long time. At the Normal school graduation exercises there were 300 bouquets, besides large quantities of red sweet peas used for decoration. The same day there were 100 bouquets of pink roses for the Hollywood high school, as well as the daily funeral work, which made all hands fairly busy.

Chas. Morton underwent an operation on his nose; the object was to clear a closed passage and prevent mouth breathing, this being necessary in the treatment of his throat. The operation took place July 2 and was entirely successful. Mr. Morton was allowed to go to his home the same night.

The H. N. Gage Co. is showing elegant agapanthus, there being a good demand for this flower here.

Walter Birch, of the Harris Seed Co., San Diego, was a visitor last week.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Fourth of July week has never been one of great activity. Everybody makes it a point to get into the country, especially with the Fourth falling on Saturday. Fortunately, however, the early part of the week was reasonably active; there were several decorations and the demand for funeral pieces was more than normal.

There is an excellent supply of stock of all kinds available. Both indoor and outdoor-grown roses are at the acme of perfection. Long-stemmed American Beauties are selling at a reasonable price. Bridesmaid and Killarney Queen were both fine sellers last week. The outdoor rose of particular merit here about the bay is Ulrich Brunner. It compares favorably with American Beauty; in fact, it is a better seller, as far as color is concerned, and with the long stems that Ulrich Brunner has at this writing, they have been the popular commodity of the week.

Carnations, too, are fine. More gladioli are seen than any other flower. They are bulky and attractive and make a good store filler during this period of flower profusion. Dahlias might also be put under the same heading. While Minnie Burgle is the predominating variety, we have some wonderful cactus dahlias; they, being new this season, sell quite well.

Sweet peas still form the groundwork for all funeral pieces and Bermuda lilies also work in well. They are now in excellent supply and as cheap as at any time in the year. Little variety is offered by the abundance of snapdragons, African daisies and sweet sultans. These come under the head of cheaper flowers.

Various Notes.

The members of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society anticipate an interesting discourse on plant pathology by Prof. Ralph E. Smith, of the University of California, at the meeting July 11. These lectures before the Horticultural Society have proved quite popular and instructive and are looked forward to by its members.

Daniel Raymond, of the Garden City Pottery Co., reports that business has never been better with his firm. He has received some of the largest orders for pots that probably were ever given in the United States. Among his orders were those for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Frank Pelicano has been exhibiting some of his new creations of dahlias in the windows of the store of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. Among other fine varieties were Wodan, Geisha and Exposition de Lyon.

Podesta & Baldocchi have been showing some of the finest potted hydrangeas that we have seen in many days.

The Market.

There is little variation in weather or business conditions, as compared with last week. The weather is hot, for this city, reaching the high point of 91 degrees. There is considerable call for wedding work in small and medium orders. Funeral work is holding up well. Carnations are showing the effects of the hot weather by a decided decline in quality. Roses, also, are smaller and poorer. The Killarneys and Richmond are generally unsatisfactory unless sold at once, as the stock opens quickly, even if placed in the cooler. Brides, Maids, Kaiserins and Cochets give better satisfaction.

Various Notes.

The Spokane Florist Co. has been showing good Japanese iris and coreopsis in the window of their newly arranged store. The remodeling is about completed and the painters are beginning the work of interior decoration. When completed, this will be one of the handsomest and best appointed stores in the city.

Max Lehman, of the Hoyt Bros Co., has been showing ladies' hats trimmed with real flowers in his windows. The effects have been pleasing and have occasioned much favorable comment.

Mr. Austin, of the Spokane Greenhouses, Inc., reports the summer planting to be progressing finely at the houses in Marshall. They are carrying over their roses a second year, replacing part of the soil with new compost.

Some of the local florists have caught the Calgary oil fever and, judging from reports received, are well pleased with their investments. Well, something has to be done to pay expenses during the summer, and one might as well bet on oil as on baseball. L. B. H.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The market presents the usual July aspects. There is a limited quantity of what we would call choice stock. While the demand is normal, there always is a chance to move choice stock. Carnations are holding out well, especially Gorgeous, which has proved the most wonderful flower for keeping qualities as well as a good producer. Other varieties are showing the ravages of the season. Roses are still plentiful, but of a depreciated quality. Cecile Brunner is plentiful and sells well, but the sun bleaches the outside stock almost beyond usefulness. Sweet peas are showing a slight improvement in quality, but the market is flooded with stock of varied quality. Auratum lilies are to be had in limited quantity. Easter lilies are plentiful and move well as funeral flowers.

Various Notes.

Louis Goodfriend, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, is calling on the trade this week.

Congratulations are in order for James Forbes, the occasion being the arrival of a 10-pound boy. The broad Scotch smile depicts his sentiments in the matter. Wallace Garside also is to be congratulated, this case being a bouncing girl.

J. De Groot, representing Driehuizen Bros., bulb growers, called on the trade

SPECIMENS FOR IDENTIFICATION.

[The Review is asked time after time to identify some fragment of a plant, frequently a dried-up leaf, without information as to the plant's character or habit of growth; a crushed truss of geranium, or a withered carnation flower. It is asking the impossible. Specimens for identification should be large enough to show wood, foliage and flower, if possible; packed to remain fresh several days, and should be accompanied by information that will narrow the field of conjecture.]

C. M. W., Tenn.—The variety is Lonicera brachypoda Halleana, commonly known as Hall's honeysuckle. It is a useful variety for covering walls, trellises, etc., and also is well adapted for a ground cover; hardy and reliable. There is a good sale in the trade for this variety.

T. B., Mo.—It is a justicia, but the condition of the specimen was so bad that it is impossible to be certain of the variety. It probably is Justicia carnea, the flowers of which are pink in color.

S. G., Colo.—Your geraniums under number it was quite impossible to identify in the dried-up state of the flowers. If you wish to send other specimens, please send a fair sized branch of the plant, so that we can see foliage and stems as well as flowers. Pack the samples in damp moss in a wood or tin box, so that they will remain fresh for several days.

H. & S., Va.—The leaves are from begonias, but it is impossible to identify the varieties with accuracy, since there are so many begonias closely resembling each other in foliage.

A. W. R.—The rose blooms were too far gone to be recognizable. Specimens for identification should be large enough to show character and so packed as to remain fresh several days.

Plymouth, Ind.—F. A. Forbes, proprietor of Forbes' Seed Store, reports a good business this season. He says his store has handled an unusual number of vegetable plants and that at times it was almost impossible to meet the demand. Sprayers and spray liquids, also, have shown an increasing demand.

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

The transient rate for space is $1 per inch per insertion. Those who have stock to offer all or a considerable part of the year around should write for contract rates.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

IRVIN INGELS has received the material for a greenhouse, which will shortly be erected at his nursery, at La Fayette, Ill.

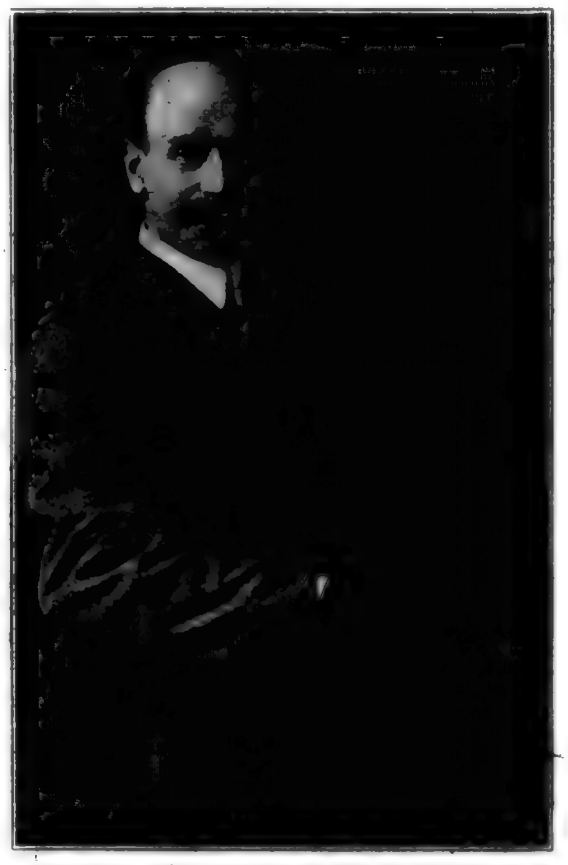
THE older members of the trade may recall W. H. Tincher, who over ten years ago conducted a nursery at Decatur, Ill., and whose death is recorded in the obituary column this week.

ANOTHER greenhouse, 300 feet in length, has just been completed by the Sherman Nursery Co., at Charles City, Ia. The company has now three of this size and several smaller ones.

THE Shelta Cavern property, one of the show places of the state, near Huntsville, Ala., has been purchased by Milton Moss, of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, for a consideration of $6,000.

THE Sierra Ranch Nursery, near Delano, Cal., has been taken over by Joseph Richardson, George A. H. Farmer and A. G. Storie. They expect to have 50,000 trees to put on the market next year.

THE nurseries at Fremont, Neb., hitherto conducted under the name of G. L. Welch & Co., have been incorporated under the title of the Plumfield Nurseries. The capital has been fixed at $50,000 and the incorporators are G. L. Welch, M. E. Roesch, M. H. Welch, E. S. Welch and L. A. Moffitt. Mr. Roesch, who but recently went to Fremont, will be the manager of the concern.



LATE in July a committee of the Texas Nurserymen's Association will meet with committees from a number of other organizations in the state to consider the establishment of an arboretum and botanical garden in some city of the state, the choice of which is to be governed by the climatic conditions and facilities of the location. Specimens of all the plants, trees and shrubs of the state are to be gathered together in one collection, which will be a complete guide to the plant-life of the region.

PACIFIC COAST PRESIDENT.

John Vallance, the newly elected president of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, has been in the nursery business ever since he came to this country, at the age of 21, twenty-eight years ago, from Edinburgh, Scotland, where he was born. For a number of years he acted as manager of the nursery department of C. C. Morse & Co., at San Francisco, Cal., until he bought this branch of the firm's business a short time ago. He is the proprietor of the Vallance Nursery, 81 Glen avenue, Oakland, Cal., of which his brother, James Vallance, is manager. The nurseries are at Hayward and San Jose.

You may discontinue our advertisement, as we are through with our spring shipments, but we will give you another order for fall, as THE RESULTS from the one for spring HAVE BEEN VERY SATISFACTORY.—Franklin Davis Nursery Co., Baltimore, Md., May 19, 1914.

For the executive committee for the coming year Mr. Vallance has appointed F. H. Wilson, of Dinuba, Cal.; John Gill, of West Berkeley, Cal., and D. W. Coolidge, of Pasadena, Cal.

John Vallance.
(President Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen.)

NURSERYMEN'S PROTECTIVE.

The American Nurserymen's Protective Association held its annual meeting at the time of the convention of the American Association of Nurserymen at Cleveland and elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—Irving Rouse, Rochester, N. Y.

Vice-president — H. Simpson, Vincennes, Ind.

Secretary—Thos. B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., reëlected.

Treasurer—Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb., reëlected.

Executive committee—Irving Rouse, Rochester, N. Y.; John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; H. B. Chase, Chase, Ala.; John H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; D. S. Lake, Shenandoah, Ia.; F. H. Stannard, Ottawa, Kan.; J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.

ALLOWANCE FOR PACKING.

Are you getting your preservative allowance on carload shipments of trees, etc., to and from the Pacific coast and points in the northwest? These allowances are for packing materials, such as straw, shingle tow, shavings, etc. It seems that some of the nurseries throughout the country are not taking advantage of these allowances. From Portland and most points in Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Washington to all eastern points there is an allowance of 2,000 pounds of preservative for packing around the trees in the body of the car. To and from a number of other points in the northwest territory there is no mention made of the amount of preservative allowed. In such cases, if there is 5,000 pounds of preservative used, this amount should be deducted from the total weight of the car. Of course the minimum weight of the car in every case must be preserved. Although this amount is not great on one shipment, on a number of cars it soon amounts to a considerable saving. For instance: On a shipment moving from Portland, Ore., to Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha and any other points throughout the Mississippi valley, where the rate is $1.25 per hundred, the saving would be $25 per car. On ten carloads you could save about the freight on one car. To get this allowance the bill of lading must carry the notation of the amount and the kind of preservative that is used in the car. Unless this is shown you will be unable to get the railroad to reduce the amount of the freight.

On shipments moving from points in the middle west, such as Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City or Topeka, there is an allowance of 500 pounds for dunnage loaded in the body of the car as a protection to the freight. This does not amount to as much as on the shipments moving to and from the Pacific coast, but, nevertheless, it is these little savings that count.

To and from practically all points there is either an allowance for dunnage or preservative and it is to the interest of the nurseryman to look into these matters carefully, as the railroads will not of their own accord give the shipper the advantage of these allowances.

Just as a passing mention. A great many of the nurseries from which we have been receiving shipments this year are failing to specify upon the bill of lading that the trees are dormant. In case this is left off the railroads will invariably charge the higher rate and to get a refund it necessitates a claim. C. E. Buehner.

INSPECTION REPORT FOR MAY.

Scales and scale insects on palms and bay trees from Belgium were the most numerous in the findings of the inspectors of imported nursery stock for the month of May. Forty shipments of bay trees were found infested with Coccus hesperidum, the soft brown scale, according to News-letter No. 10, issued by C. C. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board. Crown gall was found on several shipments of fruit stock from England, France and Germany, and eggs of the European tussock moth on a few importations.

The Market.

The weather has been somewhat cooler, but business has been slack. Garden flowers, such as sweet william, coreopsis, Spanish iris, Canterbury bells, cornflowers, Shasta daisies, yellow marguerites and candytuft, are in fair demand, for flower buyers tire of the winter flowers during the summer. Pond lilies also are selling. Asters are arriving. Roses are getting smaller each week. Mrs. Aaron Ward is excellent for this time of the year, while Mrs. Russell is an ideal summer rose.

Various Notes.

Edward Walthers has gone to Fort Erie beach for the summer.

Schwerdt & Berner, of Forks, N. Y., are putting up two Lord & Burnham iron frame houses, each 22x100, this summer.

Miss Edna Sauer has returned from a two weeks' vacation.

S. A. Anderson had a most attractive display recently, a lily pond in one corner of the window, surrounded by cork logs, etc. Here and there were clumps of Lilium candidum and blue larkspur. Suspended from the ceiling was a huge cornucopia filled with the lilies and the larkspur. Last week the principal feature of the window was an Epworth League emblem done in red and white flowers, in honor of the convention in session here.

Harold Taylor visited Williamsville last week.

Edward Stephen is enjoying his vacation at Fort Erie beach.

The Lenox Flower Shop had a pleasing basket arrangement in the window last week. It was made up entirely of sweet williams.

Charles Hochreiter spent the week end at Lotus bay beach.

Miss Martha B. Wiese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob B. Wiese, was married to William Schwarz June 29, at the home of the bride's parents on Humboldt parkway. The house was elaborately decorated.

J. Benson Stafford reports that business has been good with him during June. Robert Booker is taking his vacation during early July. E. C. A.

Dallas, Tex.—Water from the automatic sprinklers, the valve of which was opened by a small fire of waste paper, caused a heavy damage in the building of the Texas Seed & Floral Co. June 28. Before the night watchman could find where to turn off the flow, the water had spoiled a large quantity of supplies.

READING, PA.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Reading Florists' Association was held in the Moore building with all members present. A chrysanthemum show was decided on, to be held in Rajah Temple November 11 to 13. J. Stanley Giles was elected secretary of the show, and Fulmer Lauch treasurer. A large number of valuable prizes have been donated by business houses and silver cups and medals of beautiful design will be offered by the association. Herman Stabenow and Wm. Guldin were elected to membership and several applications were received.

Various Notes.

Business has assumed its usual summer dullness and the florists report little doing. Flowers are plentiful, carnations holding up in good shape. Gladioli and snapdragons are in good supply. H. J. Huesman is cutting a large crop of ismene, rather a rare flower in this section. Gladioli at the John Giles place are an important factor in the cut flower market. Mum planting is nearly completed.

A family picnic of the association will be held at Heller's farm July 24 and the entertainment committee promises some novel features. Among the events will be a quoit match between Fred Frank and Paul Blackman.

AUSTIN, TEX.

Continuous dry weather has followed the wet spring. Roses are among the plants that have suffered severely, but they are now coming out with new vigor.

In the effort to popularize the flower habit, some of our growers are offering Shasta daisies free to those who will go to the gardens and gather them.

The matter of how to place our greenhouses in this climate of ninety-five per cent sunshine and ninety per cent wind, has not been settled, nor does it seem as if it soon will be settled. The Austin Floral Co. built its first houses ranging from south to north, but the last houses run east and west. Alff's and Friedrich's houses run south to north, while the Seiders' carnation houses are east and west. Whether it is best to build greenhouses running north and south or east and west is a problem. We only know that eastern and middle state advice is no good here.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

We have experienced a slight decrease in trade in the last week. The weather was cold at times, but it has become warmer and more seasonable. Weddings kept up well in June and a few are booked for the early days of July. A large quantity of outdoor stock continues to pour into the market, some of it finding good sales. Indoor stock continues to arrive in fine shape and clears well. The prices are low on most kinds, but the great quantity sold makes returns fairly good. Easter lilies are quite plentiful, but do not move fast. The supply of roses is good. American Beauties do not receive much of a call. Sweet peas are plentiful in all shades. Valley is not overplentiful. Cattleyas are of good color and are disposed of quite well. There is an ample supply of greens and it meets all requirements.

Various Notes.

The window display of the Rochester Floral Co. last week was a good one. It was arranged so as to form a large cross. The whole thing was worked out in sweet peas and ferns.

Arthur Eddie, of the Lord & Burnham Co., spent the Fourth with his parents in New York city.

Horace J. Head, local correspondent for The Review, underwent a serious operation at the General hospital Thursday morning, July 2. He has never fully recovered from an operation for appendicitis which he had eighteen months ago. At the time of writing he is improving. E. J.

Trenton, N. J.—Carlman Ribsam reports an exceedingly good season, both in plants and shrubbery. He is extending the nursery.

HYDRANGEA OTAKSA

Extra large specimens for July and August flowering

We have some of the largest, finest and most perfect specimens of hydrangeas in half-barrels that we have ever seen. Plants are just coming into bloom, and are beautiful, symmetrical specimens covered with blooms, each plant having from one hundred to two hundred flowers. We have over three hundred of these fine plants in shape for immediate shipment, and every plant is a perfect specimen. There is nothing so magnificent for summer decoration as these large hydrangeas. They are very showy.

$7.50, $10.00 and $15.00 each—according to size and number of blooms.

WINTER-FLOWERING ROSES

If you have not secured all the stock that you can use for planting for winter-flowering, we still have a very fine stock of the following varieties, which we can offer in perfect condition, ready for immediate shipment. Stock is gilt-edged in every way—extra strong, heavy plants from 4-inch pots. If you can use any, we will be glad to quote low rates. Write us the number you can use and we will quote by return mail.

KILLARNEY Brilliant, Killarney Queen, Pink Killarney, American Beauty, Lady Hillingdon, Richmond, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Mme. Cecile Brunner, or Mignon, or Sweetheart.

FERNS

There is nothing better for summer use than the fine varieties of NEPHROLEPIS. We offer a nice stock of the following varieties, well established plants ready for immediate shipment:

Nephrolepis elegantissima (The Tarrytown Fern), 3½-inch, 25c each; 6-inch, 50c each; 8-inch, $1.00 each.

Nephrolepis magnifica, 3½-inch, 25c each.

Nephrolepis muscosa, 3½-inch, 25c each; 5-inch, $1.00 each.

Nephrolepis Harrisii, 6-inch, 50c each; 12-inch, very large plants, $5.00 each.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis, 6-inch, 50c each; 12-inch, very large plants, $5.00 each.

Pteris Wimsetti multiceps—a fine hardy fern—3½-inch, 15c each.

Small Ferns for Fern Pans. A fine assortment, 2¼-inch, $4.00 per 100.

NEW CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Here are three you ought to know.

ALICE SALOMON—Pure white, larger than Chadwick, easy to grow, ready to cut Oct. 10 to 25. 2½-inch, $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100.

GOLDEN SALOMON—A sport of Alice Salomon, the same in every respect except its color, which is as its name implies—a golden yellow. 2½-inch, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

CHIEFTAIN—A pink, described by E. G. Hill Co. as a Pink Bonnaffon, ready to cut about 10 days earlier than Enguehard. 2½-inch, $1.00 doz.; $6.00 per 100.

We believe the above mums are valuable addition to the list of commercial varieties, and recommend them as such.

CYCLAMEN.

A florist visiting our place the other day said that when he had read ads and saw Humphrey was asking $20.00 hundred for cyclamen, and he had often bought 4-in. cyclamen in July and August for less, he wondered how it was. After seeing the stock he was convinced that our stock was worth every penny asked, and placed a nice order.

We have BRIGHT XMAS RED, WHITE, RED EYE, ROSE.

We can also furnish seed of the above colors, August and September delivery, 50c hundred.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture.

First volume just off the press. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:

KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.

This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.

This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.

THE GLOSSARY.

This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.

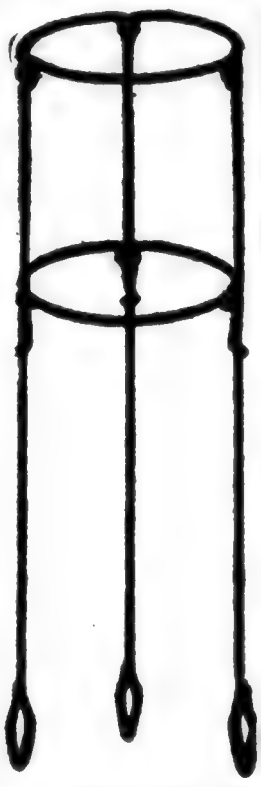
TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.

In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

CLASS ARTICLES.



Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling.

GENERAL INDEX.

The final volume will contain a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind. With the Index, Key, Synopsis and alphabetical arrangement of the Cyclopedia, any reasonable question asked by the consultant will receive a ready answer.

This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

PLANTLIFE

PLANTLIFE has several advantages over liquid insecticides on the market. Containing refined tobacco dust it can be used to mix with the soil, acting as an excellent fertilizer, at the same time destroying worms and insects in the ground before they have a chance to reach the plant.

PLANTLIFE has been found very effective in ridding greenhouses of insects by dusting on plants. When dry, use for dusting about once a week.

Put up in bulk for greenhouse men; in packages for retail trade.

Bag of 100 lbs., $3.50.

SWING CHECK VALVES.

Will a swing check valve work satisfactorily on the return end of a steam pipe? At present I have valves on both ends, but wish to avoid running from one end of the house to the other when turning off steam from certain pipes. W. D. O.

If the coils are four to six feet above the check valve, there should be no trouble about using it with low pressure steam. F. R.

THE COAL MARKET.

If keen students of the nation's markets have formed the right estimate of the condition of the coal business and of business in general, the whole situation is full of warning for any florists who are in the habit of deferring the purchase of a large proportion of their coal till fall. If the coal men are correct, the warning looms up big and black, like a vast storm cloud.

Business, it is said, is showing unquestionable signs of improvement, but the rate of improvement is extremely slow, on account of the obstacles and discouragements still to be encountered. Some time must pass, therefore, before good headway can be attained in the upward trend of trade, and before much progress can be made in disposing of belated and accumulated business, such, for instance, as the transportation of coal. For a certain amount of business, such as the marketing of coal and other useful commodities, must be transacted sooner or later, in order to supply the necessities of life. It may be transacted in steady, reasonable volume throughout the season or in unmanageably large volume after a long period of inactivity. Hence it seems likely that immense quantities of coal must be moved in the coming fall, with inadequate facilities for its movement, and many would-be purchasers of coal will be in danger of disappointment. They will lose much peace of mind and probably some money.

At any rate, that is the situation as described by a reporter for one of the leading coal journals. He says: "The impression is gaining ground that we are going to have an active, if not indeed an intense, fall business. In Chicago the amount of coal moving to the ultimate consumer has not been much more than twenty-five or thirty per cent of normal. The western territory is not doing any better than fifty per cent of normal. This means that the domestic coal will have to be moved in the period when business ordinarily is heavy anyway. The railroads are going to have an enormous crop to move. However, they have been curtailing expenditure and have disintegrated their organizations. They will work this fall with men not trained to speed up the movement of goods. Also the railroads have not purchased any new cars or engines. Rather they have permitted equipment to deteriorate. This means that a record coal tonnage will have to be moved during both low railroad efficiency and a depleted car supply. This is going to mean a slow movement of coal at a time when the demand for it is clamorous."

The same reporter, in speaking especially of the market at Chicago, says: "The smokeless market is much stronger this week. Up to now, a great many small concerns decided to speculate on the absorptive capacity of the Chicago market. When they could not sell this coal at circular price they began cutting; $1 per ton was a common figure to accept. In a number of cases they accepted considerably less than $1. These small concerns have cleaned up the coal they had on track and have not begun to bring any more in. Only a couple of companies have any free coal for sale at cut prices. Standard shippers are finding it easier to dispose of their coal at the circular price. However, they are not moving any increased volume. July 1 the circular price on smokeless lump and egg advanced to $2 per ton. The demand has been just fair, but the supply has been below normal. For that reason the new circular price is being maintained."

IN ALABAMA.

Please give us information as to the best way of piping our house so as to heat it satisfactorily in this Alabama climate. We wish to grow seedlings of peppers, eggplants and tomatoes. The house is 9x25 feet, seven feet to the eaves and ten feet to the ridge, with four feet of glass in the sides and both ends glass. The rafters are four feet ten inches. We have a vertical boiler, a Wilks No. 14, with a 10-inch grate and a height of thirty-six inches. We also have a lot of 1-inch pipe that we wish to use. Where should the expansion tank be placed?

T. B. W.

While a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees should be provided for the starting of tomatoes, peppers and eggplants, the amount of artificial heat actually required in Alabama probably will not be great. For the flow pipe, a 2-inch pipe should be used and this should be carried overhead, about two feet under the ridge, with a slight fall toward the farther end of the house. The expansion tank should hold about ten gallons and should be connected with the highest part of the flow pipe. It will answer if placed just above the pipe, but it is always desirable to have the expansion tank somewhat elevated if possible. If the 1-inch pipe is to be used for the returns, ten or twelve should be placed in two coils under the benches, or on the walls. It would be even better to use six 2-inch pipes for the returns. These should be connected with the flow at the farther end of the house and should be given a slight fall.

Kroeschell Replaces 4 Cast Iron Boilers

Previous to 1909, Mr. Schultz, of Menominee, Mich., heated his entire plant with cast iron boilers. It had been claimed that cast iron boilers are superior to the Kroeschell. Mr. Schultz is now heating 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the Kroeschell which was installed in 1909, and they are required to fire same only twice a night. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We do not have the least trouble to maintain about 60 degrees in the coldest weather. Your Kroeschell Boiler is the best I ever had. Before I heard about your boiler I had four cast iron boilers, and I would not part with the Kroeschell for a hundred cast iron boilers now." (Signed) CHARLES SCHULTZ.
July 21, 1913, Menominee, Mich.

Kroeschell Replaces 2 Cast Iron Boilers

The Marysville Floral Co., of Marysville, O., installed a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler in 1905. Previous to this time they used cast iron boilers. The following letter speaks for itself:

"Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! We had two cast iron boilers, but yours proved by far the best. Your boiler has already outlasted the two cast iron boilers by five years, and all the expense that we have been put to was a smoke dome."
(Signed) MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.
July 21, 1913, Marysville, O.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron Boilers

The range of C. Peterson & Son, at Escanaba, Mich., was formerly heated by cast iron boilers. Last season this firm installed their first Kroeschell, a No. 6, which is now heating 13,000 to 14,000 sq. ft. of glass. They state that they fire these boilers three to four times during the night in zero weather. Under date of June 28, 1913, they write as follows:

"The Kroeschell Boiler has given better satisfaction than any other boiler we have ever had. For years we have fired many different boilers, and really never could get one that we might say was entirely satisfactory—there was always something wrong—but now since we have tried the Kroeschell, we have solved our boiler proposition. We have a (—— ——) cast iron sectional boiler here, only used two years, and we wish we could get rid of it and put in another Kroeschell in its place."
Escanaba, Mich., June 28, 1913. (Signed) C. PETERSON & SON.

on the size of a new chimney, to contain a suitable flue for two boilers of the same size as our present one, which is return tubular with a grate 36x42 inches and a smoke hole 10x24 inches. The old stack is twenty-four feet high and has poor draft. What size and height will be needed for the new smokestack? B. D. O

The height of the stack will depend to some extent upon the surroundings, as it should be higher by five to ten feet than the neighboring buildings. Within certain limits, an increase in the height will permit a reduction in the diameter of the stack. For a return tubular boiler the stack should be at least thirty feet high, and thirty-five or forty feet would be better. A diameter of eighteen inches would be sufficient if the flue is thirty-five feet high. F. R.

TRADE CUSTOM UPHELD.

including Wisconsin, among seedsmen such as the defendants, to refuse to warrant seeds." The jury also found that the plaintiff did not know of such custom. The jury made no such finding in reference to Morton. There is no evidence to show whether he knew of such custom or not. He did testify that he had no notice from any source that the defendant would not sell its seeds with a warranty. This might all be true, and still the general custom such as the jury found might not only exist, but Morton might have knowledge of it. It is probable that, had he been asked the direct question, he would have denied all knowledge of the custom, and we will assume that on the evidence referred to the court might have found lack of knowledge, and that it actually did so find.

It is not the law that ignorance of a general trade custom relieves a party from the effect of it. If there was a general custom among seedsmen such as was found, Morton, as a retail dealer in seeds, was bound to know of it.

"The object of proving a general custom is not to contradict or change a contract made between the parties, but to interpret it to the court and jury as it was understood by the parties at the time it was made; and this evidence of a general custom, when it does not contradict or change the express terms of the written contract, is admitted for the purpose of showing what the real contract between the parties was. * * * And, when it is clearly proven, the parties are supposed to have contracted with reference to such custom, unless such custom changes the express terms of the written contract." Hewitt v. John Week Lumber Co., 77 Wis. 548, 556, 46 N. W. 822, 825, and cases cited.

"A uniform trade custom is readily accepted by courts to define what is ambiguous or is left indeterminate in a contract, where both parties have knowledge of the custom, or are so situated that such knowledge may be presumed, for the reason that the majority of such transactions are had in view of the custom, and the agreement on which the minds of the parties actually met will thereby be carried into effect. * * * Where the custom is proved to be known to both, it may even add terms to the contract. * * * Where the custom is general, it will be presumed to have entered into the contract, and one may be bound thereby, although ignorant, unless the other party be shown to have knowledge of his ignorance.'' Gehl v. Milwaukee Produce Co., 105 Wis. 573, 580, 81 N. W. 666, 668.

Replying to the argument of counsel in another case, that a custom in order to be binding must be known to both parties to the contract, or it must have existed a sufficient length of time to raise a presumption of knowledge, the court said: ''That rule, of course, prevails in case of an attempt to annex to a contract some incident not expressed therein, as in the case of Hewitt v. John Week Lumber Co., 77 Wis. 548 (46 N. W. 822), where the question was whether the owner of a sawmill, under his contract to saw logs by the thousand, was entitled to the slabs. There is a difference between evidence of usage to establish a custom for the purpose of annexing that as an incident to a contract and the same kind of proof to show the meaning of some word or term used in a contract. In the latter situation the meaning of the term as understood at the time and place of the contract governs, whether both of the parties knew of such meaning or not. They are presumed to contract with reference to the meaning of words and terms used by them, as such words and terms are understood at the place of their contract.'' Shores Lumber Co. v. Stitt et al., 102 Wis. 450, 455, 78 N. W. 562, 564.

The case at bar is in its facts very much like one recently decided by the Supreme Court of Iowa, from which we quote the following: ''The alleged liability of the Younkerman Seed Co. may be considered first. The evidence that a general custom, such as pleaded, prevails in the seed trade was conclusive. The particular package had the printed matter thereon, and, though this may not have been noticed, the sale is presumed to have been negotiated with reference to the general custom of the trade. * * * This being so, a warranty that the seed was true to name could not be inferred, and the court rightly found in favor of the Younkerman Seed Co.'' Blizzard Bros. v. Growers' Canning Co., 152 Iowa, 257, 259; 132 N. W. 66, 67. This case is cited with approval in Leonard Seed Co. v. Crary Canning Co., 147 Wis. 166, 132 N. W. 902, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 79, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1077, where the material facts in the Blizzard case are set forth.

Speaking of a general custom pertaining to the manner in which mines were operated, the Iowa court in another case said: ''Again, it is said there is no showing that defendant had notice or knowledge of the custom. This is not necessary. The custom or usage being shown by competent evidence, the defendant is presumed to have had knowledge thereof. This is fundamental.'' Thayer v. Smoky Hollow Coal Co., 121 Iowa, 121, 127, 96 N. W. 718, 719.

The rules of law applicable to a general custom should not be confounded with those applicable to a local custom. John O'Brien Lumber Co. v. Wilkinson, 123 Wis. 272, 101 N. W. 1050, and cases cited.

It is argued that the evidence was not sufficient to warrant the finding of a general custom. We think it was.

(10) The conclusions which follow from the foregoing discussion may be summarized as follows: (1) The de-

Do you know that we manufacture every type of boiler known from the smallest house heater to the largest 600 H. P. Water Tube Steam Boiler? It is our policy to advise the prospective customer without prejudice pertaining to any matters regarding the question of boilers.

The Kroeschell greenhouse boiler is a very high grade article, only the best material is used; the inside shell is 99.6 pure iron (rust resisting) and the tubes are 3/16 of an inch thick—no other boiler in the world equals this high standard.

fendant offered the tobacco seed in question for sale without a warranty, as it had the right to do, and adopted reasonable and adequate means of advising the purchaser Morton that the seed was so offered, and in so doing performed its full duty to the purchaser, there being no evidence of fraud or bad faith; (2) Morton was chargeable with knowledge of the condition upon which the sale was made; and (3) Morton was chargeable with knowledge of the general custom which the jury found to exist. Under these conditions Morton would have no right of action against the defendant, and therefore his undisclosed principal would have no such right. These conclusions would, we think, follow if Morton acted as the agent of both parties, because it would be his duty as agent of the plaintiff to communicate to him the knowledge with which he was chargeable.

(11) Considerable stress seems to be laid by respondent on the fact that prior to the purchase of the tobacco seed the defendant had sent to Morton a cabinet containing packages of garden seeds for sale on consignment, and that no disclaimer was printed on these packages. If there was a general custum such as the jury found, it was immaterial whether there was a disclaimer on the packages or not, unless the defendant knew that Morton was ignorant of such custom, and there is no claim that it had such knowledge. Besides, if defendant saw fit to sell its garden seeds with a warranty, that would be no particular reason why it should sell its field seeds in the same way. The damages recoverable for breach of warranty on the sale of small packages of garden seeds would ordinarily be inconsequential, while in the case of field seeds the reverse would be true. In the present case the pound of tobacco seed was sold to Morton for $2.25. The damages recovered were $1,015. It may seem unjust that the purchaser should suffer this loss. But it is apparent that, if seed houses warranted their seeds, they would have to sell at a very much higher price than if no warranty were given. If the defendant had sold 100 pounds of this seed instead of one pound, it would receive therefor $225, and on the basis

That's why the most progressive florists have installed the Morehead System—the system that means perfect drainage even temperature—condensation returned to the boiler above ground in addition to numerous other advantages. But you will want the complete information. Our engineers have enabled many a florist to increase his greenhouse efficiency where he thought it wasn't possible. Let them help you.

Internally Fired Scotch Marine Boilers With Water Backs

BUILT BY

MURRAY IRON WORKS CO.

BURLINGTON, IOWA

SCOTCH MARINE INTERNALLY-FIRED BOILERS

MADE IN SIZES EIGHT HORSE POWER AND LARGER

IN A POWER PLANT of the smaller size, the choice of the boiler is a very important matter as one of the largest items of expense is the cost of the fuel—and many concerns have failed simply because the profits of the business were lost in buying coal to be practically wasted in an extravagant boiler.

Scotch Marine Boilers are economical in first cost and are entirely self contained, requiring no expensive foundations or brick settings, and can be readily moved from place to place with very little trouble or expense. They require no heavy fire fronts, setting castings or wall binders.

These boilers occupy very small space and are very suitable for use in places where floor space is limited, and on account of the limited head room required, are very suitable for use in cellars and basements.

In Scotch Marine Boilers all the fire is in the furnace inside the boiler, and the heat travels the length of this furnace and then back through the tubes, thus traveling twice the entire length of the boiler before going to the stack, and as at all times the fire is entirely surrounded by water all the useful heat is absorbed and converted into steam.

In this type of boiler no brick work is required and there is no wasteful radiation of heat through the settings and no expensive brick walls to keep in repair.

The selection of the boiler is always a perplexing problem, but all engineers have agreed that the Scotch Marine Water Back is the only correct type, and the reason is very apparent as the boiler embodies the following good features:

Highest Possible Economy. Long Life. Freedom From Repairs.
Accessibility for Cleaning. Reasonable First Cost.

In addition to the above good qualities these boilers require no brick work, being self contained; no foundation, except a good floor. These are the best boilers for small power plants.

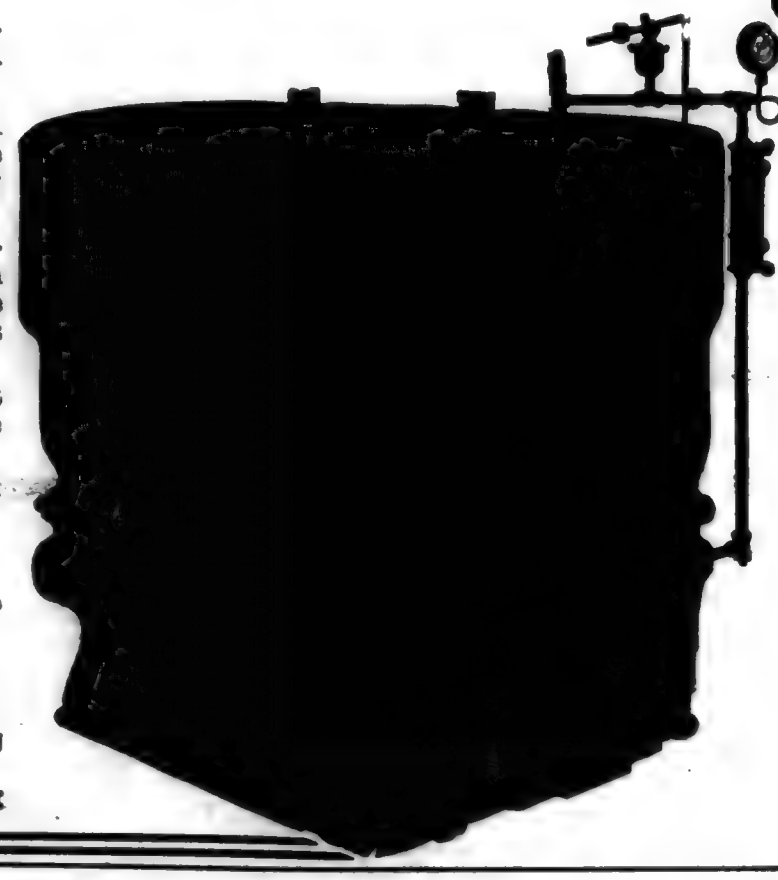
"RICHARDSON"
Greenhouse Boilers
FOR HOT WATER AND STEAM
Round—Side Feed—End Feed—60 Sizes and Styles



¶We have been building boilers for many years—nothing new or experimental about the "Richardson."

¶The "Richardson" is built as well as we know how to build it, in the light of our three-quarters of a century of experience.

¶The "Richardson" places the maximum amount of heating surface in direct contact with the fire—long fire travel, narrow waterways. It gets all the heat—it saves coal.

¶The "Richardson" is not a "cheap" boiler, but it is sold at low prices in spite of the fact that we purchase nothing but the highest grade iron, coke and other material.

¶Our catalogue gives much valuable data on greenhouse heating. Sent on request.

of plaintiff's recovery would be liable for over $100,000 damages. It purchased the seed in Virginia, and admittedly ordered the variety which the plaintiff desired. The evidence shows that there was no way in which the substitution could be discovered until the tobacco plants were pretty well grown. Large seed houses who draw their supply of seeds from different parts of this and perhaps other countries cannot well grow all the seeds which they handle. They are liable to be imposed on, and must either adopt the practice of selling without warranty or of selling with one, and imposing on the consumer an added price sufficient to make good the losses sustained by reason of the failure of the seed sold to comply with the warranty.

A number of other questions are discussed in the briefs which have been considered, but which need not be alluded to in the opinion, which is already lengthy enough.

Judgment reversed, and cause remanded, with directions to dismiss the complaint.

The Market.

Last week ended the June wedding season, which has been fairly good this year. Business at present is rather slow and seems to have settled down into the summer rut. Roses still show the effects of the heat, but the cooler weather during the first part of this week is expected to work a change for the better. There are some excellent outdoor roses to be had. Carnations were not a large factor in the week's market. Easter lilies are plentiful enough to take care of all calls. Inside sweet peas are deteriorating rapidly and their season is near a close. Outside sweet peas are ready

The Market.

The month of June has passed with no regrets. The temperature, averaging almost 90 degrees, with practically no rain, has left outdoor stock in a pitiful condition. Sweet peas were entirely done for by July 1 and nothing of any importance is being cut just now. A few gladioli are making their appearance. Carnations are done for. Roses and lilies are about all there is to be had in this market. Business has fallen off and funeral work consumes most of the stock used.

Various Notes.

Incorporation papers have been filed for the John A. Keller Co., which took over the business of the John A. Keller estate, the stock being equally distributed among John F. Keller, Mary Keller, Josephine Keller and Lena Keller. The firm will continue the growing of cut flowers and plants for both wholesale and retail. John F. Keller is president and general manager.

Ollie Honaker is doing nicely after an operation for appendicitis and will soon be able to return to his home.

Over 10,000 chrysanthemums have been benched at the range of the John A. Keller Co. Preparations are under way for carnation planting. A fine lot of roses and lilies are being cut.

Mr. and Mrs. David Honaker have gone into housekeeping on Park avenue.

Michler Bros. report a loss of 100 panes of glass as the result of a wind storm which passed over this city a week ago. Much outdoor stock was damaged.

Kelley & Current are through planting roses and chrysanthemums. Their place is in good shape. They report business quite good.

Miss Margaret McCrystal, of the firm of Keller Florist, has returned from her vacation.

Market conditions are pretty fair. The demand is not large, but is sufficient to take up most of the offerings. Most of the stock is of fair quality. Roses are a little more plentiful. The cut from the young stock has brought about the difference. Some fine Beauties can be had. Carnations are finding a ready sale. Easter lilies are plentiful and, in the present more or less tight market, prove good property. Both auratum and rubrum lilies are coming into the wholesale houses. More good gladioli might easily be used. Owing to the weather conditions that have prevailed, the gladiolus season seems to be about ten days later than usual. Shasta daisies continue plentiful. Other offerings include a few pond lilies, hardy hydrangeas, antirrhinum and feverfew. The green goods supply is fully adequate.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club's annual meeting will be held Monday, July 13, at the club rooms. The election of officers will be the special order of business.

C. E. Critchell reports that Myer Heller, when in the city recently, stated that he would have American Beauties for this market in another fortnight.

Mathis Weiland, of Evanston, Ill., who is one of the pioneer florists in and about Chicago, is in the city to visit his daughter, Mrs. P. J. Olinger. Mr. Weiland's conversation shows clearly his unbounded enthusiasm for his life's work.

E. G. Gillett is closing his place at 5 p. m. each day during the summer.

Joseph R. Goldman, of Middletown, O., sent some fine auratum and rubrum lilies and roses to the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange last week.

G. A. Beckman has closed his Hamilton store and moved to Middletown, where he will reopen later in the season.

E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and W. H. Klus, of B. H. Klus & Son, Anderson, Ind., were recent visitors.

C. H. H.

Little Silver, N. J.—Dean & Co. intend discarding Brides and Maids for more up-to-date varieties. It is surprising how a few growers are loath to discard these roses.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

We offer the genuine in original cwt. sacks, at

The Market.

Trade has been quiet for the last week or two. Since the bulk of the weddings are over, about the only thing is a little funeral work now and then, and a few flowers for the sick. Stock has been rather poor, so it is hard to fill any orders with satisfaction. Roses are fair, but they open fast and have to be moved quickly. Killarney, Maryland and White Killarney, with some Kaiserins, are about all that are coming in. Carnations are becoming small and are hard to move, as people think they ought to be what they were a few weeks ago. Sweet peas are about done in the houses and the outdoor stock is nearly burned up, so the pick is low at present. Valley has been good, but demand is light. Gladioli are making their appearance and are welcome for a change. There is little in the way of blooming plants at present, with quite a few calls.

Various Notes.

The outdoor carnations are looking good, as a rule, and some growers are preparing to plant, as most of them believe in early planting.

The Rose Show.

The recent rose show broke all previous records for attendance, interest and merit of exhibits. Imagine over 200 varieties of the queen of flowers skillfully staged. They made the spacious hall a bower of beauty and fragrance. Robert Pyle, vice-president of the American Rose Society, gave a beautifully illustrated address the first night of the show on "Famous Rose Gardens I Have Visited." For two successive years Mr. Pyle has delivered the annual address and acted as judge. Every village of any considerable size, except one, within thirty miles of Syracuse has members in this organization. Through the inspiration of this society hundreds of new rose gardens have sprung up, and many already in existence have been greatly enlarged and improved. As a direct result of the work of the year, Syracuse is to have a municipal rose garden, and Syracuse University is planning a rose garden, which will probably be located in front of the Carnegie University Library building.

LIVE WINDOWS FOR THE DULL SEASON

This is the time of year when the Retail Florist must work his brain overtime to find ways to get the attention of the perspiring public

NOW that the "good old summer time" has come again, the retail florist is likely to find plenty of time on his hands. The live ones have already discovered that there are other good uses, in addition to vacations and baseball, to which these extra hours may be devoted to advantage. Every little extra business that can be stirred up at this time is so much "velvet," and the florist can well afford to spend his spare moments in devising ways and means of separating the perspiring public from a few surplus dollars. At the same time he may develop a line of trade that will prove a source of large profit when the busy season comes again.

A Profitable Line.

A subject on which the retailer may well exercise his ingenuity at this time is the telegraph delivery of flowers, and there is no better way of bringing this matter to the attention of the public than window displays, which have the additional advantage of being as inexpensive a form of publicity as the florist can indulge in. At this season he does not care to make any large outlay from which the returns, no matter how sure, are not likely to come in at once and in large quantities. The appeal of the window display should, therefore, be a strong one; it can be done in his spare time, at exceedingly small cost and yet with large results, immediate as well as far-reaching.

The telegraph delivery of flowers is a field which, although being developed rapidly, still holds immeasurable possibilities. While the various phases of this particular business offer much room for development and improvement, the one most in need of florists' energy is the bringing of this feature of the trade to the attention of the public at large. Many people are well acquainted with the facilities for sending flowers by telegraph, but the majority are not, and here is an opportunity to make the number in the first class larger.

Showing Them How.

It is a well known fact that highly educated grown-ups, as well as children of the picture-book age, learn faster and more fully by means of illustrations—pictures, models, etc.—than they do from any quantity of words, no matter how accurately and interestingly put together. For this reason a person who has read signs and advertisements about sending flowers by telegraph but never fully understood what they were all about, immediately gains a clear idea of the matter from a window display such as that shown on this page.

This gives the whole system in a nutshell, so to speak: The stores at either end of the telegraph lines indicate how the order is taken and filled, the telegraph lines and instruments show the manner of its transmission, and the maps of the two hemispheres illustrate the field covered by this service. In window displays of this nature the group of florists' tags and labels from all parts of the country serves to bring home the point by connecting it with the town from which some spectator comes or to which he might have some reason to send flowers. If Smith, of Smithville, saw in the window the tag of Brown, the florist of Smithville, from whom he had been in the habit of ordering flowers for his girl, he might step into the store to find out how he could win her favor by sending her some from this distant place. People are every day sending gifts of various kinds for various occasions to friends in distant cities. They have formed the habit of sending those things which they know will carry most easily and safely by express or post. Let them know how easy, how simple it is to telegraph gifts of flowers to any point, and a tremendous volume will be added to the retailer's business.

What to Use.

In getting up a window to boost the telegraph delivery business in his town the florist will, of course, use flowers in varying quantities; at this season the number is likely to be small, but some should always be used, even though the emphasis of the display is placed elsewhere. Palms, ferns and hanging baskets add a cool as well as artistic touch in hot weather.

To present the idea of wire delivery, many means are at hand. Telegraph instruments and telegraph poles strung with wires are frequently used, as in the window shown on this page. These are better than flocks of doves or other symbolic forms of expressing the idea. The stores at each end of the wires may be shown with either interior or exterior view, depending upon how much effort the decorator can put upon the work. The clerk with the order book may be shown at one end and the designer filling the orders at the other. Detail always adds to the strength of the effect, so long as the scene is not so complicated that it takes too long for the passer-by to grasp the idea.

Spheres or maps of the world, with the florist's own location clearly marked, advertise him and, as noted above, serve to indicate the extent of the telegraph delivery service. Labels or tags are an important part; if only a few are available, they may be attached to boxes, which are tied and tagged as if for delivery and piled at one side of the window. A few signs may be added, but only one or two necessary ones; the fewer the better.

A Calgary Window That Aroused the Curiosity of Every Passer-by.

Flowers for Steamers.

Those florists who wish to call especial attention to the telegraph delivery of orders for ocean steamers have an opportunity for using other features. Some retailers have placed in their windows large colored pictures of newly launched liners; these by their news value draw more attention than they otherwise would. Models of ocean greyhounds never fail to keep a crowd before the window studying out the details of construction, and while they are there the spectators must naturally assimilate the idea of wire delivery if it is adequately presented in connection.

The display of telegrams in the window, as shown in the illustration on this page, is a feature that has been much used by Penn, of Boston. Henry Penn is an enthusiastic worker for the promotion of the telegraph business and his firm is doing its full share to advance this line in Boston. "Flowers telegraphed to all parts of the country at few hours' notice" is a slogan of this firm in all their forms of advertising. Mr. Penn believes the progress of this line of the trade depends on all the florists, in small towns as well as in the large cities, getting in line and developing the business in their vicinity. The greater the number of florists working for these orders and showing their ability to handle orders from other places the larger the business will grow.

In Calgary, Alberta.

The window decoration shown herewith was the work of A. M. Terrill, Ltd., at Calgary, Alberta, and during the three days that it was on view attracted much attention and also drew considerable business. In regard to this display, Gerald Gibson, vice-president and sales manager of the concern, said: "Crowds gathered at the window both afternoon and evening to study the construction and satisfy their own inquiring minds as to what two flower stores, two hemispheres, two real telegraph instruments, two telegraph poles and so many bright, shining telegraph wires really meant. Not satisfied with outward observation, many people came into the store and asked all manner of questions about the service, with the result that an order was secured then and there. Never before has a florist's window in Calgary attracted so much attention and aroused so much interest from the public. The number of out-of-town orders booked that week was surprising, as well as the business that is following, and we think that no florist could do better for himself and the florists' business in general than to spend the small amount of money required to make such a window."

MASONIC WORK AT WASHINGTON.

The funeral, at Washington, D. C., last week of Alexander Stewart, general superintendent of motive power for the Southern railway, who died in France, and whose body was brought to this country for burial, gave considerable additional business to the florists. In all seventy-three designs were furnished and of these Gude Bros. Co. filled fifty-five orders. In the Gude work were nine square and compass designs, five keystones, four Knights Templar designs, four Knights Kadosh designs, three Rose Croix designs, three double eagles and five Shrine emblems. The balance of the pieces were funeral designs of the standard styles. An interesting feature concerning this large order for Masonic emblems in flowers was that no two pieces were exactly alike, although the main designs were standard. Each one of the nine square and compass designs had a different background and was of a different shape; and this was the same in the case of all the other designs, although the whole work was done in something like six hours. To complete this order in the specified time, the firm brought in a number of men from the greenhouses and used all the regular men. With the exception of the Masonic emblems, a large part of the flowers were distributed among the different hospitals after the funeral services.

VARIOUS BULBOUS FLOWERS.

Kindly let me know how the following bulbs are grown and how they compare with Paper Whites as commercial cut flowers: Allium Neapolitanum, ixias and Ornithogalum Arabicum. How should cold storage valley be grown during July and August? Would it be unwise to force valley for the market during the above months?

W. M.

Allium Neapolitanum and Ornithogalum Arabicum can both be forced. They are better, however, in the open ground. The former is quite hardy; the latter needs more protection. Neither, however, is to be compared with the Paper White narcissus as a commercial flower.

Ixias succeed best in 6-inch and 7-inch pans in a cool greenhouse, 45 to 47 degrees at night. They are popular with critical customers in early spring, but their sale is somewhat limited. For a 6-inch pan, nine to ten bulbs suffice. Cover one inch, keep in the light all the time, and do not cover up with loam or ashes as with tulips or narcissi.

Cold storage valley in the hot summer months needs no bottom heat, of course. The house in which it is grown must be shaded and kept as cool as possible. Coldframes can be utilized if necessary. The demand for valley in July and August is comparatively light, and the flowers, unless they can be sold when perfectly fresh, are valueless, as they soon go to pieces in hot weather. After October 1 the demand improves. C. W.

FORCING LILIES AND NARCISSI.

Please inform me whether Easter lilies can be forced to bloom in winter in a carnation house which has a temperature of 48 to 50 degrees at night and 60 to 75 degrees in the daytime. When should the bulbs be potted to have lilies by Christmas, and when should I plant to have them for Easter? Is a 5-inch pot large enough for one bulb? I have some soil which has been taken from carnation benches, and in which fine carnations were grown last winter. Would this be rich enough to use in potting the bulbs? After potting these bulbs and those of narcissi, should the pots and flats be placed in a dark situation for a couple of weeks? As this is my first attempt to flower these bulbs under glass, I shall appreciate any advice you may give as to growing lilies and narcissi in winter. E. A. C.

A carnation temperature is too low for forcing Easter lilies. For Christmas flowering cold storage bulbs are necessary, although if you had a minimum temperature of 65 to 70 degrees Lilium Harrisii and some Formosas could be flowered. Given a moderately late Easter, you could flower Lilium longiflorum multiflorum or giganteum in a carnation temperature, although you would be more certain of their being on time if you had a minimum 10 degrees higher. Bulbs of L. giganteum, the popular Easter variety, usually arrive in October, and they should be potted at once in 5-inch and 6-inch pots. Keep the bulbs well down in the pots to allow for a good top-dressing. These lilies throw many roots from the top of their bulbs; therefore they should be well covered. Water after potting; then keep on the dry side until the pots are nicely filled with roots. It is not necessary to keep the lilies dark. Under a bench free from drip, on a cellar floor, or any place where they can have a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees, will suit them. Lilies should succeed in your carnation soil. They should not be given a rich soil, and the use of any fresh manure or chemicals should be avoided. Once in active growth, they can have liquid manure once a week.

Paper White narcissi would do well in your carnation house. You could have them follow along from Thanksgiving until March by keeping a certain portion cool and placing a few flats at a time in your carnation house. This narcissus does not need to be kept in the dark, but often is started in cellars, coldframes and sheds, or under the benches.

The other varieties of narcissi, which come mostly from Holland, such as double Von Sion, princeps, ornatus, Golden Spur, Emperor and Victoria, all of which are good commercial sorts, do better if kept in the dark after boxing, or, at least, the usual plan is to cover them with coal ashes or sand, sometimes loam, until the growths are two or three inches long. They prefer a low temperature, just clear of freezing. Hyacinths and tulips need somewhat similar treatment. You could grow and flower any of these successfully in your house. You will find notes on these and other plants in the cultural columns of The Review from time to time.

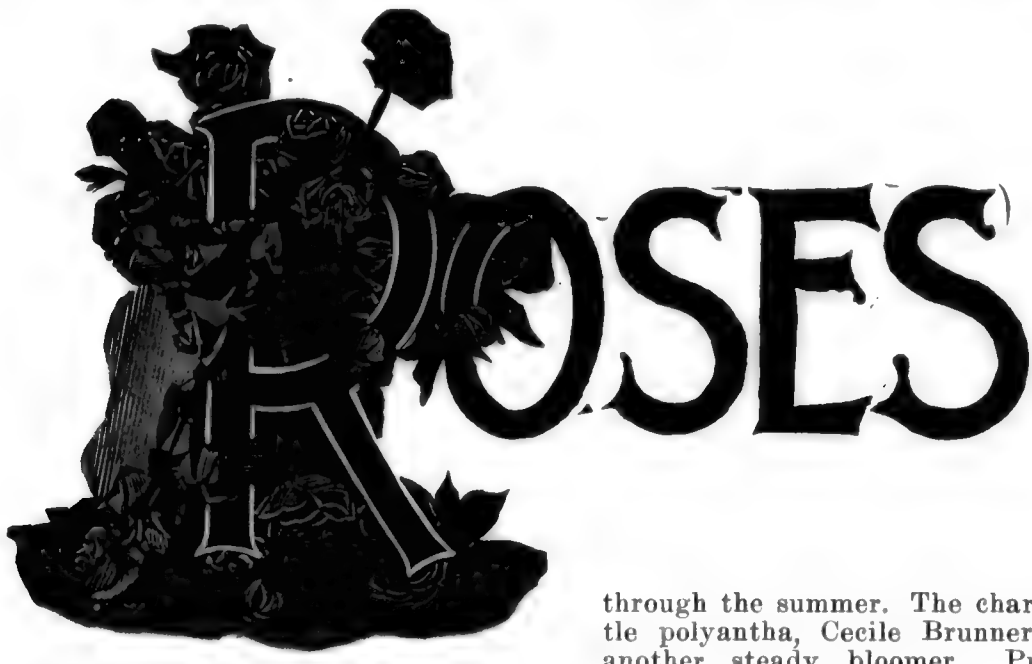
VARIETIES OF VINCA.



Are there two varieties of variegated vinca vines? I have some from Tennessee which are green and white. Will these turn yellow and white later? I have had these in large plants which were more yellow and white striped than green. A. H.

I have noticed considerable variations in the colorings of variegated vincas, but I am not aware that two variegated forms are catalogued by anyone.

PINK SPORT OF HILLINGDON.

We are sending you under separate cover a rose from a Hillingdon plant. Last year we found a plant of Hillingdon had a new branch, which came like this. We have one plant of this new variety and want to know if its color and form are such as to make it worth while caring for it. It seems quite double and grows freely, and every shoot blooms. C. B.

I received the rosebud, and the color is quite good. I have not heard of any other place where Hillingdon has sported pink, although a customer advises me that he has a white sport of it. Just how well pink Hillingdon will sell is somewhat problematic. We have a number of excellent pink varieties, such as the Killarney family, Shawyer, Radiance and Mock, but I would by all means propagate a batch of stock from this sport and give it a try-out under your own conditions and culture. It will be interesting in any case, and if the variety is worth anything you will be in a position to work up stock to supply the anticipated demand.

BABY RAMBLERS FOR EASTER.

Would it be possible to flower Baby Rambler roses lifted from the field this fall, for next Easter? If so, how?

W. M. R. & S.

Yes, they can be potted up at about the end of October, kept outdoors until freezing weather, then stored in a cold pit or cellar and started in a temperature of 50 degrees about January 20.

C. W.

PERPETUAL FLOWERING ROSES.

Please give me the name of a hardy or half hardy rose that blooms every four or five weeks. I recently had a rose bush which bloomed about every month and which we called the monthly rose. Is that the correct name of it? If you can let me know what variety of rose this is I shall appreciate it greatly, as it bloomed continuously without much care. L. S.

Such roses as Clothilde Soupert and Hermosa are constantly in flower from June until October. The so-called baby ramblers, such as Mme. Norbert Levavasseur, Catherine Zeimet, Mrs. Cutbush, Orleans and Baby Dorothy, can also be depended upon to flower all through the summer. The charming little polyantha, Cecile Brunner, is still another steady bloomer. Practically all of the hybrid teas, such as Caroline Testout, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Antoine Rivoire, the Killarneys, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and others, are also constant bloomers. C. W.

ROSES BECOMING SINGLE.

A customer of mine had some nice, large roses last year. This year they all have blossomed with single flowers. Please state what is the cause of such a change. E. S.

If the roses last year had double flowers, they should have had the same this year. No treatment will make double roses turn into single. It is possible your customer's plants have not been sufficiently nourished and that the flowers when opened wide had a semi-double appearance and lacked the size and fullness which should be theirs. Feed the plants well and they are sure to produce flowers of their true type. Occasionally, when certain stocks are allowed to grow at the expense of the roses, the latter are in time killed out. This holds true where any of the free blooming monthly roses may have been used for stocks. Usually the Manetti and seedling briar are used, and these are easily detected by their vigorous and thorny wood. C. W.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The terms of the officers in the American Rose Society date from July 1. At the last annual meeting Wallace R. Pierson was reëlected president, Robert Pyle vice-president, Harry O. May treasurer, Benj. Hammond secretary, and August F. Poehlmann, J. H. Dunlop, Frank R. Pierson, S. S. Pennock and Robert Simpson were reëlected members of the executive committee, the only change being that Louis J. Reuter, of Westerly, R. I., took the place of Eber Holmes, of Montrose, Mass.

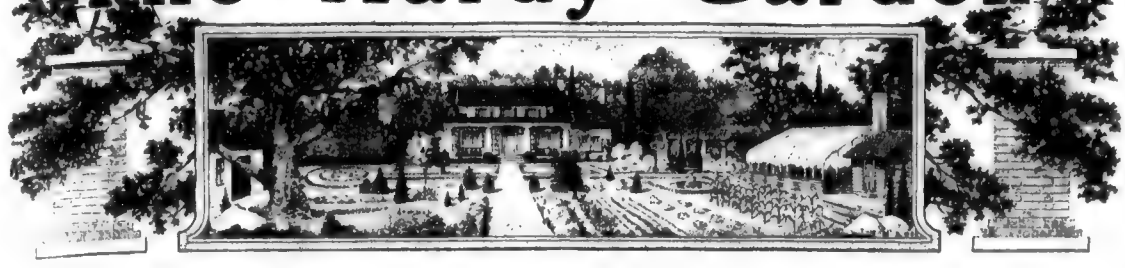
The society will have a meeting at the convention in Boston in August. The Hubbard medal will be presented to M. H. Walsh, of Woods Hole, Mass., for the rose Excelsa and John Cook will receive the silver medal for the rose Radiance at the Hartford gardens. The Hubbard medal is awarded every five years, Mrs. Gertrude M. Hubbard setting aside the sum of $250 as a permanent fund, the interest to provide a medal for the raiser of the best rose originated within the preceding five years. Benj. Hammond, Sec'y.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

VISITING THE FATHERLAND.

We have safely reached Berlin, the "Reichshauptstadt," after our long journey from Maywood, Ill. Our voyage on the Vaterland was a pleasant one. Promptly on time the great boat arrived at Cherbourg, at Southampton, and finally at Cuxhaven, from which port the passengers are forwarded by rail to Hamburg. In this city we remained two days, partly for the purpose of seeing Hagenbeck's zoo, but especially to visit the Gartenbau-Ausstellung, or flower show, which is open from May to October. If there were nothing else to be seen on this side of the big pond, this alone would be well worth a trip across, particularly on account of its beautiful outdoor rose gardens and other outdoor plantings. The cut flower show consists mostly of made-up work, including designs of every description, and decorations for such occasions as weddings, funerals, etc. Some of these were certainly most artistically gotten up. The carnations had what we would call up-to-date winter quality, which I believe is accounted for by the much cooler climatic conditions prevailing here. In fact, we have thus far felt quite comfortable with the aid of an overcoat, except for a few hours at noon and in the full sunshine.

The rose garden here, in Berlin, located in the Thiergarten, almost equals the one at the show in Hamburg, and any of our florist friends who visit Europe should not fail to see these, as well as the beautiful parks, forests and flower beds surrounding the imperial palace.



We have engaged a large, seven-passenger automobile for the next six weeks or more, to take my brother and family and ourselves on a tour through Germany, Switzerland and Italy, covering in all about 3,000 to 3,500 miles. After that we intend to take a boat to "the land of the midnight sun," making tours into Sweden and Norway.

I especially wish to thank you for the prompt delivery of The Review to our address here, in Berlin. In fact, it was the only item from home that awaited us on our arrival.

Albert F. Amling.

New Hartford, N. Y.—It is announced that Maurice Fuld, of the Knight & Struck Co., New York, will lecture in Butler hall, July 26, before the Central New York Horticultural Society.

The Hardy Garden

THE HARDY PERENNIAL GARDEN.

Digitalis, or Foxgloves.

The foxgloves, or digitalis, have been fine of late. They are good alike in beds, masses in the border, or on the borders of woodlands. They also look well in the woodlands when they can be seen to advantage. The gloxinia-flowered form, Digitalis purpurea gloxiniæflora, is the most striking one to grow and seed should be started now. D. lanata, with creamy or grayish flowers on dense spikes, is now at its best; so is D. ambigua, with yellow flowers marked with brown.

Campanulas, or Bellflowers.

Of the campanulas the most striking of late have been C. Medium, or Canterbury bells. The single forms are the best to grow; the doubles are too heavy. The calycanthema, or cup and saucer varieties, are beautiful and are good for pot culture, but will not stand up so well in the borders as the true singles. The peach-flowered campanula, C. persicifolia, in several colors, is now in season. Others now blooming are C. rotundifolia, or Scotch blue bell, a good rock plant; C. Trachelium, or Coventry bell; C. glomerata, or clustered bellflower; and C. Grossekii, dark blue. The little Carpathian bellflower, C. Carpatica, is just commencing to bloom and will persist until October. This is fine for an edging or as a rock plant.

Phloxes, Asters and Erigerons.

The perennial phloxes already are showing flowers; in fact, the suffruticosa varieties, of which Miss Lingard is the best, have been blooming since the middle of June. The real phlox display, however, will come later in the month and through August.

One or two of the dwarf asters have been good of late. The best are A. alpinus Himalaicus, deep blue; A. subcœruleus, bluish violet; A. speciosus, deep blue, and A. speciosus albus, pure white. These are good for the rock garden as well as for the border.

Erigeron grandiflorus elatior, with large, solitary, bluish lilac flowers, fine for cutting; E. speciosus, pale mauve, and E. bellidifolius, light blue, all are now in season.

Scabiosas, Veronicas and Violas.

Scabiosa Caucasica, with its large and beautiful lavender blue flowers, is one of the finest of perennials for cutting. It blooms from June until August. There also is a pure white variety now in bloom. Of the veronicas, incana, spicata, rupestris and amethystina are now in flower, to be followed shortly by that beautiful deep blue, V. longifolia subsessilis. In the way of rock plants or border plants, the forms of Viola cornuta are unbeatable. V. cornuta alba and V. cornuta purpurea, the latter deep blue, are the best. The last named is comparatively new, but is one of the most useful novelties in hardy plants ever introduced. Stokesia cyanea, with its beautiful cornflower-like flowers, will continue to bloom until frost.

Geums, Lychnis, Lupines, Etc.

Geum coccineum Mrs. Bradshaw, with rich semi-double scarlet flowers, is a persistent bloomer. This also is a fine novelty. Some of the pentstemons, such as barbatus Torreyi and Digitalis, are now at their best. Among the lychnis, L. Chalcedonica, or London Pride; Flos-cuculi, or cuckoo flower, and Viscaria, single, are the best. Lysimachia clethroides, with its recurved spikes of pure white flowers, is excellent for cutting. It spreads fast and needs replanting every second year. The forms of Lupinus polyphyllus are passing. L. polyphyllus roseus, also called Mœrheimi, of a beautiful pink shade, should be grown by everyone. It is easily raised from seed.

Irises, Hollyhocks and Others.

The Japanese iris, I. Kæmpferi, now makes a truly regal show. It is a good border plant if it can be kept watered until it has flowered, but to be seen at its best some means of flooding the beds should be employed. The hollyhocks in a few days will make a notable display. Personally, I prefer the single varieties and anyone who has grown a batch of them will want them again. By the way, this is a good time to sow hollyhocks to flower in 1915. Lilium candidum has just passed. The glorious new varieties, L. Sargentiæ and L. myriophyllum, are each, however, coming along and will soon make a glorious show. Of the hemerocallis family several representatives are still blooming, while the Shasta daisies, coreopsis, dianthus, Clematis recta and others continue to make the hardy garden attractive in early July.

The Review is printed within a few miles of the center of population of the United States, but it has more subscribers in New York and Pennsylvania than in any other two states. This combination of advantages offered to the trade accounts for such reports as this:

Ferns

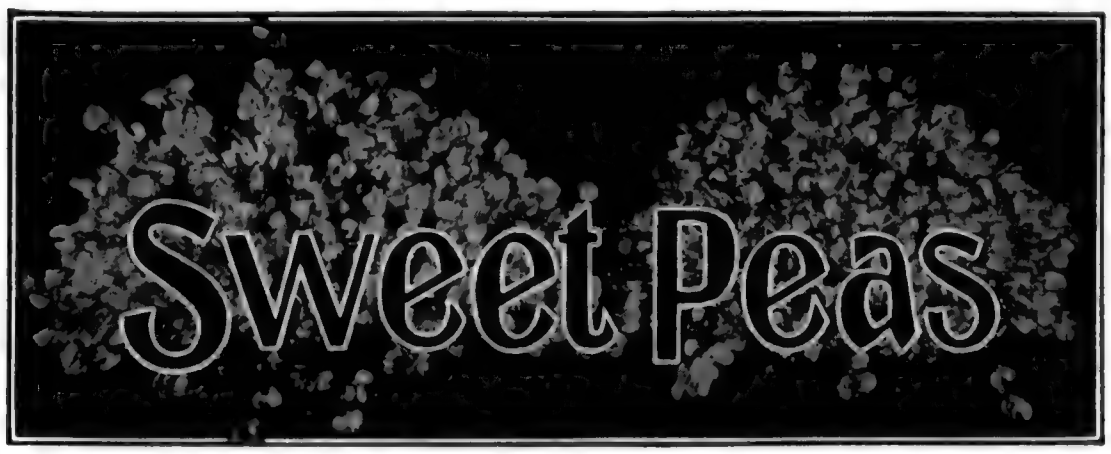
THRIPS ON FERNS.

I enclose a leaf from one of my holly ferns and several leaves of Araucaria excelsa. Both holly and pteris ferns seem to act the same way. The leaves become spotted like the one I am sending and then turn yellow. The araucaria leaves turn yellow and fall off or dry up. Is this the result of a disease, or what is the cause? These are the first I have had that acted in this way.

My Boston ferns are light green in color and faded looking. How can I make them dark green and fresh looking? The lowest temperature they have is 50 degrees and they get the full sun in a house that faces south.

C. H. W. C.

The holly fern is suffering from a bad attack of thrips, the leaf submitted for examination having been ruined by these insects. The best remedy for this trouble is either spraying or fumigating with one of the nicotine preparations, and it may require several applications to clean the plants completely. The araucaria is badly infested with red spider and needs thorough syringing every bright day in order to overcome this pest.



The Boston ferns are being kept too cool for the best results, the night temperature of 50 degrees being nearly 10 degrees too low. This doubtless is the cause of the light colored foliage. Full sunshine is not beneficial to these ferns at this season. W. H. T.

IT IS NEPHROLEPIS CORDIFOLIA.

Enclosed you will find a frond of some variety of nephrolepis. The fronds are usually from twenty-four to thirty inches long and their growth is rather straight. Kindly let me know what variety this is. What would be the best cultural treatment for it? A. V. C.

The nephrolepis in question is N. cordifolia, a free-growing species of compact habit, and one that makes a particularly attractive plant in a 6-inch or 8-inch pot. This fern may be propagated readily by means of spores and also from young plants formed upon the runners, as in the case of the Boston fern. Similar treatment to that of the Boston fern will suit N. cordifolia admirably, and it will be found to be a good plant to put in porch boxes or vases where it is not exposed to full sunshine for the whole of the day.

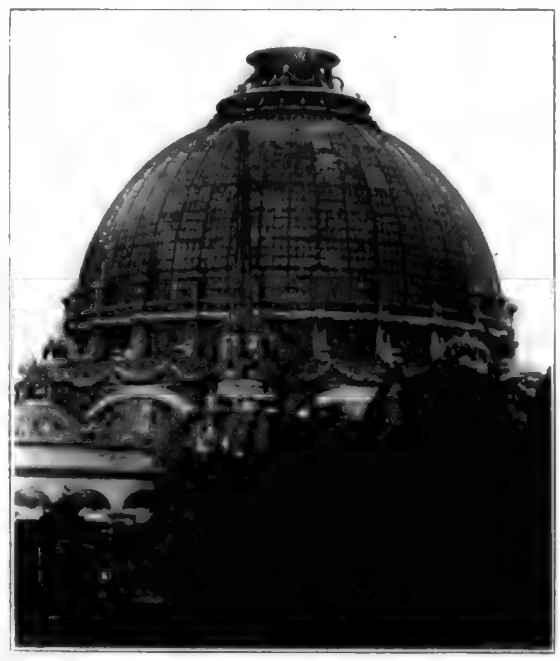
EXPERT ADVICE ON SWEET PEAS.

Zvolanek Tells How to Grow Them.

Ant. C. Zvolanek, of sweet pea fame, has written a little book on his favorite flower, with directions as to its culture both under glass and outdoors. The ideas contained in the booklet should be worthy of as wide publication in the trade as possible, since the author's skill as a grower and hybridizer is beyond question, and since he is the originator, according to his own statement, "of every winter-flowering sweet pea in commerce." The interest attached to Mr. Zvolanek's utterances on the subject should be a sufficient reason, then, for the reprinting of the following passages, taken from the part of the book which treats of indoor culture:



"The ideal soil for the sweet pea is sandy loam or black prairie soil, such as that found around Chicago. Red shell soil is excellent if taken from about six inches of the surface; and coarse gravelly soil, if well fertilized, will also grow good sweet peas. Soil taken from swampy places, provided it is not heavy clay, but only black sediment, is good if not used the same year. Such soil should, in the fall, be spread out about sixteen inches thick on high ground. Left there over winter, the rain and frost will wash out any alkali which the soil may contain; white clover seed scattered over this is also beneficial. In about six months, or say in June, compost may be made of this soil by using one part of short manure to three parts of soil. Use some air-slaked lime and coarse bone.

"Every florist should also have a concrete reservoir, say about 20x50 feet and three feet deep. This may be constructed cheaply, especially where gravel and sand are plentiful. All stable manure, if stored in this reservoir, kept moderately damp and stirred occasionally, makes the ideal manure. Such a reservoir, if about four feet higher than the greenhouse, may be piped so that the manure water, when properly diluted, may be used for the sweet peas.

The Greenhouse and the Beds.

"For December and January cutting, only large houses should be used, so that the sun can penetrate every corner. The sides of the houses should be at least eight feet high and made of glass, at least all but the lower three feet. Only in such houses is it possible to get satisfactory crops during these two cloudy months. If you have not an up-to-date greenhouse, the sweet peas should be sown later, say in October, after the fall crop has been harvested, such as chrysanthemums, etc. Sweet peas sown late this way will not bloom before February, at which time there is sufficient sunshine for a good flowering crop. All that is needed is eight feet of head room.

"Solid beds of one and a half to two feet of good soil are the best. If the present soil is of the right kind, enrich it well with the prepared short manure, mixing it down to the base so that no big lumps are left either in the manure or in the soil. If the soil is not suitable, compost soil such as that mentioned should be put in place of it. Of course all this will be expensive, but in a few days it will be repaid by a good picking of flowers. After the soil is well prepared in the beds, it should be well tramped down, and if too dry, watered down evenly to the base, leaving it for several days, until the soil is just in proper condition to work.

Glass Dome, Palace of Horticulture.

Germination of the Seed.

"Some years the seeds germinate more or less poorly and most of the seedsmen claim that certain varieties are hard-shelled, causing the seeds to take a longer time to come up. Judging from my own experiments, I find no difference in the varieties, all depending upon the temperature at the time when the seed ripened. After experimenting with reference to this point for a number of years, I have come to the conclusion that all seed which ripened in the hottest part of the season became hard-shelled, and if sown would lie in the ground for several months before germinating. To prevent slow germination, soak the seed in water for about fifteen hours just before sowing. This will cause the seed to soften and swell so that, when sown, it will germinate quickly. Those seeds which still remain hard should be filed. The best method is to use a fine flat file, taking one seed in each hand and striking it once or twice over the file just enough to cut the hard skin. The seeds treated in this way should be dropped back into the water, and within another fifteen hours they will be soft, swollen and ready to sow. One person can prepare a large number of seeds in this way in a short time.

Sowing the Seed.

"When the beds have been well prepared as described, press the soil down as firmly as possible and rake everything off smoothly. Then make rows at least five feet apart and drop the seed about three inches apart in the row, not more than one and a half inches deep. Be sure before sowing the seed that the soil is in just the right working condition. Never sow seed in soil which is too wet and sticky; rather wait a few days, until all is right. Moreover, never sow white sweet pea seed in dry soil which will have to be watered before the seed is up. Any seed of this variety, if sown in dry soil and watered soon after being sown, will seldom germinate.

"After all the seed is in, rake the surface of the bed until it is quite fine to a depth of about one inch. This will make a fine pulverized soil mulch on the top, which dries off soon, thus preventing the lower moisture from escaping, besides keeping the entire lower soil cool, which is needful to sweet peas when starting. If these directions are carried out, no watering will be necessary for ten days at least; or at any rate as long as all the seed is not up, or so long as you can find moisture about four inches below the surface. Sometimes I have let three weeks elapse before watering the beds. This method encourages the seed to sink the roots deep in the soil, hunting for the moisture. Such sweet peas, with deep roots, can withstand the hottest days without damping off, as is so often the case when the moisture is kept only on the surface. If it becomes necessary to water, you should water well down to the base, but not too often, keeping the surface rather dry and well worked.

"After sowing, the temperature should be kept as low as possible; and if the seed is sown in August, when the weather is extremely warm, the glass should be whitewashed slightly as long as the hot weather continues. Spraying the plants and glass from the inside between 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. also helps to keep down the extreme heat. After the sweet peas are up the plants may be sprayed several times each day during such hot spells.

TRADE DISPLAYS AT EXPOSITION.

To show what has been accomplished by horticulturists during the last ten years is the avowed aim of the department of horticulture of the San Francisco exposition. Originators of new varieties of fruits and flowers that have passed the experimental stage and given assurance of practical commercial value will receive every encouragement to exhibit the results of their endeavors. A $1,000 cup has been offered for the finest unnamed seedling rose exhibited for the first time at the exposition. Such workers as Luther Burbank, Myrtle Shepherd Francis, Albert Etter, Professor and Mrs. Cockerell, Carl Purdy and Anton C. Zvolanek will be represented.

Bird's-eye View of the New Establishment of the J. W. Davis Co., to be built at Terre Haute, Ind.

Some British seedsmen and growers have made arrangements for displays. Kelway & Son, Langport, England, who designed the reconstructed ancient garden at Hampton Court Palace, will reproduce a model of the palace and grounds at the exposition. Kelway & Son's exhibit and those of Hugh Dickson, Ltd., and Samuel McGredy & Son, the two great Irish rose originators, have already arrived. Perry's Hardy Plant Farm, Sutton & Sons, John Waterer & Sons and Sander & Sons are practically certain to exhibit.

The glass dome of the Palace of Horticulture, shown in the accompanying illustration, is the largest in existence and measures 185 feet in height and 158 feet in diameter. The building is situated immediately to the left of the main entrance and faces what is known as the South Gardens, which will be the main horticultural endeavor of the landscape gardening department, affording it the most prominent and individual location of any building on the grounds. The dome will be illuminated at night entirely from the interior, with an elaborate effect obtained by changing colors.

The building will be divided into two sections, the conservatory and that in which will be installed those exhibits pertaining to practical horticulture. The conservatory will be arranged to accept exhibits requiring temperatures varying from 45 to 80 degrees. There is every prospect from present indications that this section will contain an unusual aggregation of tropical and indoor plants. One of the leading features throughout the entire period of the exposition should be the exhibit of cut flowers. Everything is being done to make this display thoroughly representative and to the entire satisfaction of the trade. There will be a number of flower shows in the spring and autumn. Dahlias, roses, etc., will have special days for shows.

THE NEW DAVIS RANGE.

Few undertakings in the way of greenhouse building have attracted more attention than the announcement of the plans of the J. W. Davis Co. for a new establishment at Terre Haute, Ind. The Davis concern at Davenport, Ia., has been unusually successful and its range of detached iron-frame houses of large size is visited by many western growers, as the type of construction is unlike that employed in most of the older establishments in the state. The new Davis range at Terre Haute constitutes the largest single order for greenhouse construction ever given in the United States. There are to be ten houses, each 76x600, with two propagating houses, each 25x200. The contract calls for the immediate erection of the propagating houses and eight of the big growing houses. The Lord & Burnham Co., which obtained the order through its Chicago office, has contracted to complete the first house September 15, and one more house each fifteen days thereafter. The accompanying illustration shows the establishment as it will look when completed. Sixty-five acres of land have been purchased in the outskirts of Terre Haute. The plan is to sell off a strip 200 feet wide around two sides of the property for building lots. The power plant is to occupy a central position in the range, with the two propagating houses in front and a railway switch entering from the rear. The propagating houses are to be set far enough apart to permit an electric traction line to enter the power house by laying its track between the two greenhouses. The big 76x600 structures are to stand seventeen feet apart. They run east and west. The pitch of the north span is on the line of the sun's rays at noon December 21 and the distance between the houses is such that the shade line of each house strikes the next house at the ground line on the shortest day of the year.

Mr. Davis figures that by the installation of every modern device for the handling of material he will be able to make a considerable reduction in the cost of growing. It is a coincidence that he finds his Davenport establishment and his new location at Terre Haute equally distant from Chicago, his principal market. One establishment is 182 miles from Chicago, the other 183 miles, one almost directly west and the other almost directly south.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The new green notice with the last copy tells the story. No bills are run up; no duns sent.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Pansies and Violas.

From July 20 to August 15 is a suitable period in which to sow pansies and violas, the earlier date being for the more northerly states. Seed can be sown in coldframes in the open air. Where a few hundreds or thousands only are needed, a coldframe is the place in which to sow them, as they can be protected by means of lath or cheesecloth shades until the seedlings are well germinated, later removing the shades. Broadcasting the seed will be found more satisfactory than sowing in rows. Where many thousands of plants are needed, outdoor sowing in carefully pulverized beds is to be recommended. If the weather chances to be quite drying, it is a good plan to water the ground before sowing, and again when the seed has been sown. Mulching with dry moss, straw or old hay will prevent the surface soil from drying out so much. Of course, it must be removed as soon as the seedlings germinate.

There are many fine strains of pansies on the market. Most of the so-called giant strains are simply the Trimardeau, or good selections from it, and there is no better all-round pansy today. While mixed colors satisfy most customers, those who want special color effects should have the named varieties, which are procurable in many shades, such as dark blue, light blue, white, yellow, purple violet, peacock blue, etc. For pure bedding purposes the real bedding pansies, with smaller flowers than the giant Trimardeaus, are splendid. Particularly good are: Emperor William, ultramarine blue; Snow Queen, pure white; Lord Beaconsfield, deep purple violet shading to white on upper sepals; Cardinal, red; King of Blacks, almost black; Kaiser Frederick, velvety red, edged red and yellow.

The violas, or tufted pansies, are superior to pansies for massing, as, while the flowers are smaller, they are produced in much greater abundance, and if some water can be supplied they will flower freely all summer. This season, in early July, these varieties are a mass of bloom: Papilio, light violet; Blue Perfection, purplish blue; White Perfection, pure white; lutea splendens, golden yellow.

A point to remember with reference to pansies and violas is that no matter whether sown in frames or outdoors, the soil should not be allowed to become dry prior to germination or a great many seedlings will be lost. There are no more popular spring flowers than pansies and no florist will go far wrong if he raises a good number of them. They winter successfully outdoors even in the coldest states, if given a winter mulch. Do not buy cheap seed; the best will be found the cheapest. As cut flowers pansies are popular, but they could be made much more so if the specialists who are working on them would spend less time in securing greater size of flowers and a little more in developing a longer-stemmed type. Here and there each season will be seen plants with stems much longer than normal. By using such plants and by later careful selection, surely a race can be evolved in a few years with stems equal to those of the single violets in length, and when this comes about there will be hundreds of thousands grown under glass and pansies will become a serious rival of violets as winter flowers.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The market has eased perceptibly. Supplies in most lines show a marked increase, while carnation receipts continue at about the same size as for some time. Rose receipts are heavy for this time of the year. Only those that have keeping qualities are in demand and bring good prices. The Killarneys open quickly and sell only in job lots if at all. Lilies are more plentiful than they were. The same is true of gladioli, and only the good ones find ready sale. The first asters arrived July 13. A few sweet peas are still coming in. The few orchids that come in meet with a fair demand on special occasions. New leucothoe and new green galax are added to the list of greens.

Club Affairs.

The Florists' Club's annual meeting, July 13, was not well attended, owing to the drenching rain. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the following choices: President, James Allen; vice-president, Max Rudolph; secretary, Alex. Ostendarp; treasurer, Charles H. Hoffmeister; director, J. A. Peterson. Mr. Allen and Ed. Schumann were tied for president on the first ballot, but Mr. Schumann withdrew and asked that Mr. Allen be reëlected unanimously.

The efforts of the outing committee, consisting of J. A. Peterson, C. E. Critchell and Wm. Murphy, were crowned with success when the club held its annual picnic at the Lagoon July 9. The results of the contests were as follows:

Girls' race (10 yrs.)—Agnes Deller, first; Katherine Murphy, second.
Young ladies' race (16 yrs.)—Miss Helen Pack, first; Miss Carmichael, second.
Ladies' race—Mrs. Story, first; Miss Miller, second.
Boys' race (7 yrs.)—F. Dellal, Jr., first; C. E. Critchell, Jr., second.
Boys' race (10 yrs.)—C. Stoeckel, first; C. Meyers, second.
Boys' race (16 yrs.)—S. Allen, first; A. Stefan, second.
Men's race—Nick Weber, Jr., first; Ben George, Jr., second.
Tug-of-war—Growers, captained by Wm. Murphy.
Ladies' ball throwing contest—Mrs. Story, first; Miss Ross, second.
Half-mile race—A. Reidel, first; Chas. Windram, second; Harry Meckstroth, third.
Boat race—Chas. Windram, first; Gus. Crow, second.

Various Notes.

P. J. Olinger went up to his greenhouses at Newcastle July 12 and reports that the planting is about finished and that he is pleased with the appearance of all the stock.

C. E. Critchell reports the arrival of the new leucothoe and new green galax.

Both Mr. Miehle and Mr. Shepard, of the E. G. Hill Co., are on their vacations. The former is in Florida, looking after real estate interests.

Word has been received that H. S. Crossfield, of Lawrenceburg, Ky., recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at Louisville. He expected to be able to return to his home by the time this issue is off the press.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There is little to report on market conditions except that they are extremely dull. The quantity of flowers arriving is steadily decreasing, but is far more than sufficient for the light demands. Roses are generally of inferior quality and sell at from 50 cents per hundred upwards. The cool July weather has allowed most sorts to hold their color well. Some nice summer Beauties are coming in. These sell moderately well, as do Double White Killarney, Sunburst and Cardinal. Carnations are of good quality for July, but people seem to be tired of them and the demand is poor. Sweet peas are finished under glass, but a good supply from outdoors is arriving. Sales are disappointing, however.

In addition to giganteum lilies, there now is an abundance of outdoor candidums, which are freely used in window decorations. There are also speciosums and auratums of good quality. America and Pink Beauty gladioli sell better than Mrs. F. King. Prices on all these, however, are low. Valley is temporarily selling somewhat better. Among outdoor flowers, Japanese irises and delphiniums are the most popular. Cattleyas sell slowly and at low prices. Trade in both asparagus and adiantum is dull.

Sweet Pea Exhibition.

The annual sweet pea show in Horticultural hall July 11 and 12 was an excellent one. Not only sweet peas but other seasonable flowers, such as delphiniums, lilies, Japanese irises and other herbaceous plants, were shown in abundance and of unusually fine quality, while fruits and vegetables made a splendid showing. The awards for sweet peas were as follows:

Twenty-five sprays white—William Gray, gardener to Mrs. W. B. Leeds, first, with fine King White; E. H. Wetterlow, gardener to Mrs. Lester Leland, second, with Etta Dyke; E. H. Wetterlow, third.

Twenty-five crimson or scarlet—George Melvin, gardener to Col. Charles Pfaff, first, with King Edward Spencer; George Melvin, second, with Scarlet Emperor; E. H. Wetterlow, third, with Scarlet Emperor.

Twenty-five carmine—William Gray, first, with John Ingman; George Melvin, second, with John Ingman; George Melvin, third.

Twenty-five yellow—Miss Fannie Foster, first, with Floradale Fairy; E. H. Wetterlow, second, with Primrose Spencer; E. H. Wetterlow, third.

Twenty-five blue—E. H. Wetterlow, first, with Blue Jacket; Miss Fannie Foster, second, with Wedgwood; E. H. Wetterlow, third.

Twenty-five blush—E. H. Wetterlow, first, with Millie Marlis; George Melvin, second, with Mrs. Hugh Dickson; E. H. Wetterlow, third.

Twenty-five deep pink—Mrs. P. G. Forbes, first, with Countess Spencer; E. H. Wetterlow, second.

Twenty-five cream pink—George Melvin, first, with Mrs. C. W. Breadmore; Miss Fannie Foster, second, with Mrs. C. W. Breadmore; E. H. Wetterlow, third.

Twenty-five orange—George Melvin, first, with Thomas Stevenson; E. H. Wetterlow, second, with Thomas Stevenson; William Gray, third, with Thomas Stevenson.

Twenty-five lavender—George Melvin, first, with Asta Ohn Spencer; E. H. Wetterlow, second.
Twenty-five purple—George Melvin, first, with Tennant Spencer; E. H. Wetterlow, second; Miss Fannie Foster, third.
Twenty-five maroon—E. H. Wetterlow, first.
Twenty-five picotee edged—Miss Fannie Foster, first, with Blue Picotee.
Twenty-five striped or flaked red or rose—William Gray, first, with Aurora; William Gray, second; H. Heeremans, Lenox, Mass., third.
Twenty-five striped or flaked blue or purple—George Melvin, first, with Senator Spencer; William Gray, second, with Loyalty; E. L. Lewis, gardener to Col. Frederick Mason, third.
Twenty-five bicolor other than picotee edged—George Melvin, first, with Mrs. Cuthbertson; Miss Fannie Foster, second; W. D. Blossom, third.
Decoration of sweet peas, cut flowers or growing plants, or both—Penn the Florist, first, with a circular tiered table covered with green velvet and dotted with low dishes of sweet peas, a most pleasing arrangement; Boston Cut Flower Co., second, with an imposing and well-arranged centerpiece of Countess Spencer with Sprengeri trails to edge of table. The latter firm put up a fine centerpiece of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses, not for competition.

The amateur sweet pea open exhibits filled two tables, the quality being but little inferior to that seen in the professional classes.

For twenty-four hollyhocks Martin Sullivan, gardener to William Whitman, won both first and second prizes. Mr. Sullivan showed a magnificent bank of hybrid delphiniums of his own raising, including a fine pure white one. Farquhar & Co. had a group of herbaceous flowers arranged on a sloping bank, with a background of evergreens. Included was a fine vase of Lilium myriophyllum. J. L. Smith, gardener to A. W. Preston, had a fine table of sweet peas, also fine flowers of hybrid tea roses in twenty-five varieties. E. H. Wetterlow had a dozen fine pans of achimenes, the best varieties being Margaretta magnifica, Galatea Improved, and Dainty Queen. William Thatcher, gardener to Mrs. J. L. Gardner, had a table of well flowered gloxinias, also Clerodendron fallax and Platyclinis filiformis. Native plants made a fine show.

The class for twelve varieties of vegetables arranged for effect brought out numerous competitors. Prizes finally went to J. O. Christensen, gardener to W. J. Clemson; Edward Parker, gardener to Oliver Ames, and E. L. Lewis, gardener to Col. F. Mason.

Various Notes.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report business as well up to the July average, with a good call for Beauty roses. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Robinson left July 15 for a month's vacation, to be spent at Bellnap Point, Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H.

Thomas Stock, of Dorchester; Charles E. Holbrow, of Brighton, and A. Leuthy, of Roslindale, are away on European trips. Mr. Leuthy will buy his usual large quantity of azaleas, palms and other plants in Belgium.

Pink Beauty gladiolus is sharing with America first favor among purchasers of this season. The first named is coming in quantity from F. J. Dolansky and Mann Bros. A year ago no one seemed to want America; it had all the faults in the calendar, and Mrs. King was called the coming variety. Now the latter is hard to move and everyone is clamoring for America.

Ernest Stickel, salesman for the Montrose Greenhouses, started on his vacation July 13, to be spent where he will get the cool breezes of Cape Cod, at Hyannis.

William J. Kennedy is mourning the loss of his eldest brother, whose death occurred in Cleveland a few days ago.

The West Hill Greenhouses, of Reading, are marketing fine Japanese irises and delphiniums, which sell well. They still have excellent Ward, Beacon and White Wonder carnations.

William Rosenthal, proprietor of the Boston Cut Flower Co., is spending a well earned vacation in the White mountains, making his headquarters at Poland Springs. Business at the store continues good, particularly in funeral work.

Herbert Sloane, of the New England Florists' Supply Co., is spending his vacation at Winthrop, Mass.

E. J. Rogean, with a party of friends, including H. W. Vose, Paul E. Richwagen and C. Learned, made a trip per motor boat July 11 to Portland, Me., returning July 13. In spite of fog and haziness the party had a good trip.

W. J. Thurston, manager of the Boston Flower Exchange, with his wife and baby, started July 11 for a vacation to be spent in Maine.

The store of John Walsh & Son, of Malden, was burglarized July 3, by boys. The sum of $15 in money and a box of cigars were taken.

A star attraction in Penn's windows last week consisted of large bulletin boards thickly covered with telegraph orders from all parts of the United States and Canada. This week the duck farm, which proved so potent a charm last summer, is again on exhibition and on every hand one hears the expression, "Have you seen Penn's duck farm?"

Charles Sandiford, who has started in business in Buffalo, was for a number of years a resident of Boston and a frequent exhibitor at Horticultural hall. His friends here wish him every success in his new venture.

Mann Bros., in addition to giganteum and candidum lilies, are sending in a nice lot of speciosums and auratums.

James H. Leach, the veteran carnationist of North Easton, is spending his annual vacation at his summer cottage in Onset, Mass.

George Hallett, who operates a flower store in Hyannis, Mass., the year around, reports business this season as good. He has a large clientele of customers among the wealthy summer residents there.

At Galvin's Tremont street store July 11 I noted a grand display of out-

THE WOMEN YOU MEET

MRS. CHARLES E. CRITCHELL.

THE "better half" of one of the most popular men in the trade. There are few wives of florists who enjoy so large an acquaintance as does Mrs. Charles E. Critchell, of Cincinnati, who will be much in the public eye in the next few weeks, for she is president of the Ladies' Society of American Florists. This organization of florists' wives and daughters has become one of large importance, as it has developed the social side of the S. A. F. conventions to a point that commands the attention of the board of directors and the program framers. Boston will attract an unusually large attendance of ladies and Mrs. Critchell will be even more in evidence than in the past. Elaborate preparations are under way.

door Lilium candidum. This is easily the finest of all white lilies when well grown, as these spikes were. The aquatic display here continues attractive.

The plants in the convention garden have made excellent headway since we got copious rains. The unusually low temperatures which have prevailed so far in July are, however, not to the liking of the more tropical subjects.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Welch are at their Old Orchard Beach cottage in Maine for the summer. Mr. Welch makes frequent trips to Boston on convention and other matters.

The garden committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society visited the iris garden of Dr. Kennedy, at Readville, July 8. The display of I. Kæmpferi was unusually fine.

H. Huebner, the well known Groton florist, sailed for Europe July 7 on the S. S. Cincinnati.

William Sim is picking Comet tomatoes heavily in his greenhouses. His crop was never better. Gladioli in the field are fine.

A pleasant baseball game between nines representing the Boston Flower Exchange and Thomas Roland was played at Nahant July 11. Both sides furnished some thrills.

Wax Bros. say business so far has been good. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wax are away on a vacation among the woods and lakes of Maine.

Everything seems to be progressing favorably for the S. A. F. convention. The finance committee has the necessary funds in sight. The Salem fire will make late collections more difficult, as already $500,000 has been contributed locally for the relief fund, with the end not at all near.

W. N. Craig.

W. C. Ward, of East Milton, Mass., is in the harness again, after a year's vacation. Six months were enjoyed on the gulf coast of Florida, where the big fish are, and four months in the pine woods of Maine, where he has built a summer camp and garage for the machine. On the return trip he stopped at the historic town of Brunswick and visited our old-time jolly companion, Thomas Pegler, whom he found in improved health and with an encouraging business.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

After a week of the most trying, scorching weather, Pittsburgh is starting this week with some nice showers and pleasant, cool days. Some good flowers are still to be had, including Beauties and good roses, lilies, orchids, sweet peas and gladioli. Carnations are really good, although they must be thrown out soon. Asters are here, but are not extra fine. Trade is about the average for July and everyone seems satisfied, as during the hot days last week no one seemed to be particularly anxious to work.

A Visit to the Altimo Culture Co.

A trip to the Canfield, O., greenhouses of the A. W. Smith Co., known there as the Altimo Culture Co., one day last week, was pleasant despite the hot weather. A half hour's ride by auto from Youngstown, O., brought us to Canfield, where we were met by Jarvis W. Smith, who acted as host. After a quick trip through his orchid house and two 500-foot houses of roses, which were in exceptionally fine condition, we adjourned to the small lake and looked over the many varieties of water lilies and watched the fish while we cooled off and got up an appetite for a dinner which, I am sure, made the cook proud of her share of the entertainment. The afternoon was spent in looking about outdoors, where we found great patches of asters in fine shape, some of them soon to be in bloom; also long rows of sweet peas, cosmos and all of the regular summer stock. Everything was in fine order and up-to-date. A sprinkler system is installed over almost all the planting grounds, which include several acres. Mr. Smith, Sr., as well as his sons, is somewhat of an inventive turn of mind, which is demonstrated by many contrivances, such as a special arrangement of benches for orchids, special gas burners for the different heating systems, and probably one of the most practical concrete benches so far made.

After looking over the working end, we had time to consider the home and its surroundings. It was formerly the home of an old judge of that county, and the trees he planted many years ago are now one of the attractive features of Canfield, O., which, had it not been named so long ago, would now be Smithtown, as Jarvis Smith dominates nearly everything of consequence in the town. After a big supper, when we had an opportunity to pay our compliments to the cook, we congratulated Mr. Smith on the fine condition of his establishment and returned to our automobile.

Various Notes.

The news of the day on Saturday, July 11, was the marriage of E. J. McCallum, president of the McCallum Co., to Miss Mathilda Kyle, of Columbo street, east end. The couple left the same evening for the Thousand Islands, to spend their honeymoon. The wedding was quite a surprise to Mr. McCallum's many friends, all of whom wish him a happy voyage on the sea of matrimony.

Some of our suburban civic societies are having competitions for prizes for well kept lawns and flower gardens. John Jones, of Schenley park, and T. P. Langhans were judges for the Carrick Civic Society and spent Saturday, July 11, looking over the lawns and gardens of that suburb. They report some exceptionally fine lawns. A good deal of the planting consists of herbaceous stock and shrubbery, with a noticeable scarcity of bedding stock. Though the places are well kept, they show a great need of advice from a landscape gardener and a lack of much of the artistic effect which could be had without spending any more money.

The work of the city tree commission is showing to good advantage, as among the hundreds of trees planted a dead tree is hard to find. This department has been turned over to the department of parks, of which George W. Burke is superintendent, and there is good reason to expect, from the way he has handled the parks, that the tree planting will not suffer. Clarke.

Wheeling, W. Va.—Albert Lash has nearly completed his large greenhouse at the range in South Warwood. The framework is finished and the glass is now being put in.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Considering the time of year, business is holding up well. While no enormous amount of stock is coming in, it is being taken up pretty well. Roses are getting rather poor, Killarney especially. Maryland and Radiance are the best at present, with Radiance at the top. Gladioli are to be had in any quantity now, but good prices are being realized. America is seen in largest quantity. Carnations are poor, with few coming in. Phlox is just about in its prime, some fine heads being seen. Asters are arriving in small quantities and are of good size, but there is not enough to go around, the few coming in being snapped up at good prices. Greens of all kinds are overplentiful, with a poor demand. The weather has been quite favorable for outdoor stock; with plenty of rain and a low temperature, it continues to move along well. Funeral work is in good demand and is using up the greater part of the stock sold.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held Monday, July 13. Vice-president Hamilton presided in the absence of President Johnston. The outing committee reported through F. C. Bauer, chairman, that everything is in shape for the outing to be held July 20, Monday. Richard Vincent, Jr., spoke of the recent trip to Washington and urged all florists to contribute generously to the Wm. R. Smith memorial fund.

There was a good attendance, despite the warm weather. No business of importance was before the meeting and after the question box was discussed the club took an early adjournment.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Johnston, of 223 West Madison street, are touring the northern states in their automobile.

I. Rosnosky, of the H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor last week.

There are still a few berths left on the boat by which the local florists are going to attend the S. A. F. convention in Boston. It is going to be a lively crowd, and those who contemplate going by this route had better make their reservations as soon as possible, to insure passage.

Don't fail to attend the annual outing of the Florists' Club, to be held at Beull's park, Middleriver, Monday, July 20. A good time will be on tap and generously served to all. Take cars marked Middleriver at Baltimore and Holliday streets, and ride to the end of the line. The park entrance is on the right. Cars leave every half hour until 2 p. m.; from then on every twenty minutes. The park will be open all day; so come down early and enjoy the many amusements.

J. D. Harmon is rapidly completing his two houses on Winters lane, near Frederick road, Catonsville, and will be ready to plant them in about ten days.

A number of the local florists journeyed to Washington Tuesday, July 7, to attend the lecture by R. Vincent, Jr., and the reception given by Wm. F. Gude at his residence afterward. A most enjoyable evening was spent and it is to be regretted that this city was rather poorly represented in regard to numbers. Wm. Lehr, of Brooklyn, Md., made up a party to go in his automobile to attend this affair, but had a number of blow-outs, which kept them so long that the festivities were well under way before the party arrived.

Geo. Morrison, state vice-president of the S. A. F., is urging all members to attend the annual convention at Boston in August. Mr. Morrison is working hard to get a large body to go, so that this state will be well represented.

J. J. Perry has purchased a Ford automobile and is erecting a garage for it on his place, on the Harford road.

John Cook has moved his business from 318 to 328 North Charles street while improvements are being made. The store will be greatly enlarged and a large display window added.

The Leo Niessen Co. had a fine lot of water lilies of all shades last week. A fine dark blue one was exceptionally showy. The company is also handling a fine lot of lilies, which are being cut in bud and developed as wanted. This house is still selling peonies, and to see peonies and asters side by side at this season of the year is something of a novelty. Louis Glick, of the Niessen staff, is on a two weeks' vacation in northern New York state.

Jos. Merritt has finished planting his new 200-foot house in carnations, which are looking well.

Chas. Seigwart is still cutting some good carnations of his seedling variety, Mrs. Chas. Seigwart, which are finding a good market.

Edward Kress will lose ninety feet of his front on Belair avenue, due to the city widening the street, which will take one of his houses away entirely.

It is reported a new trade club is being organized and that the first meeting was held at 200 West Mulberry street Monday, July 13. The purpose of the organization is not announced.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. handled a fine lot of Beauties, which were of exceptionally good color for this season of the year. W. F. E.

PATERSON, N. J.

The employees of both the Paterson and Passaic stores of Edward Sceery held their summer outing Sunday, July 12, at the farm of A. Thurston's Sons, at Ridgewood, N. J. The Passaic store force came over in one of Mr. Sceery's automobiles and were joined here by two automobile loads. All three proceeded to Ridgewood, where they were met by William and Joseph Thurston. After an exciting ball game, won by the Paterson store by a score of 3 to 2 in ten innings, and a number of athletic events, the party sat down to a chicken dinner in William Thurston's dining rooms. At its conclusion, Jacob Sprich presented to Mrs. Wm. Thurston a handsome French bag on behalf of the employees. In her response Mrs. Thurston invited them to hold their fall outing at Ridgewood, which was accepted by Bert McIlveen, manager of the Passaic store. At the close Alexander Rymer presented to Mr. Thurston a gold-mounted fountain pen from the guests, and a telegram from Mr. Sceery, in Omaha, Neb., was read, wishing all a pleasant day. After this enjoyable day, all are looking forward to the fall outing.

BUILDING PLANS

Bensenville, Ill.—W. F. Dunteman has a force of men at work erecting an engine room alongside his new greenhouses.

Pottstown, Pa.—D. W. Heinly has broken ground for a greenhouse, 28x120 feet, which will be used exclusively for growing carnations and chrysanthemums.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The John Bader Co., B. L. Elliott, proprietor, has placed an order with the Moninger Co., Chicago, for material for the large house that is to be added to the range this season.

Holyoke, Mass.—Ground has been broken for the greenhouse of G. H. Sinclair, at Smith's Ferry, on the land near the river bank just below his new home. The house will be 40x100.

Maquoketa, Ia.—H. L. Hill is busy moving and rebuilding the Maquoketa Greenhouses, recently purchased from the Odgers estate. When the work is completed Mr. Hill will have six houses connected with his store right in the business section of the city.

Wyoming, Ill.—The greenhouse of C. M. Ellis & Co. is to be enlarged and rebuilt this summer. At the same time the boiler plant will be overhauled and enlarged, and the office building will be doubled in size. The business is now conducted by Mrs. C. M. Ellis and her daughter, Miss Carrie Ellis.

Oakland, Cal.—Domoto Bros. have secured a permit for a greenhouse on Eightieth avenue, which is to cost $375.

Springfield, Mass.—A greenhouse, to cost $1,000, is to be erected this summer at 25 Pine street by the proprietors of the Springfield cemetery.

Bayonne, N. J.—Alvin C. Schroeter is closing up part of his place and looking for a new site. The increasing value of real estate makes the cost of maintenance too heavy.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Henry W. Allersma has obtained a permit to build a greenhouse at his range, at Benjamin avenue and Dunham street, at a cost of $650.

Princeton, N. J.—Theo. Knocke has contracted with Hitchings & Co. for an additional house. He is putting in concrete walks and benches. College business has been satisfactory.

Detroit, Mich.—Fred Schneider has been granted a permit to erect a 1-story cement block store and a greenhouse, at a cost of $650, on Maryland, between Linwood avenue and Lawton.

West Lebanon, N. H.—Samuel P. French is building a greenhouse, 20x100 feet, which will double the size of his present carnation range. Hitchings & Co., of New York, have the contract for the work.

.....BUSINESS AND OTHER NOTES.....

Waltham, Mass.—A charter has been issued to the Mathison Greenhouses, Inc., with a capitalization of $1,000. The incorporators are Thomas I. Hogan, Lewis M. McKenney, of Boston, and E. L. Turner, of Everett.

Strong City, Kan.—M. H. Lewis & Co., who do a general florists' business, say conditions are much improved by recent rains. All stock outdoors had been suffering because of the long dry spell in May and June.

Litchfield, Ill.—Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McPheron and daughter, Ruth, left this week for a vacation trip west. They will visit Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles and other points on the Pacific slope.

Albany, N. Y.—The July meeting of the Albany Florists' Club was held at the home of Fred Goldring, former president, at Font Grove. The club voted to hold its annual clambake at Newtonville Saturday, August 15. Fred A. Danker is chairman of the committee on the bake and R. D. Griffin chairman of the committee on transportation. The club accepted the invitation of President Fred Henkes to hold the next meeting at his place, near Newtonville, August 6.

Jamestown, N. Y.—G. H. Heelas, for fourteen years manager of the store of the Lake View Rose Gardens, has resigned his position to go into business for himself. He has leased the store at 318 Main street and expects to open for business the latter part of this month.

New Orleans, La.—The store of P. A. Chopin was entered by a negro burglar on the morning of July 4. He had only time to break the telephone box and take the nickels before his operations were interrupted by the arrival of Lawrence Laybrook, an employee, who had later to go to the hospital to have his injuries treated as a result of his encounter with the negro, who escaped.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—The Deichman & Douglas Floral Co. has been purchased by C. E. Mealy, formerly of the Pikes Peak Floral Co., who will continue the business at the same location. Mr. Mealy has had many years' experience in the florists' trade, having been in the trade in eastern cities fifteen years before he removed to Colorado Springs. During his residence here he has been with William Clark for over two years and for the last five years with the Pikes Peak Floral Co.

Des Moines, Ia.—Under the heading "Success Stories of Leading Iowa Manufacturers and Jobbers," the Tribune July 4 told of the growth of the J. S. Wilson Floral Co. Mr. Wilson has made great advancement since he bought the old Morris greenhouses here in 1908. The company now has 75,000 feet of glass, and two automobile trucks contribute to the success of the downtown branch.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THERE is considerable surplus stock of bedding plants, but most of it is in the hands of such eastern florists as did not use Review classified ads.

THE preliminary schedule of the big spring show to be held in New York in 1915 has been issued. Those interested may procure copies by addressing John Young, secretary, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city.

SOME press stuff from the publicity department of the Panama-Pacific Exposition informs us that the Society of American Florists will meet in San Francisco in 1915. Possibly, but counting the votes at Boston is a necessary preliminary.

A SCHEDULE has been issued for the eighty-third annual fair and chrysanthemum show of the American Institute, of New York, to be held November 4 to 6. Copies may be had by addressing W. A. Eagleson, secretary, 324 West Twenty-third street, New York.

THIS is a month of slow collections, but remittances are reported to be coming along better than usual in midsummer. An increasing number of florists are coming to appreciate the comfortable feeling that follows the monthly liquidation of all current bills.

ANOTHER PLEASED NEW YORKER

It is not where a paper is published, but where it is read that counts. The Review is published at almost the exact center of population of the United States, which seems a fairly favorable place for any such enterprise, but the fact that really counts is that it is read from Portland to Portland and from Dawson to Vera Cruz.

I carry a lot of advertising, using something like ten different papers read by buyers of vegetable plants, but I like The Review best of all. It has done its share to help me move a million and a half of plants this season and I must give you credit for your good work. Our largest day was 307,000 plants shipped, and next day we shipped 247,000.—F. M. Pattington, Scipioville, N. Y., July 11, 1914.

CHICAGO TO BOSTON.

Members of the trade west, north or southwest of Chicago will use the Lake Shore-New York Central route to the Boston convention of the S. A. F. Following the action of the Chicago Florists' Club, at its March meeting, instructing its transportation committee to select this route, it has been arranged that President Wirth, of the S. A. F., will leave Chicago, Sunday evening, August 16, on a special train over the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad, La Salle street station, at 8 p. m., with the Chicago Florists' Club and others desirous of joining the convention party on the President's Special. This train is due at Niagara Falls Monday noon at 12:04 o'clock and several hours will be spent there, the party leaving again at 3:50 p. m. the same day and due in Boston Tuesday, August 18, at 7:05 a. m. The fare from Chicago to Boston and return is $30, good for thirty days; berths Chicago to Boston, one way, lower, $5.50; upper, $4.40. The foregoing rates apply only to Boston and return. Many extended tours and side trips may be arranged returning on application to local transportation agents at equally low rates, including New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Thousand Islands, Hudson river, etc.

All members of the S. A. F. and their friends from points north, west and south of Chicago, who wish to join the president's party at Chicago, should secure tickets reading over the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad and New York Central, Chicago to Boston and return.

Reservations will be made on application to G. K. Thompson, 100 South Clark street, Chicago, Ill., who will cheerfully supply all other information regarding this trip.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The business of the week now under review has not been anything to arouse enthusiasm. There is a fair out-of-town demand, but there is little doing in the city. Probably if it were possible to compile the figures they would show that the shipping business is better than it ever was before in July. Each summer a few more retailers find that it is possible to keep fairly busy by carrying a good show of stock. But the supply this year is so much larger than it has been before that the shipping demand, which generally calls for only the better grade of flowers, is inadequate to consume the increased supply. The job lot, quantity sales that cleaned up the market during the spring now are simply out of the question. The people who bought great quantities of cheap flowers in May and June are not operating in July, so that the wholesalers find themselves confronted by the difficult problem of cleaning up the low grade stock that is left after the shipping demand has been satisfied. The condition makes for low averages.

The special feature of the week has been the increase in the supply of roses. Great quantities of short roses are coming on the market. The best stock sells fairly well, at easy summer prices, but there is little demand for the shorter grades and the man who needs a few flowers for a funeral design can get

Fancy Summer
BEAUTIES

THE BEST-SELLING FLOWERS OF THE SEASON

OUR ANNUAL SUMMER CROP of Beauties is famous. The trade knows these Beauties—we have sold them in big quantities for many summers. They are business-builders for those who show them to the public—YOU can do good business right straight through the summer if you use our Beauties. A big cut now on. All lengths.

FANCY ROSES

You will be interested in our special summer rose crops—novelty roses that sell well regardless of warm weather—simply too attractive for your customers to pass them by. Mrs. Russell, the new pink beauty, can now be supplied in quantity with moderately long stem; plenty of Bulgarie, the quick-selling light pink; Milady, the best red rose; Ward and Sunburst, the popular yellows. Try these on your trade—the people can't resist the desire to buy.

FANCY LILIES

These are home-grown Lilies, true Giganteums, grown from perfectly healthy bulbs. They will reach you in excellent condition and make money for you. Can supply in quantity. Also can furnish Rubrums and Auratums of fine quality.

GLADIOLI

Plenty of America, Augusta and King—stock that grades ahead of most other Glads on this market.

ASTERS

them at extremely low rates. The city demand is limited to stock to fill the occasional funeral orders; only a few stores are carrying any quantity of flowers for display. The three best roses are Russell, Sunburst and Shawyer. The bulk of the receipts are low grade Killarney.

Two or three growers are cutting heavy crops of Beauties, and the others all seem to have fair supplies. The quality of the Beauties averages as well as anything else on the market and the out-of-town demand is active, the buyers seeming to find the maximum of satisfaction and profit in handling Beauties at this season. There are liberal supplies of all lengths, but long Beauties are relatively more plentiful than short Beauties.

The supply of carnations is dwindling day by day. The best stock sells well, but asters are beginning to take the place of carnations. Only moderate supplies have yet been offered, the colors principally pink and white, but there is a daily increase in the supply of asters and a corresponding improvement in quality.

Gladioli have come in heavily, the local crops being about ready and the southern crops having benefited by recent rains. From now until the end of the season, with favorable weather, there will be no limit to the gladiolus supply. As before, America is the best seller, with King and Augusta next in favor. There are large supplies of Easter lilies, which sell only moderately well. Rubrum continues plentiful, and auratum is arriving from a few sources. During the last week cattleyas have been in only moderate supply, but, with an almost entire absence of demand, forced sales have been necessary to clean them out. An outlying retailer was noted last week having a special sale of the small-flowered type of gigas at 25 cents per bloom. Valley is selling slowly, but steadily. Sweet peas are quite good considering the high heat. Shasta daisies are everywhere. The green goods market is quiet.

Outings.

The Cook County Florists' Association had ninety-four people on its steamer excursion to Michigan City July 12. It was a hot day on shore but cool on the water and everybody had a good time.

July 19 the Chicago Florists' Club will picnic at St. Paul park, Morton Grove. Plans were completed at the club meeting at the Bismarck July 9. President French reports that the Milwaukee club changed the date of its outing, originally set for the same day, so that the Milwaukee florists can accept the invitation to participate in the Morton Grove affair. A large attendance is expected, as there are many greenhouse establishments nearby and the Poehlmann place can be visited at the same time.

Pulled Our Latchstring.

The office of The Review is more than a place of business—every florist is a welcome visitor, whether he calls to spend money or only for a friendly chat. Scarcely a day passes without an interesting caller from a distance.

July 9 G. L. Freeman, of Fall River, Mass., dropped in on his rounds of the orchid growers. He is an indefatigable traveler. When he makes a trip to South America collecting plants he gets in 30,000 miles a year; 20,000 miles just seeing buyers. On his present trip Mr. Freeman says business has improved steadily as he worked west.

Mrs. R. L. Van Nice, proprietor of the Van Nice Greenhouses, Wankon, Ia., who is visiting her son, R. B. Van Nice, in this city, was a caller July 8. Mrs. Van Nice says that the cut flower business, which is a recent venture, has proved a success and that general business is good.

H. Conn is back in town after having spent three months in assisting D. T. Matchen to start his new store at Indiana Harbor. This is the only flower store in the town and Mr. Matchen is said to have done well from the first day, but business there this month is limited to funeral work.

According to the Herald, eighty buildings inside the loop have more than a mile of window boxes, an increase of 300 per cent as compared to last year's showing.

Another greenhouse recently was shipped to Rhode Island by the Foley Mfg. Co., to be added to the ones sent two years ago on the order of J. Kopelman, of Providence.

A. L. Randall and Mrs. Randall went to Benton Harbor last week, to make their home on the fruit farm until after the grapes are sent to market. Miss Randall and a party of girl friends had been on the farm for some time. Of course Mr. Randall took the auto along. He will visit the store about one day a week during the summer, as usual.

H. N. Bruns and family made an automobile trip to Lake Marie last week. W. J. Smyth and family are summering there as usual.

A. I. Simmons went to Springfield July 10 to spend three weeks in camp with the national guard. He is captain in the commissary department of the First Brigade. Mrs. Simmons is looking after the store on West Sixty-third street during his absence.

H. W. Rogers has returned from Spring Lake, Mich., and resumed his duties with Weiland & Risch. Mrs. Rogers, the boy and the pony will stay the rest of the summer.

James Hancock states that the quiet season is rather less quiet than usual with Frank Oechslin. The shipping business in young stock is increasing each year.

July 11 was the first day for filing nominating petitions for candidates for county offices. J. A. Mendel, for sheriff, secured second place on the Democratic ticket.

returned from a fortnight's vacation in the east. In New York they met Mrs. Wienhoeber's sister returning from a trip to Europe and made the journey from Buffalo by water. In New York Mr. Wienhoeber visited the principal points of trade interest.

A coroner's jury July 10 exonerated George Arndt, former 19-year-old employee of Winterson's Seed Store, from blame for the drowning of his 17-year-old fiancee July 4.

A visit to Mt. Greenwood Saturday afternoon found W. N. Rudd "out of town" and C. W. Johnson "gone to a picnic." The cemetery never looked better, in spite of the fact that a circular letter recently was sent to lot owners notifying them that "the expense has become so great that it can no longer be met by the association."

John Zech feels a great joy in the assurance given him by Dr. Frank Billings that his daughter, Miss Carrie Zech, who has been ill for nine months, can be permanently and completely cured.

Henry Wehrman, John Michelsen, E. C. Amling and a number of their friends made an automobile trip to McHenry, Ill., this week, taking their families.

Fred Benthey visited New Castle last week. While only Shawyer, Sunburst and a few Ophelia are being cut, he found all the rest of the stock looking well at the Benthey establishment. He enjoyed Myer Heller's account of his trip to rose centers in Europe.

Felix Reichling says his brother has finished planting the Peter Reinberg place—all set for the new season. Asters are being grown in the field at the country place this year, a new departure.

O. Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., reports that the warehouse company has declined to consider and has returned his bill for an alleged shrink of peonies while in cold storage. The company explains, says Mr. Johnson, that it neither handled nor counted the peonies, charging for the number of buckets and not for the number of flowers. The company adds that this is the first claim ever received for a discrepancy in the storer's count, although it has been storing large quantities of peonies for many years.

W. P. Kyle avers that peonies never kept better than this season, and that they never sold better in July. Charles Klehm says he has stock in storage that will be good until the middle of August.

W. L. Palinsky has changed his mind about selling out and will remain in business, although his health is not robust.

Eric Johnson, of the A. L. Randall force, is known to have invested, last week, in a handsome diamond, but his friends in the market have been unable to find out who is to wear it.

A. A. Arnold, widely known as a manufacturer of florists' boxes, is a member of the special Federal grand jury on the Lorimer bank failure.

A. L. Vaughan comments that local gladioli came in almost at the same time as the Tennessee crop this year, due to the dry weather in the south.

pected at this time of year. Vacations have started: Joseph Einwick, the Beauty man, is spending two weeks at Pawpaw Lake, Mich., and Mrs. E. L. Horton, of the office force, is enjoying the surf at Atlantic City. John Horstman and family start July 18 for two weeks at Fox Lake, Ill.

Erwin Ludwig and family, 2150 Foster avenue, have returned from two weeks' vacation at Fox Lake, Ill.

Because of ill health, Charles Schieff, 5655 Ravenswood park, is taking a vacation at Sister Lakes, Mich. His son, William, is managing the store.

During the slack season, Louis Gresenz, 1433 Clybourn avenue, devotes his time to his hobby of raising canary birds. Besides the great pleasure derived, it furnishes a neat little income.

J. Walsh, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, left July 13 for a week's vacation with relatives at McHenry, Ill.

That out-of-town business has been exceptionally good is the report of Hoerber Bros.

The employees at George Reinberg's store are expecting a shipment of fish from Frank Hagen, who is in northern Wisconsin with Henry Kruchten. Before he left Mr. Hagen cut his crop of prize-winning gladioli, which he had planted in window boxes at the store.

A blockade of the streetcars, causing them to miss the boat, was the reason Paul R. Klingsporn and Mrs. Klingsporn were not in attendance at the Cook County Florists' Association's outing July 12.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg is in charge of the wholesale store while John Sinner is on his vacation.

One of last week's visitors was H. A. Fisher, of Kalamazoo, who was in town for a conference with the wholesalers' committee that arranged his financial affairs last winter.

W. F. Dunteman, of Bensenville, visited Erne & Klingel July 13, stating that building and planting is practically finished. He is much pleased with his new range of Garland houses. The establishment now contains about 100,000 feet of glass, all in roses, carnations and violets.

The Market.

The lethargy of summer was felt to a marked degree in the trade last week. Although business had been good up to July 4, there was then a sudden slump, which has been felt by all the florists alike. A large percentage of the city patrons have gone to their summer homes, where field flowers are plentiful. The weather has been extremely warm and such weather always paralyzes business at this time of the year. Sweet peas seem to be the best selling flowers in the market. They are in good condition and the supply is strong. The prices, however, are low. Harrisii and candidum lilies are plentiful. Roses are an uncertain quantity and are not of lasting quality. There are, however, a few good summer roses, such as Russell, Kaiserin, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Milady. They seem to be the best keepers. Coreopsis, candytuft, Lilium rubrum, cornflowers, Shasta daisies, gypsophilas, etc., are in demand now. Southern ferns are much improved and our native ones are excellent. There is an abundance of smilax and asparagus. Carnations are becoming smaller

Garden Party at Gude's.

The members of the Florists' Club, their ladies and friends, to the number of more than 300, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude at a garden party on the lawn at their home, 3800 New Hampshire avenue, northwest, July 7. The guests included members of the congressional committee through whom it is hoped to secure an appropriation for the Smith memorial, many public men and a party of fifteen Baltimore florists. The grounds were attractively decorated with colored electric lights and a grotesquely painted illuminated moon showed just above a clump of small trees, giving a bright moonlight effect. Music was furnished by Sam Shreve's Kallipolis Grotto Band. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., former president of the S. A. F., was introduced by Mr. Gude as being the man who has made three blades of grass grow where only one grew before. After replying to the ovation accorded him by the guests, Mr. Vincent paid a glowing tribute to the late William R. Smith and delivered a lecture on "A Trip Through Scotland, the Land of Burns." His remarks were illustrated by a large number of finely executed lantern slides. While some of these were being shown, Scotch songs were softly rendered by a Victrola. These particularly pleased President Cooke and he allowed his melodious voice to mingle with that from the machine, much to the amusement of his audience.

Following the lecture a varied program of entertainment was rendered by the Florists' Glee Club, and a number of members amused the guests with songs and recitations. Refreshments were served and everywhere expressions of appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Gude's hospitality were heard. The children particularly enjoyed themselves, for there was plenty of room for them to play their games. The evening for the adults ended with dancing in the parlors of the house and a reception to several of the members of the Columbia Players.

Florists' Display Refrigerator

The McCray keeps flowers fresh longer than any other. Its system of refrigeration maintains an even temperature of the proper degree for the preservation of cut flowers and entirely eliminates the great loss that is caused by imperfect refrigeration.

The McCray is built to permit an attractive and inviting display of your flowers, its various compartments being of different sizes to accommodate the different lengths of cut flowers.

The interior linings are of either opal glass, bevel plate mirror or white enamel and are very handsome and easy to clean. The exterior may be of any finish desired to match the interior of your woodwork or other fixtures.

The handsome appearance of the McCray is an improvement to any store and is a great stimulant for increased sales and pleased customers. Investigate the McCray and ascertain why they are the best for florists.

and Rock creek. They were attached to a wagon, which was demolished

Carnations are becoming scarce and those that are still to be had are of an inferior quality. Their place, however, is being taken by asters, for which there is a fair demand at from $1 to $2 per hundred. In many instances, flowers from the eastern market are supplanting the local stock, although the home-grown roses are good for this season of the year. Eastern American Beauty roses have been in good demand and not enough of these have been obtainable to fill all orders. A heavy rush of funeral work increased materially the sale of Easter lilies, which brought an average of $10 per hundred. Eastern Killarneys have moved better and there was a healthy call for all good roses. First quality white roses are none too plentiful. There are more gladioli and this flower is selling at from $4 to $6.

The interest manifest in the coming S. A. F. convention is greater than in any previous year and it is expected that this city will be represented by a large delegation. The question on everybody's lips seems to be, "Will I see you in Boston next month?" and the answer often is in the affirmative. The Washingtonians will in all probability leave on the boat which goes from Baltimore on the Friday evening prior to the opening of the convention.

The Eastern Market.

Clarence J. Watson says that with well grown gladioli and Easter lilies the market is better provided with seasonable stock than it has been. Both gladioli and lilies will keep in hot weather, enabling the retailers to carry stock without danger of loss. The gladioli are coming in freely now, in good variety of color, including America, Mrs. Francis King, Augusta, May and Brenchleyensis. They are particularly nice, clean, bright stock. Lilies are plentiful; when well cut they are likely to sell.

Carnations continue to go and asters to come, but these changes are gradual; it takes time to complete them. Roses are in strong supply. The changes noted in the last two reports are facts. Maryland is the only one of last summer's favorites to hold its own. The others are being replaced by better salamanders.

There is, of course, complaint of dullness, but the majority seem to think that business is quite normal for mid-July.

Mr. Bayersdorfer at Home.

H. Bayersdorfer is hard at work in his big Arch street store, where he chatted, for a few minutes, of his trip abroad. Mr. Bayersdorfer, who is looking well, said that this was his thirtieth trip across the Atlantic, and one of the shortest. Only once before has he been home by July 4. Mr. Bayersdorfer found business conditions abroad satisfactory, although when he reached the other side there was a depression following the news of the great Claflin failure in New York. A pleasant feature in Berlin was the meeting with H. H. Battles and Ed. Jansen. The trio had an American party at the Cafe Bristol, in Berlin. While Mr. Bayersdorfer's importations will undoubtedly exceed even the large scale of last year, which made his house the heaviest case importers in this city, he modestly compares their size with the Vaterland by wondering whether he would need in two seasons what that leviathan could carry across the water in one voyage.

ally means refreshments, or, in plain English, free lunch. So I took a chance and stayed home. A reliable friend who was present assured me that nothing was done. Imagine, then, my horror on receiving a formal notice three days later that this club would go on Monday, August 17, to New York on the Philadelphia & Reading railway and take the Metropolitan line of steamboats that evening from New York to Boston! Worse still, Leo Niessen must be notified within three more days by those who wished to go, in order that staterooms might be secured for the party. Here was beforehand in good earnest.

About twenty-five members notified Mr. Niessen that they wanted staterooms on the day named. Some want outside, several inside, so the party is to be divided into three classes: the married couples first, then the bachelors, last the married men who go as bachelors. Fully as many more are expected to join the party later or go independently, so a good delegation is assured.

Various Notes.

Edward Reid, Mrs. Reid, Master and Miss Reid, sailed on the Lusitania July 14 to visit Mr. Reid's home in the north of Ireland. Mr. Reid assures all his friends that their memory will be kept green in his heart. Stuart H. Miller will see that their interests are cared for right well during Mr. Reid's absence.

J. Liddon Pennock motored his brother, S. S. Pennock, to Ocean City July 10.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer cabled his arrival at Cherbourg, July 13.

William H. Westcott, who underwent an operation in St. Timothy's hospital, Roxborough, is doing well. This is good tidings.

Edward Habermehl has been going carefully over the stocks of the growers of foliage plants to secure first choice for the coming season.

William H. Engler tersely describes one who loves a change of position as a grasshopper.

Paul Berkowitz and family left July 15 for a vacation at a coast front hotel in the city by the sea. This apt description is quoted from Mr. Berkowitz.

Mrs. Joseph Lubbert, wife of an Olney florist, met with a fatal automobile accident on Providence Hill, Norristown, July 12. She jumped to avoid a stalled truck, which backed over her when she fell.

H. H. Battles and Miss Battles ascended in a balloon in Berlin recently.

Franklin Ely, with the Henry F. Michell Co., reports a strong demand for perennial seeds, running through the entire list.

A. E. Brown and F. H. Harjes are in Europe.

The Johnson Seed Co. reports an active demand for later vegetable seeds.

Edward Dornheim, with Berger Bros., is spending the week at Wildwood, N. J.

The Germantown residence of Charles E. Meehan was entered on the night of July 9, while the family were at Ocean City. Fortunately, little of value was taken.

To Thorley: The Philadelphia bowling team at Boston in 1889 included Robert Craig, Edward Lonsdale, John Burton, W. K. Harris and John Westcott. Robert Craig rolled high score.

William J. Young, Jr., is at his farm at Linfield, near Pottstown, Pa.

E. F. Lieker has a fine crop of asters just coming into bloom. Phil.

A greenhouse, 56½x200 feet, will shortly be erected for A. Gontram, on Rowland avenue, near Rhawn street. The house will be erected by the Lord & Burnham Co. and will cost $1,150.

Texas City, Tex.—J. D. Pruessner, who has a store in Galveston, is arranging for the opening of a branch in this city.

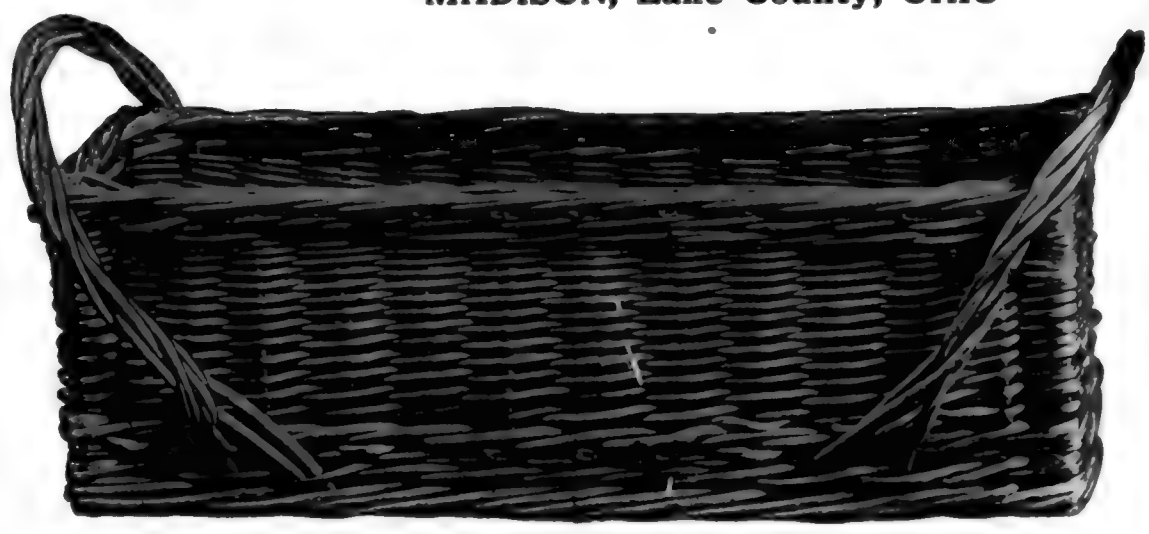
NEW YORK.

The Market.

Midsummer stagnation covers market conditions in the New York wholesale and retail sections, and this is accentuated by hot and rainy weather and the general business depression in all lines of trade. The wholesalers are accepting the inevitable during July and August philosophically. It is simply a repetition of the records of other years, only more so. Shipments of all kinds of cut flowers are decreasing, but prices are abnormally low and the demand is stagnant.

There are few special American Beauties arriving, or, in fact, few specials of any rose. Sunburst is abundant. Most of the teas are small, and few are usable. Apart from funeral and steamer business, there is practically no demand.

Few carnations sell above $1 per hundred. Mrs. Ward is still the favorite. Most of the arrivals sell at 50 cents per hundred and down. The beginning of the aster flood is in sight, and it will be limitless. Valley is down to summer levels. Lilies are of superb quality, but only the selects touch $4 per hundred, and many hundreds sell at $3 and even $2.



There is the usual mass of outdoor-grown stock, plenty of candidum lilies, gladioli and sweet peas, and still some rambler roses. Orchids do not advance and shipments continue sufficient for all requirements. America gladioli that should command $1.50 per dozen were offered Saturday under $3 per hundred.

Greek-American Outing.

The eighth annual outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association was held July 8, at Witzel's Grove, College Point, L. I., and was the largest and best in the society's record. Over 500 attended, including nearly every prominent wholesale florist in the city. Messrs. Smith, Coyle, Millang and Schultheis and other Long Islanders who live near College Point came in their automobiles and added to the attendance. The resort lived up to its excellent reputation and provided liberally for all. The musical entertainment created great enthusiasm, with its national hymns and popular melodies. The weather was perfect and the boat trip delightful.

Geo. D. Nicholas was the orator of the day and was influential in collecting a large sum for the purchase of the two battleships for his country.

Various Notes.

Everything is progressing encouragingly for the S. A. F. convention, reports Secretary Young, whose headquarters are now at Boston. Chairman Traendly, of the transportation committee of the New York Florists' Club, has booked a large number of staterooms already for the all-water trip to "the Hub," and it behooves those contemplating sleep to send in their applications at once.

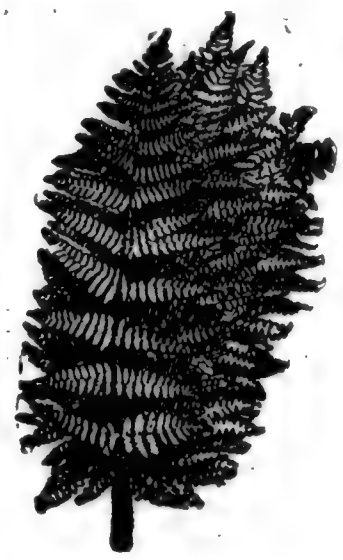
J. K. Allen returned Tuesday, July 14, from his automobile trip to Washington, D. C., and reports a most enjoyable time, as well as much courtesy from the florists visited on his holiday journey.

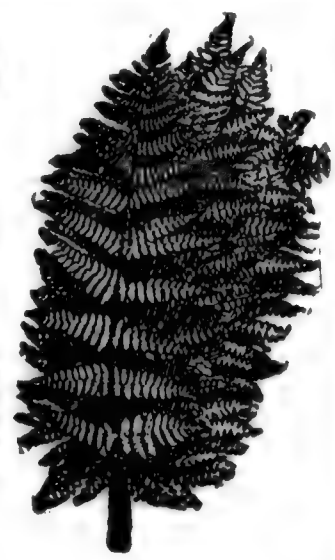
Many of the wholesalers are adopting the wise vacation plan of sending their families to the mountain or seaside resorts and spending their week ends with them, from Fridays until Mondays, attending to business and athletic recuperation while in the city, thus "killing two birds with one stone."

A. E. Wheeler, of W. E. Marshall & Co., and his wife, will enjoy their vacation and resumed honeymoon on Mr. Wheeler's yacht on Jamaica bay. This firm has added an adjoining 2,000 square feet of space to its establishment. Mr. Marshall is still traveling in the western states.



The "permanent exposition" in the Grand Central Terminal station continues. The management now distributes invitation cards to the hundreds waiting for trains and has increased the attendance thereby, but the success of the enterprise has not come up to expectations.

Palm seeds from New Zealand and bulbs from Java were among the importations received last week at A. T. Boddington's.



John Kervan and wife return this week from a two weeks' trip to Bermuda.

The early closing movement, which means 4 p. m. daily and all day Sunday during July and August, has been joined by the majority of the wholesalers, much to the delight and advantage of all concerned. Doubtless all will get in line when hot weather comes to stay.

The changes in the store at 111 West Twenty-Eighth street are progressing rapidly, and the Greek wholesale concern will open there August 1. This is a new departure for this nationality and its outcome will be noted with wide interest.

The New York Florists' Supply Co. is another Greek enterprise that has been quite successful, under the management of its president, George Cotsonas; this company has purchased the building at 103 West Twenty-Eighth street, and will take possession May 1, 1915, after making many additions and improvements.

W. G. Badgley, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, is sending in some fine Shawver, Sunburst and Mignon roses. Mr. Meyer is resting a month in the Catskills and Mr. Riedel will spend August at Sea Cliff, L. I., and in Canada.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. windows are filled with necessities for the suburbanite and novelties of many kinds that attract the passing crowd.

Robert MacNiff is back from the mountains greatly benefited by his holiday and will spend his week ends there during the remainder of the season with his family. J. Austin Shaw.

HUTCHINSON, KAN.

John Stamm is planning to open a downtown store next autumn to take care of his flower business and to aid in making out-of-town shipments. His automobile truck has proved of great service in handling the local trade. Mr. Stamm started at his present location twenty-four years ago and now has 32,000 square feet under glass and several acres for outdoor stock. Carnations and chrysanthemums are his principal greenhouse crops, while outdoors a long list of perennials are grown.

Yerkes Bros., who last year purchased the greenhouses of H. P. Miller, will enter the florists' business this coming fall. This firm, which is composed of G. E. Yerkes and W. R. Yerkes, has been in the market gardening business for some time. They are making many improvements in the old Miller houses and will shortly tear down one house and replace it with another, 25x108, at the same time adding a boiler house.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. .. .	113.20
Net value of orders..... .:.	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,
J J Beneke

The Market.

Business last week was all that could be expected and nearly every florist in the city reports an increase over last year at this time. If business keeps up as it has done during the rest of the summer, there will be no cause for complaint. Wedding work continues and funeral work is heavier than the usual run in the summer. There is a good call for small basket work and blooming plants for hospitals. Stock is plentiful, especially of roses and outdoor flowers, while there are a good many carnations, but not too many. Carnations are bringing as high as $4 per hundred, and they are good and worth the money. They come from a high altitude, where it is quite cool, and are first-class in every way.

Last week showed a big increase in rose stock, as plenty of it arrived here from out of town. Mrs. Russell is the best to be had on the market and is a good seller at different times. There seems to be a shortage in white roses. Gladioli are coming in more plentifully and help out a great deal in the cut flower line. There are some fine shipments sent into this city every day. Asters have commenced to arrive; they are better than usual for this time of the year. Rubrum and auratum lilies are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Henry Kusik & Co. report business quite good. They had some nice gladioli and asters last week, and are receiving some excellent carnations and Russell roses.

T. J. Noll & Co. are still receiving Colorado carnations and Mr. Noll says that they sell on sight. Consignments have commenced to come in more heavily and the firm will be able to fill orders more easily.

Adolph Mohr has his greenhouses in good shape and everything looking well. He has a fine lot of table ferns and a general line of pot plants.

Chrisp & Moore have started a flower store at Twelfth and Troost avenue. They have a nice place, which should help them to success. Mr. Moore was formerly with Patrick Larkin.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is moving the building that was just south of the greenhouses, as a boulevard is being cut through the place. It will make the establishment look much better and the boulevard will afford the company much advertising, as everybody who owns a pleasure vehicle will pass by the greenhouses.

Business across the state line shows a little improvement over last year at this time, as there is more doing in a social way.

W. J. Barnes is practically caught up with the work in his greenhouses and everything looks quite good. He reports funeral work rather heavy last week.

Patrick Larkin is troubled with rabbits in his carnation field this summer. Mr. Larkin ought to give an invitation to the florist hunters this fall. The mums are all planted and in good shape.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports that business is up to expectations, with a great deal of out-of-town funeral work.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The wholesale markets handled a lot of flowers last week, both from local and outside shippers. The bulk of it, however, was of poor quality, especially the stock of our local growers, whose outdoor stock has been badly burned by the continuous hot weather and the lack of rain. The retailers say this is the dullest summer they ever have experienced and that, outside of funeral work, there is absolutely nothing doing. The cut flowers that make up the daily market this summer are easily the poorest in many years.

Roses are coming in from the young stock; they are short-stemmed; most of them are Killarneys. Kaiserins are the best among the whites. There are plenty of Beauties, but they are of poor quality. Carnations are plentiful, but small in flower. Gladioli come with badly burned tips. Good Easter lilies, valley and Shasta daisies sell well. Prices run along as last quoted. Fancy ferns, smilax and asparagus met with a good demand last week.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The July meeting of the Florists' Club was by far the best attended meeting of the year. Strong letters of appeal sent out by President Pilcher brought out some of the old-timers. These, with the regulars, almost occupied the seating capacity of the hall. President Pilcher and all the other officers were present to greet the members as they came in. The importance of this meeting, too, drew many of the members. The meeting opened at 2 o'clock. The trustees reported that everything was in readiness for the picnic, to be held at Ramona park July 22. They also reported that all matters pertaining to the last banquet had been settled. State Vice-president R. J. Windler, of the S. A. F., sent in a report as to arrangements for the Boston trip, and in it urged those members who are going to the convention to send their names to him as soon as possible, so that reservations can be made in plenty of time.

The resignation of Frank A. Weber was read and accepted. Marion Uhlschmidt, of East St. Louis, Ill., made application for membership.

Under the head of new business the nomination of officers took place. The nominees for the various offices were as follows: Jules Bourdet, president; W. S. Wells, vice-president; J. J. Beneke, secretary; W. C. Smith, treasurer. For the year term as trustee, W. C. Young, Gust Grossart and W. A. Rowe were placed in nomination. The election will take place at the next meeting of the club.

An animated discussion took place on changing the club meetings from afternoon to night, to which the suburban members took great exception, although the city members favored such a move. The question will again be taken up at the August meeting. The trustees were requested to look for a place for outdoor meetings for August and September and a sum of money was set aside for these meetings. The question box brought out a lively discussion. Thursday afternoon, August 13, is the date of the next meeting.

a most pleasant afternoon. The meeting was held on the lawn. There was a large attendance.

Don't forget the florists' picnic on Wednesday, July 22, at Ramona park. All the wholesale houses and a good many of the retailers have promised to close shop and give their employees a half holiday. All florists with their families are invited to attend. There are no charges, so let every florist get in line for this date.

M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill., reports that he is putting up a new carnation house and is rebuilding some of the older ones. The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, furnished the material for the new house. Mr. Widmer's surplus stock is consigned to this market.

George Schmidt, until recently rose grower for Werner Bros., has taken a position with John T. Milliken, at Crescent, Mo., where he will have charge of the big rose houses. Quite a lot of new glass has recently been added to this place and was put up by the Lord & Burnham Co.

Mrs. Eugene Michel, with her family, of Riverton, N. J., is visiting Mr. Michel's father at South Kirkwood. Her husband, Eugene Michel, is with Henry Dreer, Inc. Both are well known here, being former residents of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Weber, Sr., have gone for a ten days' stay at Okawville, Ill. They will return in time for the florists' picnic, which they never miss.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith have returned from their vacation trip, which was spent at Hahatonka, Mo. Their well-tanned appearance showed they had a good time.

Alex Siegel, who has been laid up with sickness for the last three months, has partly recovered. The doctor's advice was a trip to the northern lakes for the rest of the summer, for which place Mr. Siegel left last week.

Park Commissioner Davis has secured an appropriation of $2,000 for free moving picture entertainments in downtown parks and playgrounds. The films to be exhibited will be on scenic, historical and educational subjects.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, was a caller last week. He has been calling on the trade here for a number of years and his many friends are always glad to welcome him.

Several suburban club members spent Thursday, July 9, in the city, transacting business and attending the club meeting in the afternoon. Among them were: E. W. Guy and G. Grossart, Belleville; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville; M. F. Widmer, Highland; C. E. De Wever, Olivette; W. J. Pilcher, W. J. Edwards, W. A. Rowe, Pierre Schneider and Frank Vennemann, Kirkwood.

William C. Young, head of the west end establishment of C. Young & Sons Co., has fully recovered from his recent illness and his many friends gladly greeted him at the Florists' Club meeting last week.

The publishers of the Republic, a daily paper, have started a plan which they are exploiting under the heading, "Why not a garden in every window on streets in closely built districts?"

and they say that in German cities, where houses stand close together and there is no room for gardens, almost every window has its garden. They invite offers for material and plants.

Mrs. and Mrs. C. C. Sanders and their daughters, Laura and Jessie, are at St. James, Mo., this week, where they are visiting the family of their son, Walter. The trip was made in the family automobile.

The committee on games at the florists' picnic, selected by the trustees, held a meeting Thursday evening at the home of Frank Windler, the chairman, and mapped out a program of all the events for the picnic. The meeting was attended by all the members of the committee. A special feature this year will be a miniature reproduction of the recent pageant portrayal of the poem "Hiawatha," using the lake for the natural stage setting. Hiawatha will be impersonated by Paddy Patton, assisted by a band of Indians selected from the different wholesale houses. J. J. B.

The Market.

Business the last few weeks has been poor. Without the funeral work and a few decorations it would have been at a standstill. Carnations, owing to the cool weather, have been good for this time of year, but are getting scarce, as a number of the growers are planting their young stock. Some good outdoor sweet peas are coming in; also candytuft, snapdragon, mignonette, centaureas, etc., but there is no demand for them.

For the last two weeks it has rained more or less nearly every day and some Annual Outing.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its twenty-ninth annual outing at Grand Isle, La., July 4 and 5. Thirty members and guests left the city July 4 at 7 a. m., by the powerboat F. & J., arriving at Grand Isle at 9:30 p. m. The weather was ideal for such a long trip on the different lakes; everyone was in the best of spirits and merriment ruled supreme.

After the landing, the entire party were housed together in the comfortable quarters of Dr. E. Engelbach. Some could not resist the temptation to take a dip in the roaring surf of the nearby Gulf of Mexico, while others followed the strains of the band which we took with us, and which was immediately engaged to try its skill in the newest dance music. It must be said that the boys from New Orleans made a hit with the pretty girls from the Isle. As it was our nation's birthday, another bunch got patriotic and soon the stillness of the moonlit night was broken by loud reports of cannon and brightened by dozens of skyrockets and Roman candles. To make the celebration complete, one of the florists read the declaration of independence.

Early Sunday morning found the whole party in the briny water of the gulf. After a hearty breakfast, served under big live oaks, a general invasion of the island took place, including visits to several acquaintances of some of the crowd. After the splendid dinner, which was served outdoors, President P. A. Chopin called the assemblage to order, made some appropriate remarks, dwelling on the history of the society, and called in turn on all the members and guests for a few words in behalf of the society, the trade and its allied interests. Everyone responded and the exchanges of views were novel, interesting and up-to-date.

The citizens of Grand Isle gave a grand ball on the night of July 5 in honor of the visitors, and nearly all went and had a highly enjoyable time until the early morning hours. Shortly after daybreak the signal to rise and get ready for home was given, and after 6 o'clock the cannon on the F. & J. fired the farewell salute, arousing most of the still sleeping population. Nothing marred the trip home, which was enlivened by our band, although it played for nearly two days and nights. A short stop was made at a Chinese village. At 8:30 we reached the dear Crescent City. Before leaving the boat the majority of the party went fishing for some fine specimens of red fish or big trout, while a few lucky ones caught a few flounders—with the silver hook—to bring home as a delectable souvenir from Grand Isle.

C. Farley, a member of the society, was our special photographer. Henry Kraak, another member, earned the praise of everyone by his untiring skill as the dispenser of the golden fluid. U. J. Virgin and C. W. Eichling sent an abundance of fine cut flowers and fancy greens for the table decorations.

Those taking part in the outing were: P. Abele, F. H. Becker, J. Bollwinkle, P. Chopin, C. Eble, R. Eichling, C. Farley, M. J. Guertler, H. Illenberger, H. Kraak, J. St. Mard, C. Ory, C. R. ...THE...

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Cal.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-third annual convention, San Francisco, Cal., June, 1915.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, is seeking the Democratic nomination that will permit him to make another run for Congress against James R. Mann.

THE Milwaukee Seed Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., has been incorporated with a capitalization of $1,000, by E. L. Rosenberg, Della Delisle and Edna Rosenberg.

CHARLES N. PAGE, of the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, last week was operated on by the Mayo brothers in Rochester, Minn. Frank H. Page advises that the work was successful.

THE sum appropriated for the congressional free seed distribution of 1915 is $257,000. An additional sum of $100,000 is provided for the distribution in other ways of new and rare seeds.

WEATHER conditions during the first half of July, a critical period, have been excellent in the Wisconsin and Michigan pea growing districts. In Idaho and Montana the seedsmen who have been crop inspecting since convention have found prospects satisfactory.

A LARGE loss was caused July 6 by a fire in the building of the Philadelphia Seed Co., at 103 Arch street, Philadelphia. The fire was confined to the third and fourth floors of the building, the damage on the lower floors being caused by water.

THERE has been so much opposition to the practice of the Dutch bulb growers in marketing cut blooms that the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association has bound its members neither to sell or give away cut blooms of hyacinths in the years 1915 and 1916. It is announced that "Should this action be crowned with success, similar measures will be taken against the trade exporting other kinds of cut flowers."

BURPEE TALKS TO BRITONS.

An important conference on sweet peas was held in the Palace of Music at the Anglo-American Exposition, Shepherd's Bush, London, England, Wednesday, July 8. Leonard G. Sutton, of Reading, presided. Papers on "One Hundred Years' Progress with the Sweet Pea in England," and "The Development of the Sweet Pea in America," were read by Messrs. Charles H. Curtis and W. Atlee Burpee, respectively.

"UNCLE SAM'S SEEDS."

No circumstance connected with the government distribution of seeds has, in recent years, attracted the attention through the United States that has resulted from the announcement of Kelway & Son, the English growers, that they have been awarded contracts aggregating about forty-four tons for the 1915 distribution. The fact was the subject of a debate in Congress, as reported in The Review for July 2, and is being widely commented on in the daily newspapers. The general attitude is shown by the following editorial from the Telegram, published at Adrian, Mich.:

Formosa Lily Bulbs

New crop have just arrived and are now ready for delivery. This type of lily, coming strongly into prominence—partly accounted for on account of its early flowering, being the first of all Japan lilies to come in, flowering from Christmas time on—is now being cultivated by the growers with closer care and more detailed attention. From advices of our grower, from Japan, Horseshoe Brand Lilium Formosum will be better this year than ever before. The crop harvested to extra good stock and they sure will be money-makers for the growers buying them. Send in your orders now, if you have not secured your requirements. Take it from us, you will realize a profit on Horseshoe Brand Lilium Formosum that, in proportion, will make the wealth of a Croesus blush in comparison. Send for the Horseshoe Brand Bulbology—also known as the Joy Book—containing our prices.

"For many years your Uncle Sam has been spending huge sums of money for seeds, which have been dumped upon the public without method, reason, or sense, let alone economy. The seeds are fired at you whether you want them or not, whether you can use them or not, and no effort is made to find what kind you want or whether you want any at all. It has been a standing joke for a generation, and a costly one.

"But now we are learning something new. It would not be quite so bad if your Uncle were spending all this money at home; that would at least make work for a lot of people and would encourage a very clean, wholesome and beneficial industry. But Uncle Sam is not only wasting seeds by the ton, but he is buying them abroad. He buys forty-four tons of tiny flower and vegetable seeds at one whack from a single British concern. He also buys from another English firm, we learn, and from two in France and one in Holland.

"And how about the American seedsman? Why, your Uncle Samuel not only fails to patronize him, but he actually competes with him in the very worst possible way by buying seeds abroad and giving them away to the American seedsman's customers!

"It is bad enough to invade any industry by giving away its product; but if the government is bound to do this, the least it can do is to give Americans a chance to produce the goods that are given away. As to the manner in which the seeds are given away and the propriety of giving them away at all, we have nothing further to say. We are too tired."

MILLS STOCKHOLDERS MEET.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Mills Seed Co., held in the company's offices at Washington, Ia., June 29, the report of the secretary, S. H. White, showed this year's business was almost double that of last year. The circulation of the catalogue now in preparation will be about the same as that of the last issued, 650,000. As directors for the ensuing year the stockholders chose the following: L. D. Langworthy, S. H. White, W. P. Wells, H. A. Baxter and Orville Elder. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, W. P. Wells; vice-president, L. D. Langworthy, and secretary and treasurer, S. H. White.

IMPLIED WARRANTY OF SEEDS.

Does Sales Talk Nullify Disclaimer?

The case of George Demint vs. Fred H. Janssen, who trades as the Janssen Seed & Floral Co., Springfield, Ill., is unimportant insofar as the sum involved is concerned, but is a direct test of the claim that a seller's verbal statements can constitute a warranty even where the printed disclaimer is properly employed, or that there is an implied warranty of trueness in each sale of seeds by name. The case is pending in the Circuit court of Sangamon county on a motion for a new trial after having twice been decided for the defendant seedsman. The case was heard recently by Judge Creighton, who has been forty-two years on the bench and is credited with having heard more cases than any other trial judge in Illinois. He has stated that this case involved issues that never before had been joined in his court.

FALL BLOSSOMS

When frost has had killing effect upon your outside supply of flowers, you will need and appreciate a bench of indoor blossoms. There is nothing so well adapted to fill this want as our SEEDLING SILVER PINK SNAPDRAGON. We have a few thousand plants now ready to bench that will surely do the trick. They are stocky and well branched, and need no further attention. The price is only $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Put your idle space to work and order today. The supply is limited.

Statement of Plaintiff.

The following is a statement of the facts by John M. Sheehan, counsel for the plaintiff, a truck grower:

"George Demint had two acres of land in a high state of cultivation on which strawberries had been grown for about a year and a half prior to plowing it for a late roasting ear corn, June 24, 1913. After it was thoroughly broken up by plowing there came a fine rain and the ground was in splendid condition for planting. The plaintiff then went to the store of the Janssen Seed & Floral Co. and asked the clerk in charge if they had seed of the Mammoth sweet corn, which is known to gardeners as a late variety, and the clerk answered that they had. Plaintiff then asked the clerk in charge to wrap him up a peck of the corn and, without examining the corn, took it home. The following morning he prepared to plant the seed, but, on examination, he concluded that it did not look like the Mammoth corn and he returned it by a neighbor to have it exchanged. The neighbor took the matter up directly with the defendant and the defendant told him that it was the Mammoth corn; that they bought it for Mammoth corn and sold it for Mammoth corn. The corn was returned to the plaintiff, with the above explanation, and the plaintiff, relying upon the statement of the defendant, planted the corn and cultivated it thoroughly, but it turned out not to be the Mammoth corn, but an early variety of another kind. It only grew from two to three feet high and did not mature and the plaintiff lost the entire crop.

"There is a case, Shaw vs. Smith, 45 Kas., 334; also 50 Mo., App. 121, and several New York cases almost directly in point, especially the case of White vs. Miller, 71 N. Y., 118. There is an implied warranty on the part of the seller that he will sell the purchaser the thing he calls for. Not that it will germinate, but that it is the kind the purchaser calls for and that it is fit for the purpose the purchaser desires to use it for.

"There also is a case, Landreth vs. Wycoff, 67 N. Y. App. Div., 145, and also 73 N. Y., Suppl., 388. The gist of the matter is that no matter what the seller advertises in the sale of the seed, that he will not be responsible for certain defects, there is an implied warranty that he will sell the purchaser the kind of seed purchaser calls for and that the seed will be fit for the purpose the purchaser intends to use it for. There is, however, no implied warranty, it seems, that the seed will germinate."

Statement by Defendant.

The following is a statement of the facts by R. H. McAnulty, of McAnulty, Allen & Humphrey, counsel for the defendant:

"This was a suit brought to recover damages claimed by reason of defendant having delivered an early variety of sweet corn to plaintiff, whereas he claimed to have bought a late variety. Plaintiff claimed that he asked for Mammoth sweet corn, but claimed there was delivered to him some unknown variety of early sweet corn; that the reason why he knew it was not the Mammoth was that it did not grow tall enough to be Mammoth and that it did not produce ears, whereas other truck farmers, neighbors of his, had planted the Mammoth variety and had secured reasonably good yields. The court, however, refused to allow any of them to testify as to what their corn had yielded unless they first were able to show that they planted Mammoth corn at about the same time of the year and in soil of the same general character, the ground broken up about the same time of the year, and that the ground must have had similar crops to the crops preceding the corn crop on plaintiff's land. None of plaintiff's witnesses could come within the rule laid down by the court; therefore they could not testify as to what their corn had yielded.

"The case was tried first in the Justice court before a jury and won by the defendant. The plaintiff appealed. His theory was that when a person purchased of a dealer in seeds there was an implied warranty that the seed

BODDINGTON'S "QUALITY" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING

Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

The Sensational Australian Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea, Yarrawa

We have been fortunate to secure a small quantity of this wonderful new Spencer Winter-flowering Sweet Pea from the raiser, Arthur Yates, of Sidney, and now offer it for the first time in America. It is far superior to the prevailing Spencer types—the flowers being exceptionally large and well fluted and waved; in color it is almost a duplicate of Countess Spencer, a delightful light soft rose, which lights up beautifully at night. We offer this original stock till sold at $1.00 per trade packet; three trade packets for $2.75.

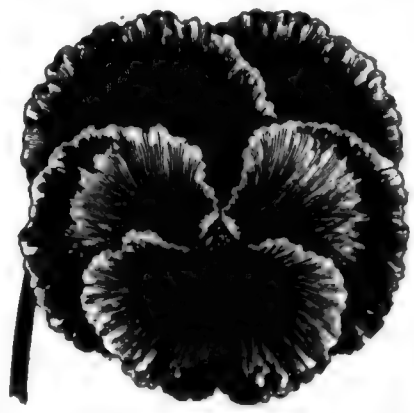
delivered was the variety asked for. In the Justice court plaintiff referred only to the Mammoth corn. In the course of that trial it developed that there was an early and a late Mammoth. Our defense on that point was that he had not specified whether he wanted early or late Mammoth, and that we had delivered Mammoth.

"In the Circuit court, to which the case was appealed, plaintiff had mended on his evidence somewhat. Part of the time in his testimony he said he asked for Mammoth corn, making no distinction. At other times he testified that he asked for Late Mammoth. Defendant relied particularly upon the custom and usage of seedsmen in selling seeds without warranty, and the court allowed the defendant to show custom and usage of seedsmen in this city and throughout the country to sell seeds with the non-warranty clause. Doubtless it was upon that evidence that the jury found for the defendant in the Circuit court.

"The evidence was that plaintiff had plowed up an old strawberry bed June 23, 1913, after the strawberry crop had failed on account of drought. It was planted to corn June 24. There was about four acres of it, and the amount of damages claimed was $39.25. It was a small amount to litigate over, but the principle from the seedsman's standpoint was important. Believing the truth to be that the failure of the crop was to be attributed to the excessively hot weather with the long period of drought, coupled with the fact that the ground was broken late and never became packed sufficiently for the roots of the corn to become sufficiently imbedded in the soil, we showed the government weather reports, the temperature and precipitation for each day from May 1 to September 1, 1913."



FREIGHT ON MOSS.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, in a complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission against the C. M. & St. P. R. R., attacks the rate of 13 cents per hundred pounds on moss from Mather, Wis., to Chicago. A refund of $78 as overcharges on six recent shipments is asked. The car minimum of 34,000 pounds is declared to be unjust and unreasonable because of the nature of the commodity, which is light weight and not susceptible of loading at above an average of 15,000 pounds in a standard 36-foot car. The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

PRINCESS

20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 seeds, 25c; 1000, 50c; ¼ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $10.00.

34—Bronze—Brown and copper shades mixed.
36—Fancy—Rich colors, mostly margined.
38—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
44—Black—Almost coal black.
46—Black with bronze center.
48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.
50—Bronze—Beautiful bronze.
52—Bronze with yellow center.
54—Velvet Brown with yellow center.
56—Havana Brown.
58—Havana Brown with yellow center.
60—Cardinal—Curled, bright red, dark blotch.

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

24—KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance; a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.

30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large dark blotches.

NEW SEED NOW READY.

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz., $1.25 per ¼-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25 cents; any 5 pkts., $1.00. Please order by number.

62—Cecily—Steel blue, margined white.
64—Goliath—Large curled yellow blotched.
66—Hero—Curled, deep blue shaded white.
68—Emp. William—Ultramarine blue, violet eye.
70—Eros—Velvety brown, yellow margin.
72—Emp. Franz Joseph—White blotched blue.
74—Emp. Frederick—Maroon with gold edge.
76—Fairy Queen—Azure blue, white edge.
78—Freya—Purplish violet, white edge.
80—Gold-Edge—Velvety brown, gold edge.
84—Superba—Orchid tints of red and wine.
86—Sunlight—Yellow with brown blotches.
88—Andromeda—Curled apple blossom.
90—Colossea Venosa—Light veined shades.
92—Almond Blossom—Delicate rose.
94—Aurora—Terra cotta shades.
96—Mammoth—Greenish yellow shades.
97—The above 7 named Orchid mixed.
98—Indigo Blue—Deep velvety blue.
100—Light Blue shades.
102—Minerva—Red ground, violet blotched.
104—Meteor—Bright red brown.
106—Pres. McKinley—Yellow, dark blotched.
108—Mahogany with white margin.
110—Mahogany with yellow margin.
112—Mourning Clock—Black with white edge.
114—Purple—Large rich deep color.
116—Peacock—Blue, rosy face, white edge.
118—Psyche—Curled white, five blotches.
120—Pres. Carnot—White, five blue blotches.
126—Red—A collection of rich red shades.
128—Red Riding Hood—Curled and blotched.
130—Rosy Morn—Purple crimson, white edge.
132—Striped on lilac ground.
134—Striped on bronze ground.
136—Victoria—Blood red, violet blotches.
138—White—Large satiny white.
140—White with violet blotch.
142—Yellow—Large golden yellow.
144—Yellow with dark blotch.
146—34 to 144 mixed in equal proportions.

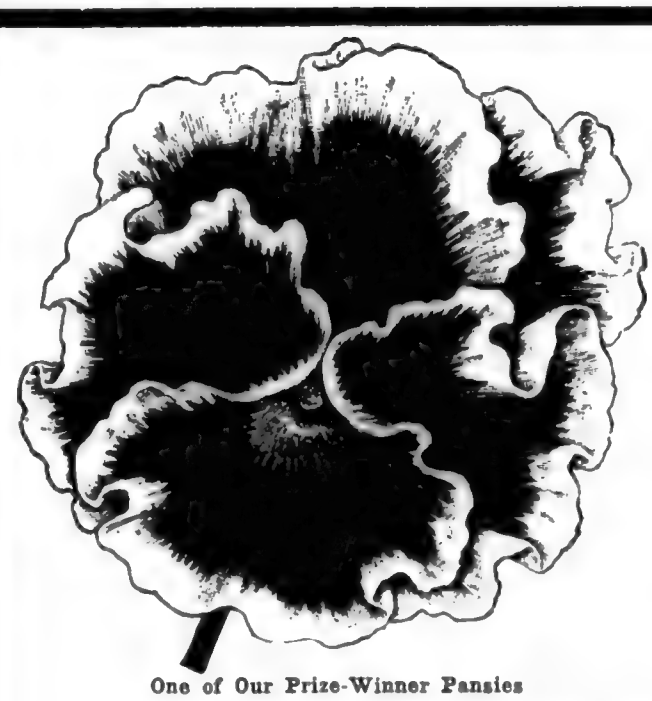
BED FOR LETTUCE.

Some time ago I purchased a small house, on the floor of which is a lettuce bench one foot deep, five feet wide and 100 feet long, built on a slope, being two feet higher at one end. Will a line of tile through the center give it proper drainage? If so, how deep ought I to put it? If this will not work, could you give me a better plan? C. D. J.



A line of 3-inch tile laid a foot below the bottom of your bed will give ample drainage. If your land has a subsoil of a sandy or gravelly nature, there should be no need of any drainage. C. W.

SOIL FOR TOMATOES.

In one of my houses I have had benches for seven or eight years. They stand only three or four inches from the ground. I wish to take them out and grow tomatoes in the soil. Do you think the soil under the benches has become sour or unfit for plants? If so, what treatment will be necessary to restore it? Will it be rich enough without fertilizing? A. L. H.

The best plan would be to remove the benches, give the soil below a thorough spading, leave it rough and let the sun have a chance to bake and sweeten it. The soil will probably be somewhat sour from constant drip and lack of sun to dry and sweeten it. The richness of the soil I could not well determine. Why not try a few plants in it and see how it suits them? The probabilities are that your tomatoes would do better if a good coating of well decayed horse or cow manure could be well mixed in the soil, or, failing that, a dressing of pulverized sheep manure and fine bone. BODDINGTON'S GIGANTIC PANSIES

Can be produced only from the giant strains. Our CHALLENGE PANSY seed contains only the giant self-colors, the giant striped and variegated and the giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion. You could not buy better seed if you paid $100 per ounce. Our Challenge Pansy seed during the past season gave unprecedented satisfaction, and every order booked last year was duplicated and increased this year. All the testimonials received mentioned specially the high grade of flowers—color, form and size of the individual blossoms. This year, by adding improved types, intending customers can absolutely rely on a duplication of this season's success with increased satisfaction. Our "mark" for this strain is "Challenge," and it is all the word denotes.

Pansy—Boddington's "Challenge"—All Giants

This mixture contains all the finest Giant strains—of the leading Pansy Specialists in the world—the Giant self-colors, the Giant striped and margined, and the Giant blotched, etc., all carefully mixed in proportion—the finest that money can buy—the finest your money can buy. PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The first week of July was a dull one for the retailer, funeral work being the only hope. Flowers are more of a glut now than at any previous time this summer. Gladioli, dahlias and asters are all in together, with practically no demand. Outdoor roses keep up well in quality for the season, but the supply is too great for the demand. Orchids are plentiful and all classes of small flowers are in oversupply. There are some fine cornflowers in, which last extremely well during hot weather and make a pretty show.

Various Notes.

The July meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, held at Kruckeberg's hall July 7, was only fairly well attended. The principal business on hand was clearing up the affairs of the recent picnic. Fred Howard was present and was given a rising vote of thanks of the society for the good work he has done. There was some discussion as to the means of giving more publicity to the meetings and the secretary was asked to prepare reports and mail them to the trade and amateur horticultural journals. Adjournment was called for by President Winsel at an early hour.

Manager W. Wern, of Wright's Flower Shop, left July 5 for a month's vacation. Few men stick more closely to business than Mr. Wern and he certainly deserves his holiday. Tom Wright reports business fair for the season and the stock looks fine.

Morris Goldenson has bought a home in the Boyle Heights district, on Camulos street, and moved his family there. This is an exceedingly good location, catching the breeze from the ocean each way and lying high and dry.

It is characteristic of A. F. Borden that when he saw in the local papers the account of a man's death and no funds to bury him, he at once telephoned to the authorities offering interment in his own family lot rather than let the man go to the potter's field. This and similar acts of kindness and good nature are what make our friend so much sought for and have given him so good a name as a man and a brother.

M. G. Bridgeford is sending in excellent Lilium rubrum and L. Harrisii from his Eagle Rock place. "Quality first" is always Mr. Bridgeford's motto.

Manager Newman, of S. Murata & Co., is now known as the original and genuine little speed merchant.

Charles Brazee has just returned from a fishing trip at Catalina, an 8-foot shark being among the catch. When I asked him whether this was a fish story, he said it was one that would bear investigation.

Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, was in town last week.

A big load of funeral work, double-decked, left the Los Angeles Flower Market one morning recently.

Rudolph Fischer had already, July 1, shipped his crop of Freesia Purity east.

I sold over 35,000 chrysanthemum plants this season on my 1-inch ad in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. Of course that paid me well and I am very pleased. You will hear from me again as soon as I can work up stock.—Frank Wilhelm, R. F. D. No. 6, Los Angeles, Cal., June 13, '14.

Mr. Fischer is well known as the raiser of this grand variety and grows hundreds of thousands of it at his place at San Gabriel.

H. W. Turner's new rose, September Morn, is assuredly a winner. The young beds are magnificent, the growth being all that could be desired, while the flowers, even from the smallest plants, are splendid in color and substance. Shawyer, too, is immense and is winning golden opinions from the best class of trade here. H. R. Richards.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Business has been fair during the last week, with a steady, though not heavy, demand for funeral work, some of the florists, notably Hoyt Bros. Co., having executed some especially good orders. Wedding work is filling in nicely, though orders are generally small. Roses are small and of summer quality, with the supply a little above the demand. Carnations are showing the effects of the hot weather, though the quality is a little above the average eastern carnations at this season of the year, due largly to our cool nights. The day temperature, too, does not rise so high as in the middle states, 95 degrees being the highest yet recorded in Spokane this month. Sweet peas are in the market in quantity; the quality is quite good. Japanese iris, centaureas and coreopsis are being used to a large extent, especially in the florists' windows.

Various Notes.

Peters Bros. have the side posts set for two new houses, each 32x100 feet, which, with another of like size, they will plant with carnations. One house of tomatoes and one of cucumbers just through bearing they will clear out and plant to mums at once. Another house of tomatoes will be carried for a few weeks longer. They have been especially successful with tomatoes this year, their houses having received the unqualified admiration of all the vegetable growers in this section. A rough estimate of the crop places it at eight pounds of fruit per plant. One house is being filled with Killarney and White Killarney. If they meet with success in rose growing, they intend going into it heavily another year.

Mrs. Thornburg, who last winter opened a store on Post street, has gone back to her old location in Hillyard. She found the competition of a big market just across the street, where plants were sold at cut prices, too strong for her to bear up against.

F. L. Ziegler has sold his greenhouse plant to J. Stephens. The plant consists of two houses, each 15x100 feet, and three lots on Garland avenue. Mr. Stephens expects to build several new houses and will grow principally carnations and ferns. He has been employed on private estates in Spokane for about a year and previously worked at various points in Idaho.

M. Lozier is the fishing florist of Spokane. Last week he brought in a

WALLA WALLA, WASH.

There has not been a great demand for florists' stock here of late, as there is an abundance of outdoor flowers. Aside from funeral work, there is not much business.

During the last year Andrew H. Freeborough, the landscape gardener and florist, whose office is at 54 South Palouse street, has erected another greenhouse, containing 1,800 square feet of glass, at his range at Francis street and Delmar avenue. Mr. Freeborough is still suffering slightly from the effects of an accident that befell him last November, when his right leg was crushed. The injury was followed by a gangrenous condition, from which he has not yet fully recovered.

The Walla Walla Hothouse Vegetable Co. has its new range in use and is doing finely. A. H.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

There is little change in conditions from last week's report. The better class of flower buyers are either at the summer resorts or have an abundance of garden flowers, so that the florists have to depend upon funerals principally. There is a scarcity of really choice stock. Carnations are holding out nicely. Roses are a poor asset. Shasta daisies and general outdoor flowers go to make up the stock in trade. Auratum lilies are coming in more plentifully and are moved at firm prices.

The Sweet Pea Show.

The fifth annual exhibition of the Oregon Sweet Pea Society was held July 7 and 8 at the Multnomah hotel. George Pope is president of the society, and due credit is given him for the interest he displayed in its behalf. His display was not entered for competition, but was fine. While the show is intended principally for amateurs, it was open to professionals also. Hendee Bros. won the first prize in the commercial class. The entries from Washington state were far superior to the local productions, as the flowers had passed the best stage here. One amateur from Kent, Wash., exhibited sweet peas with stems twenty-four to twenty-six inches long, with flowers in proportion. A. J. Clarke, C. S. Crego and James Forbes were the judges.

Henry Clemmens, Newberg, Ore., made an individual display in the lobby of the hotel. His blooms were well staged. Approximately fifty varieties were shown. He is one of the largest sweet pea seed growers in Oregon.

Various Notes.

S. H. Maris, of the Pioneer Greenhouses, McMinnville, Ore., has his place principally in tomatoes, of which he produces about 100 pounds per day. He

PLANTS FOR HOT, DRY CLIMATE.

In The Review of April 2, page 56, one of your correspondents replied to F. B. in regard to planting four beds around a sundial. As F. B. stated that his location, in Alabama, was hot and dry, I was surprised to find that the coleus was mentioned among the varieties of plants that were suitable for the purpose. I have always understood that it is too hot and dry for the coleus here, in the vicinity of Redlands, Cal. Are there any varieties of it that will stand a dry, hot atmosphere, in full sun, if the roots are kept moist and the ground is well mulched? If so, what are the varieties? Kindly let me know what other low bedding plants will stand 100 degrees in a sunny location and dry air, with plenty of moisture at the roots and one or two inches of a good mulch cover over the bed, as I also want plants to border cannas and geraniums. I should also appreciate a list of evergreen or flowering shrubs that will do as well under the same climatic conditions, with the beds mulched as already mentioned.

I look forward each week with interest for The Review, feeling sure that each coming issue will contain something valuable, to be added to my book of clippings for future reference.

J. E. W.

This correspondent has furnished both question and answer. The coleus is a moisture-loving subject and it also delights in an open, friable soil. It is not surprising that some of the growers here, at Los Angeles, find the coleus will not thrive here, since they treat the plants to conditions under which sage brush might do well, but not such sensitive plants as the coleus, with its large, thin-textured leaves. A hot, dry atmosphere is undoubtedly inimical to them, but when this is added to the splash system of watering through a hose and a soil that bakes hard after every watering, then it is no wonder the coleus gives up the attempt.

The dark-leaved variety of coleus known locally as "Oxblood" is the best I know of for outdoor planting. The soil should be thoroughly dug with a spading fork to a depth of at least twelve inches, and the deeper the better. Add a liberal dressing of leafmold or dry, decomposed horse manure of a strawy nature, mixing this as the work proceeds, not placing it just in the bottom of the trenches and leaving the top spit without any. If the soil is heavy, add sand or gravel, but this is not usually necessary in the foothill country, as the decomposed granite is sufficient. Leave a little depression around the plants and give them a good soaking of water, enough to reach the lowest roots. Then, before the surface has become too dry, stir well with a hand fork or cultivator and lay the mulch on, leaving the depression around the plants, to convey the water where it is needed. Never allow them to get dry; sprinkle the mulch every day to make the atmosphere around the plants as moist as possible and they will thrive in the full sun. The temperature does not matter, as the coleus thrives in greenhouses where the heat often exceeds 100 degrees.

As to other dwarf plants, we have the alternantheras and iresines, verbenas, ageratums and mesembryanthemums, all of which do finely here. Dwarf roses are splendid for covering the ground and making a good show. Zinnias of the dwarfer varieties, linums, godetias, clarkias, summer chrysanthemums and Agathæa cœlestis are only a few among the many that do well as border plants.

One of the finest of all dwarf shrubs for southern California is the golden yellow flowered Linum trigynum or Reinwardtia trigynum of botanists. It is a little liable to be troubled with red spider, but may be kept clean by spraying freely with clear water. There are several of the pittosporums that are suitable, notably P. undulatum, P. eugenioides, P. Tobira and its variegated forms, and P. nigricans. Several myrtles do well here; so, also, do the Japanese azaleas, but not Azalea Indica, which is useless in the hot sun. Veronicas are fine, especially V. speciosa and V. imperialis. Duranta Plumieri is a lovely blue flowering shrub, thriving well and growing rapidly; a splendid companion for it is Streptosolen Jamesonii. Several hypericums do well, notably H. Moserianum; also the Spanish broom, or Spartium junceum, the pretty heath-like Fabiana imbricata and the glowing red Grevillea Thelemanniana. This makes a choice list for a small garden, but it may be extended almost indefinitely. There is no lack of variety, only a lack of enthusiasm among would-be gardeners. H. R. Richards.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE American Association of Park Superintendents will hold its annual meeting in New York city August 27.

THE annual meeting of the American Railway Gardeners' Association will be held in New York city August 11 to 14.

CHARLES WILLIS WARD, who is establishing the Cottage Gardens Nurseries in California, with postoffice address at Eureka, is at present in camp at Ah Pah Creek on the Klamath river, deep in the redwood forest.

D. W. COOLIDGE, president of the California Association of Nurserymen, is experimenting with a new fruit, called the feijoa, at his nursery at Pasadena. It is reported to have the combined flavors of the banana, the pineapple and the raspberry.

CARL HUGO LEVIN is the new advertising and sales manager of the Wm. P. Stark Nurseries, at Neosho and Stark City, Mo. He was at one time advertising and sales manager of the Texas Orchard Development Co., of Houston, Tex., and left Lord & Thomas, the Chicago advertising concern, to take his present position.

JAMES VALLANCE, manager of the Vallance Nursery, at Oakland, Cal., the firm name under which John Vallance, the new president of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, conducts the business purchased from C. C. Morse & Co., has leased his ranch at Peters, Cal., to Erle Williams, of Stockton, with an option to purchase it.

To aid the city in its work of improving the appearance of the place, the J. W. Adams Co., at Springfield, Mass., has offered to give the town a strip of land ten feet wide and 1,400 feet long along East Main street, so that the thoroughfare may be widened. As this amounts to practically one-third of an acre of land, the value of which runs well into four figures, the gift is not a small one.

AMONG the speakers on the program of the Texas State Horticultural Society's annual meeting, at College Station, July 27 to 29, are J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie, who will speak on "Improved Methods of Propagation"; John S. Kerr, of Sherman, president of the Texas Nurserymen's Association, who will tell of "The Value of the Home Orchard," and E. S. Stockwell, of Alvin, who will speak on "Handling the Commercial Citrus Crop." A number of nurserymen of the state are expected to be in attendance at the meeting.

PENNSYLVANIA'S 1913 IMPORTS.

The nurserymen of Pennsylvania during 1913, according to Enos B. Engle, chief state nursery inspector, imported 9,214 packages of plants and nursery stock from Japan and five countries of Europe. These bundles contained 2,473,337 plants and trees. Fourteen other packages of plants came from seven countries that seldom export nursery stock, and Spain sent 2,200 feet of dracæna canes into the state.

You may discontinue our advertisement, as we are through with our spring shipments, but we will give you another order for fall, as THE RESULTS from the one for spring HAVE BEEN VERY SATISFACTORY.—Franklin Davis Nursery Co., Baltimore, Md., May 19, 1914.

Holland leads in the number of trees shipped into the state. It sent 1,093,949 plants in 7,043 packages. Belgium sent over 1,610 packages, containing 108,810 plants, and France 182 packages, containing 792,418 plants. Great Britain shipped in 251 packages, containing 352,584 plants, and Germany forty-eight packages, containing 109,818 plants, while Japan exported eighty packages, containing 15,920 plants.

The other countries from which importations of stock were made sent only from one to five packages, Spain furnishing 275 plants besides the dracæna canes; Italy, Denmark and Panama, 100 plants each; Hungary fifty-six; Venezuela, twenty-five, and Jamaica, twenty-four.

VERDICT IN STARK INQUEST.

The following item appeared in the St. Joseph, Mo., Press July 8, as a dispatch from Jacksonville, Ill.:

"At an adjourned session of the coroner's inquest here last night, a verdict was returned that Clarence M. Stark, a nurseryman of Louisiana, Mo., came to his death from a self-administered overdose of poison, taken to allay nervousness and produce sleep. Mr. Stark was found dead in bed at a local sanitarium on the night of May 30."

NEW FEDERAL RULES ISSUED.

A pamphlet entitled "Rules and Regulations Under the Plant Quarantine Act: General, Including Nursery Stock," has been issued by the federal horticultural board under the date of July 1, 1914, to supersede circular No. 44, issued over a year ago, entitled "Rules and Regulations for Carrying Out the Plant Quarantine Act."

The regulations set forth in this pamphlet are substantially those now in effect. A few corrections in wording have been made, but aside from these the only changes are the additions of three paragraphs. One, at the end of regulation 6, states that "permits may be canceled and further permits refused for importations from any foreign exporter who, after warning, continues to send packages not certified as above, i. e., lacking copy certificate attached to package."

An amendment to regulation 7 embodies the ruling of the board in plant quarantine decision No. 4, issued July 17, 1913. This paragraph reads: "Permits may be canceled and further permits refused for the importation of nursery stock from any given country whenever such stock, in the judgment of the federal horticultural board, is found to be so infested as plainly to indicate that the foreign inspection is merely perfunctory, and such countries shall thereafter be classed as countries which do not maintain nursery stock inspection until satisfactory evidence is presented to show that the regulations of the board have been complied with."

After regulation 8 a new one has been inserted, in regard to marking as a condition of interstate shipment. It is as follows: "No person shall ship or deliver for shipment from one state or territory or district of the United States into any other state or territory or district any imported nursery stock the case, box, package, crate, bale, or bundle whereof is not plainly marked so as to show the general nature and quantity of the contents, the name and address of the consignee and the country and locality where such stock was grown, unless and until such imported stock has been inspected by the proper official of a state, territory or district of the United States."

EFFECT OF QUARANTINE LAW.

"The most serious objection to the federal quarantine act," said L. A. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga., in a report presented at the A. A. N. convention, "has been on the part of importing concerns and some of the foreign nurseries. There was formerly a decided inclination to attempt to override or ignore the laws of the federal horticultural board and certain local state laws, but when it was seen that the law would be enforced, importing houses and the foreign nurseries began to get busy and make provisions to comply with the law.
